2,200 TRIBUNE WORKERS GET NEW INSURANCE

$7,000,000 in Low Rate Life Policies.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

A new plan of group insurance which, it is estimated, will provide seven million dollars' worth of additional protection for 2,200 families of TRIBUNE workers, goes into effect today.

This new plan will afford a much greater measure of protection and will be available to a larger proportion of this newspaper's workers than the group insurance which has been in effect for 18 years.

So generous are the terms of the policies now being written that, in the opinion of disinterested insurance specialists, members of THE TRIBUNE'S organization enjoy advantages second to no comparable arrangement in the United States.

Rush to Sign Up.

Success of the plan was made known yesterday when employés were notified that 95 per cent of those eligible had already signed up under it and that more were joining daily. In all departments the announcement of the more liberal insurance plan was received with great enthusiasm and there was a rush to join. The 75 per cent acceptance by eligible workers set as the minimum requirement was exceeded in a few days.

Briefly, the salient features of the new plan are these:

All persons on the active pay roll who have completed one year of service are eligible for insurance. Others become eligible when they complete their first year of service.

Insurance is provided at a flat cost of nine dollars per thousand per year, regardless of age or physical condition. There is no medical examination.

The first thousand dollars of insurance is paid for by THE TRIBUNE as a gift. Additional insurance is paid for by the insured. The amount of additional insurance which one may take depends upon the amount of his salary. Those whose yearly salary is less than $1,000 may take $1,000 in addition to the $1,000 paid for by THE TRIBUNE.

Sum Payable at Once.

The amount of insurance permitted increases $1,000 for each $1,000 increase in salary up to the salary groups of $9,000 and over, where a maximum of $10,000 of insurance, in addition to the $1,000 paid for by the company, is authorized.

An individual whose salary is between $1,000 and $2,000, for example, may take $2,000 in addition to the $1,000 paid for by THE TRIBUNE; one whose salary is between $2,000 and $3,000 can get $3,000 additional, etc.

The amount for which a person is insured is payable, immediately upon death, occurring at any age, place, or time, from any cause, to the beneficiary designated by the insured.

This insurance plan contains many liberal features not now available to corporations contracting for group insurance for the first time. Because of the operation of an old contract with the insurance company, for example, these policies all carry permanent and total disability benefits.

Disability Provisions Cited.

In the event of permanent and total disability, occurring before the insured person reaches 60 years of age, resulting from sickness, accident, or any other cause, the total amount of insurance will be paid in a lump sum, or instalments with interest, to the employé himself instead of as a death benefit.

In addition to all other causes of total and permanent disability the loss of the sight of both eyes, or the loss of both feet or both hands, or the loss of one hand and one foot, will be considered as total and permanent disability.

Under a special arrangement made by THE TRIBUNE it will pay to the insurance company a year's premium in advance on each policy, collecting from the employé in monthly instalments, thereby making the cost of the insurance even less of a financial strain to the worker and at the same time enabling him to avoid the additional charge for carrying insurance on a monthly payment basis.

Conversion Right Stipulated.

Persons leaving the employment of THE TRIBUNE have the privilege of converting their group insurance, without medical examination, into any one of the regular whole life or endowment policies customarily issued by the insurance company.

Older persons employed by THE TRIBUNE, men and women of experience whose services are especially valuable to a big newspaper, naturally are given an advantage under this new insurance plan. No longer need they drop their group insurance be-

OUTLAWS OPEN FIRE IN STYLE OF DILLINGER

A band of desperate gunmen, preferring to shoot at sight rather than be questioned by law enforcing agents, late last night turned a machine gun upon two state highway policemen who approached them near Higgins and Wolf roads, in the northwest part of Cook county, wounded both and escaped.

One of the policemen, Gilbert Cross, 28 years old, 223 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, was struck twice near the heart and once in the left arm. At the Des Plaines Emergency hospital, where he was driven by his partner, Fred McAllister, 32 years old, 828 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, it was said Cross had only a slight chance to recover. McAllister was struck in the left shoulder.

Lonely Lane Is Scene.

The scene of the shooting was a lonely lane, known as Old Wolf road, which forms a small triangle with Higgins road and the new paved Wolf road. The lane, which is about a mile southwest of the Des Plaines city limits, has been a favorite spot for spooners, and this fact caused Cross and McAllister to turn into it from Wolf road and investigate three cars parked there.

From the haste of the gunmen in opening fire the state and county highway police in charge of the investigation hazarded a guess that they might have been members of the Dillinger gang.

"We can't say who they were," averred Lieut. James Meyering of the county highway forces, "but it's certain they were people who would not risk questioning."

Sergt. Harry Bingham, in charge of the Dillinger detail of the Marquette police station, declared early today that he believed that the men were members of the Dillinger mob. He revealed that Capt. John Stege and his men have been working night and day for the last three days on information that Dillinger, or members of his gang, are in the Chicago vicinity.

Policeman Describes Shooting.

The story of the shooting, as related by McAllister, was:

"We were driving along in a squad car on Wolf road when we sighted the three cars in the lane. We turned in to investigate. As we reached the first car, which, like the others, was headed toward Wolf road, we saw a woman sitting alone in it. Outside this car and behind it, standing beside the ditch, were four men.

"'What's the trouble here?' I asked. I was in the driver's seat and nearest the first car, which was on the right side of the lane. 'No trouble at all,' said one of the men. With that the shooting commenced. It came from the group behind the car. The man with the gun was only 15 or 20 feet away and his bullets cut diagonally through the windshield from the left.

Could Identify Woman.

"Cross slumped down, gasping. I threw open the door and crawled into the ditch. As the three cars were being driven away I emptied my pistol. Then I got back into the squad car and drove to Higgins road and on to the hospital."

McAllister said he believed he would be able to recognize the woman in the first parked automobile. He could not describe the men he saw, other than to say they all wore stiff straw hats. The cars, he added, were all new Fords.

"It was a mistake for us to approach these people from the front," McAllister admitted. "We seldom do that, but it would have meant a drive of a mile or more to enter the lane from the other end and we took a chance."

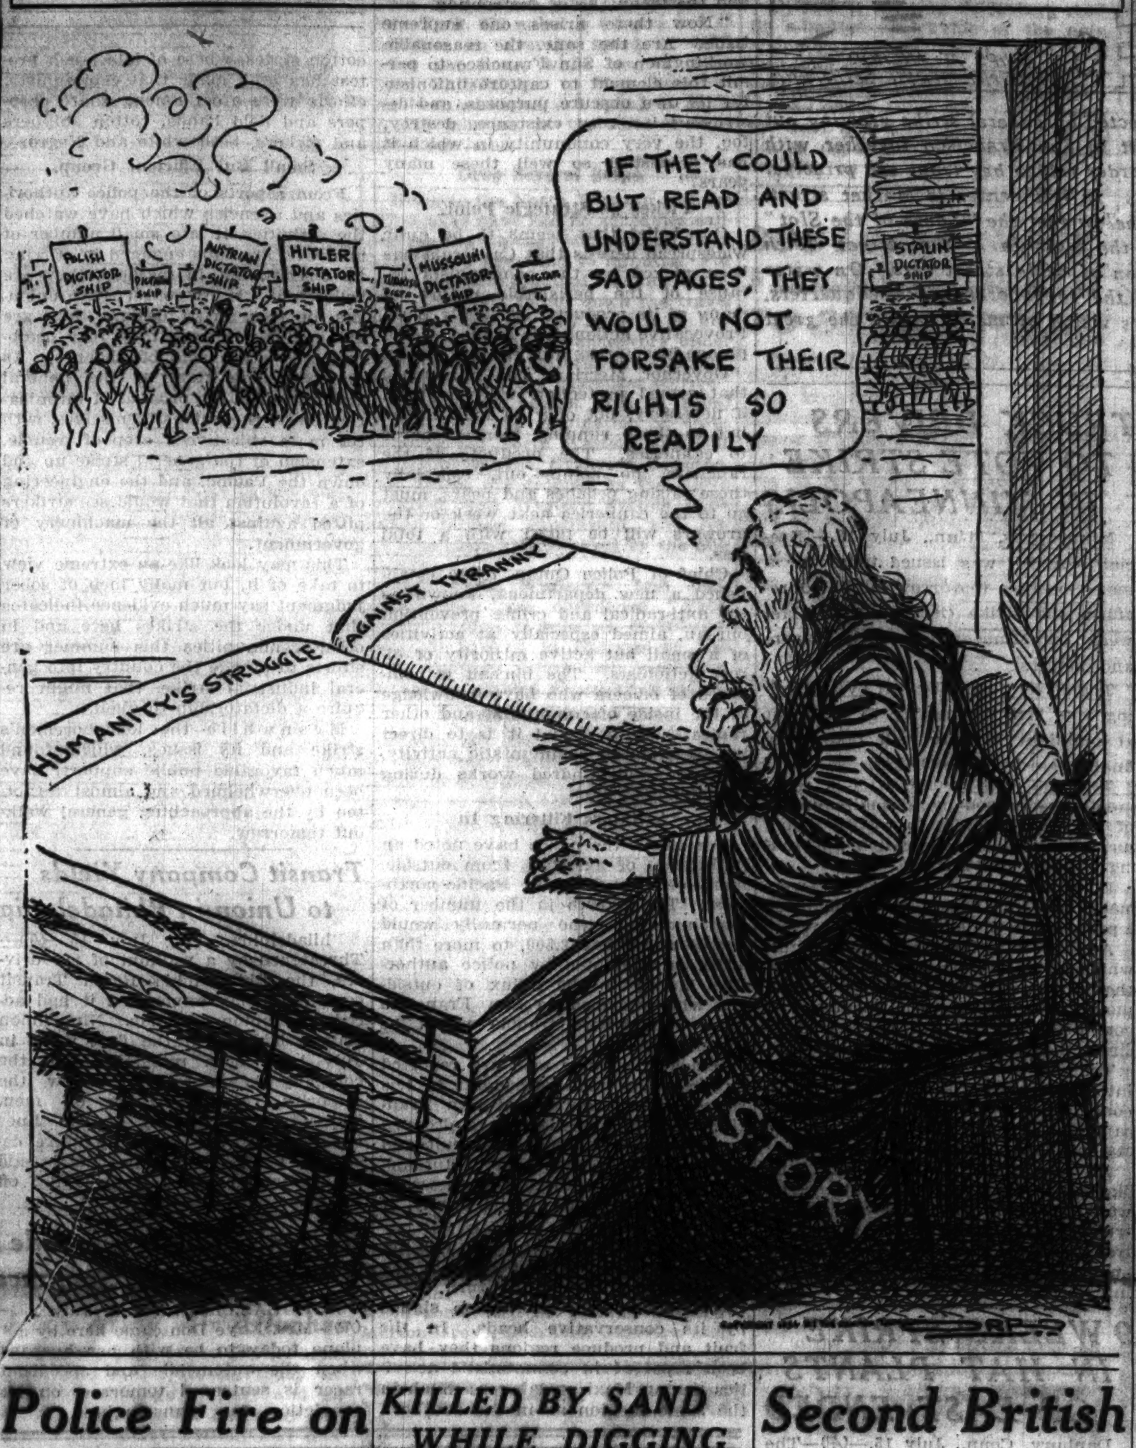
Seven bullet holes were found in the windshield of the police car. The bullets were of .45 caliber.

In their flight the gunmen drove into Wolf road, said McAllister, and then south.

Investigators were at a loss for any plausible theory to account for the presence of such desperate outlaws in so lonely a spot. An alternative to the guess that they might have been Dillinger gangsters was the suggestion that they might have been Touhyites.

The Touhy gang formerly was powerful in the northwest part of Cook county. Tommy Touhy, brother of Roger, who is now serving a sentence in prison for the kidnaping of John Factor, has been reported back in his old haunts and threatening a campaign of revenge against Factor.

MARCHING BACK TO THE DARK AGES



Police Fire on Socialist Mob in Vienna; 3 Die

VIENNA, July 15—(AP)—At least three persons were killed in turbulent political disorders in Austria today as several battles flared up and dynamiters continued widespread destruction of property.

Three were killed in a spirited clash between gendarmes and the outlawed republican guardists who were attempting to hold a meeting in the picturesque Vienna woods near Kaltenleutgeben.

Nearly 1,000 Socialists participated in the woodland gathering. It was a secret session, but was discovered by two Fascist volunteers. The Fascists were overpowered, but the disturbance attracted attention and a company of gendarmes rushed to the forest.

Gendarmes Open Fire.

Three Socialists fell mortally wounded. Among those seriously injured was a Fascist sympathizer.

As the shooting started the crowd dispersed, its members seeking shelter in the woods. Gendarmes gave chase and for several hours were rounding up prisoners.

Claims Socialists Started Trouble.

A communique issued by the government charges that the disorders today were fostered by Socialists of several provinces, particularly those who are members of the republican guard, in connection with an observation of the anniversary of the burning of the Vienna palace of justice on July 15, 1927.

The week-end wave of terror plunged cities into darkness, temporarily paralyzed street car systems, and resulted in damage to telephone booths, mail boxes, hotels, and cafés. For an hour last night not a street car in all Vienna moved because of the dynamiting of a distant power plant.

Hunt Clews in Nazi's Death.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 15.—Police today advanced the theory that Cornelius Zimmer, 33 year old Nazi who was shot to death in his apartment by three assassins yesterday, was killed because he betrayed German Nazis who had intrusted him with large sums of money to foment unrest in Austria.

Zimmer was shot by three unidentified men who appeared at his flat. When he answered their knock all three opened fire. The shots attracted a sister and brother-in-law, who fired on the assassins. The men escaped.

KILLED BY SAND WHILE DIGGING FOR BASEMENT

Clifford Raymond Walker, 31 years old, 2618 Drake avenue, an employé of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, was killed yesterday when buried under tons of sand in the newly dug basement of a relative's summer cottage on Fox lake, in Lake county.

Walker, spending the week-end at the cottage, was completing the excavation for the basement. The sand tossed out constituted too great a burden on the boards used to hold it back. The sand pushed these boards down upon him, crushing him.

Boat Hits Rock, Ed Wynn and Two Others Saved

Rye, N. Y., July 15—(AP)—Ed Wynn, the comedian, and two companions were thrown into Long Island sound today when Wynn's small cruiser struck a rock and the bottom was ripped from the boat. Life guards took Wynn and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barron of New York ashore in a rowboat. The trio had nearly reached Rye from Port Washington, across the sound.

Second British Trunk Murder Victim Found

BRIGHTON, England, July 15.—(AP)—Another human body was found in a trunk at Brighton, the second since June 18, when the body of a woman crammed in a trunk was discovered in a railway station. The body found today was that of a woman. With it were found the heads and arms of the torso previously found at the railway station.

Various reports said the body was that of Mrs. Violet Saunders, a professional dancer known as Violette Kaye.

Today's discovery, police said, definitly links the bodies and establishes that both crimes were committed by the same person or persons.

Find Bloodstained Clothing.

The body of the woman was found in an apartment house on Kemp street. In addition to the trunk the police took possession of a quantity of bloodstained clothing belonging to a woman.

The tray of the trunk found today was said to fit precisely into the trunk in which the first body was found and from which the tray was missing.

Authorities found a quantity of correspondence which they said will probably be a valuable aid in throwing light on both crimes. The woman apparently had been killed by hammer blows on the back of the head. Sir Bernard Spilsbury, home office pathologist, said the body found today had been dead longer than the body found in the railway station.

REOPEN TUFVERSON PROBE.

Police searching for clews to the disappearance of Miss Agnes Tufverson concentrated their efforts in a hunt for a black trunk, presumably the property of Capt. Ivan Poderjay. Miss Tufverson vanished shortly after her marriage to Poderjay.

The interest of authorities in New York and London was aroused by the fact that the latest body found in England was in a black trunk.

Scotland Yard soon satisfied itself that the torso of the first body was not that of the missing American woman because there was no abdominal scar. Miss Tufverson was known to have had an operation for appendicitis.

With the finding of the second body authorities immediately reopened all phases of the inquiry into the disappearance of Miss Tufverson. A new check was being made of a report that when Capt. Poderjay left America he guarded his stateroom on an ocean liner carefully.

REDS SEEKING A REVOLT BLAMED FOR BIG STRIKE

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

San Francisco, Cal., July 15.—[Special.]—San Francisco's strike is aimed to tie up transportation and food supplies for more than a million people. Public officials and many others hold that the strike has at its bottom an effort by a radical minority, some of them communists, to bring about an industrial revolution on the Pacific coast.

Unionism in San Francisco, one of the greatest union towns in America, has been under conservative leadership. But of late its counsel has been ignored, and under pressure from a radical element, a comparatively small strike, that of the longshoremen, has been built up and engineered until tomorrow it takes on gigantic proportions.

San Francisco's great dailies this morning took the general view that the second strike is a move in the direction of an industrial revolution. They set forth that the labor organizations in the district are fundamentally common sense and conservative, but that radical ringleaders, trained in the technique of revolution, have captured the imaginations of much of the membership.

Public in Sympathy.

From the outset sympathy of the public appears to have been with the longshoremen in their grievances. The main things sought by the longshoremen were recognition of the unions and control of the hiring halls, or the unofficial labor agency from which crews of stevedores are recruited when a ship comes in with a cargo to be moved. Recognition, it has been pointed out by the Roosevelt arbitration board, has been granted, and agreement was reached with the old conservative leaders of the strikers to submit the issues to arbitration, as agreed to by the employers.

This agreement was kicked through the Golden Gate by the men after much speechmaking by Harry Bridges, leader of the marine strike committee. Bridges is an Australian who is said to have taken out his first papers. The general strike which has grown out of the longshoremen's dispute is accounted by many labor analysists as largely due to agents provocateurs who have started into the region and have kept fanning the troubles.

Toughs Face Soldiers.

Tough looking customers, many of them declared to be strangers, are loafing on the street facing the ferries where 2,000 guardsmen are mobilized. In the battle between conservatives and radicals in the unions the radicals are declared to be a small minority, but trained in the tactics of intimidation.

The situation is held to be somewhat akin to that in Seattle, where there was a general strike in 1919 which did not last long but which was held to have supplied much propulsion for the general strike in Canada later that year. This tied up transportation and industry in the western provinces for a week or so, and in Winnipeg led to "soviet government" for two or three days operated from Labor temple.

"Proletarian rule" was the avowed aim of the Canadian strike. Here in San Francisco competent labor analysists hold that in the background, concealed from open view, is an effort by some minority groups to foment the same sort of revolution.

Radicals Seize Control.

The San Francisco Chronicle today, in its analysis of the strike situation, says the sane, conservative unionists are finding control of the leadership snatched from them by radicals who are seeking both sabotage of the trades union movement, and are seeking a revolution.

"Organized labor," it says, "and communism have nothing in common. There are no unions in Russia, where these radicals get their orders.

San Francisco, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—An additional 2,000 National Guardsmen were ordered into San Francisco tonight to reënforce the 2,000 guardsmen already on duty, after violence and vandalism had broken out on the eve of a general labor strike.

Union leaders predicted some 50,000 laborers would walk out on strike at 8 a. m. tomorrow, further paralyzing activities in the metropolitan area of 1,300,000 residents.

The additional troops were ordered shortly after acting Gov. Frank Merriam had said at Lodi he would use troops if necessary to convoy produce trucks into San Francisco, which is confronted with a serious food shortage.

Shelves of grocery stores gaped in the face of a food shortage that grew by the hour. Fresh meat was lacking. Dozens of restaurants closed.

Martial Law Not Impending.

The troops are expected in the city by morning, headquarters here said, from San Luis Obispo, south of here, where the annual summer encampment is in progress.

There was no announcement of any impending martial law declaration. The reënforcements, so far as could be learned, will augment the water front forces, called into action a week ago last Thursday after a riotous day in which two persons died and more than 30 were shot in withering police fire, as authorities battled strikers and sympathizers.

The city was in a virtual siege. The paralyzing effect of the general strike hit every home in the bay district despite the fact that the walkout was not scheduled to begin until tomorrow morning.

132,000 in Walkout.

Sixty thousand union men in San Francisco—from painters to jewelers—joined 45,000 workmen in Oakland in the desperate maneuver, designed to help 27,000 Pacific coast longshoremen and marine workers, idle two months, in a demand for changed working conditions.

A dock guard, Robert Pearson, 25, fell under the slashing bayonet of one of the National Guardsmen rushed to San Francisco two weeks ago after two men were killed in fighting between police and pickets seeking to prevent the movement of ship cargoes through the use of nonunion labor. The sentry said Pearson attempted to seize his bayonet. His injuries were not serious.

Looters smashed the windows of Oakland food stores, attempting to take necessities by force. Police patrol cars sirened through the streets to answer numerous riot calls.

Other soldiers were stoned by men who crept up behind a box car. The sentries' challenge to halt was ignored and they fired shots at the prowlers, who fled.

Moving rapidly to nip expected outbreaks of violence, Chief of Police William J. Quinn hastily swore in 150 emergency patrolmen. They were the first of 500 men authorized by Mayor Angelo Rossi to cope with a situation he described as worse than the 1906 earthquake and fire.

Car Men Leave Jobs.

The 4,800 employés of the Market street railway drove their cars into the barns at 2 a. m. today. They had voted to walk out in advance of the general strike order, effective at 8 a. m.

Municipal cars still continued to operate on deserted streets, but it was reported they would cease tomorrow morning. Fear was expressed the cars might be attacked by strike pickets and the lives of passengers and crews endangered.

In Oakland the employés of street

c[illegible]rs operated by the key system voted to j[illegible]in the strike. The status of ferryboat crews remained in doubt. It was reported the men had contracts with the transportation companies which might prevent them from quitting their jobs.

Meanwhile the strike committee of 25 members, representing all the unions here, held a hurried meeting to outline plans when the strike order becomes effective tomorrow.

The committee said milk and bread would be delivered to homes until further notice.

There was an unverified rumor the strikers would attempt to haul food from outlying districts to supply their own families.

Many grocery stores, which had sold out their supplies to apparently agitated residents, closed and barred their doors.

Downtown restaurants, unable to obtain fresh meat and other supplies, were preparing to discontinue service.

Only a few automobiles, many of them on official business, ventured down town.

Policemen patroled their beats in pairs and extra officers were detailed to watch newspaper plants. A brick was hurled at a passerby on Mission street, crashing through the window of a morning newspaper.

New riot equipment was issued to the mounted police. Horses were equipped with special goggles. Mounted officers were given gas equipment, long range firearms and new type protective helmets.

In the San Francisco Presidio were 800 seasoned soldiers of the regular army, a powerful machine available in eventualities, but officers there said they had received no call as yet and expected none.

Total More than 185,000.

As nearly as could be computed—there were no official figures available—the numerical aspects of the strike were as follows:

On strike in Pacific coast ports: 27,900 longshoremen and members of maritime unions.

On strike in San Francisco, Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley, and adjacent smaller municipalities, 22,300 sympathetic workers, and about 8,000 longshoremen and marine workers.

Under pledge to strike in San Francisco, 11,200 plus the memberships of 16 unions for which there were no estimates.

Pledged to strike in the East bay area Tuesday, 32,000.

Considering strike action in Contra Costa county, adjoining the East bay cities, 9,000.

This accounted for a total of 82,530 in the bay area. The remainder of the approximately 100,000 union workers were scheduled either to remain on their jobs under emergency classifications or to take strike votes later.

Make No New Peace Move.

The waterfront employers here, headed by Thomas G. Plant, made no move today toward further negotiations. But from Portland came a report that efforts were under way to unite organized labor of the Pacific northwest in a move to induce peaceful settlement of the waterfront strike.

Acting Governor Merriam proclaimed the intention of the state to keep highways open to San Francisco so that foodstuffs might be brought in to prevent starvation among the citizens. E. Raymond Cato, chief of the state highway patrol, immediately instructed his officers to police the highways and provide safe passage for trucks through the picket lines.

The pickets, however, increased their activities and stopped a number of private automobiles.

In Oakland a man and his wife who had succeeded in purchasing some fresh vegetables were halted by pickets who opened the rear compartment of the motor car and dumped the vegetables on the street.

Plan to House Workers.

A number of business establishments were reported to have engaged entire suites in downtown hotels for their employés, to enable them to reach their work if the ferryboats should quit running.

Booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon, six striking longshoremen and seamen were arrested by San Pedro, Cal., police while speeding after a car loaded with nonunion workers.

Hidden in the automobile of the six were mimeographed lists of names of nonunion workers and car license numbers, Police Captain William Hynes said.

PUSH PORTLAND STRIKE

Portland, Ore., —July 15.—(AP)—The policy committee of Portland unions announced today it was "proceeding with all possible haste to prepare plans for a general strike."

One member of the policy committee was reported as saying unofficially that the call for a general walkout, if issued, will be for Wednesday. The committee announced an attempt will be made to give at least 24 hours notice.

It was understood more than 60 local unions have voted overwhelmingly for a general strike. Balloting of other unions progressed.

The policy committee declared its effort to promote a settlement of the water front strike has been "completely defeated by the action of shipowners in repudiating their former agreements to submit to arbitration the demands of the marine crafts."

"Can't Hold Them Off."

Commenting on prospects of a general strike, a committee member said: "We won't be able to hold them off much longer. Too many of the local unions are raring to go out. The committee has tried its utmost to keep Portland out of the throes of a general strike."

A conference governor Julius L. Meier held with union officials Saturday night apparently failed to alter the situation here.

"There is no new plan in the air that I know of," said Ben T. Osborne, executive secretary of the Oregon state federation of labor. "It is too late to do much now."

SAN FRANCISCO STRIKE ZONE

WORKERS' COMMITTEE AT HARRIMAN MILLS SNUBS NRA PROPOSAL

Harriman, Tenn., July 15.—(AP)—A committee representing 623 workers who lost their jobs when the Harriman hosiery mill closed recently after losing its Blue Eagle returned from Washington today and reported they had refused to agree to a proposal made by A. R. Glancy, NRA official, looking toward settlement of the controversy.

The NRA, in removing the mill's Blue Eagle, charged the mill officials with refusing to bargain collectively with employes who went on a strike last October.

Joe Long, one of the three members of the committee, said Glancy told them he had proposed that the mill limit employment to one wage earner in a family, making discharges from present employes to meet the requirement, and placing 50 strikers.

"Glancy wanted us to agree to work with the 50 strikers if they were returned by the mill," Long said.

"I told him that if we brought that bunch of strikers back in the mill there would be trouble. We refused to agree to Glancy's proposal."

TRUCK DRIVERS TO VOTE STRIKE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 15.—[Special.]—A call was issued today for a mass meeting tomorrow night to reaffirm the strike decision made last week by Minneapolis truck drivers and helpers.

The drivers, who decided by a standing vote last Wednesday to walk out at midnight Monday, will take their final action by secret ballot.

The call was issued after a mass meeting arranged by a small number of drivers opposed to striking had turned into a demonstration applauding the proposed strike.

Efforts to avert the strike were made by Gov. Olson, who submitted a proposal to the labor leaders.

At the meeting tomorrow night, which union leaders declare will show the strike supported by the unanimous vote of its 6,000 members, a committee of 100 will be elected to direct the strike.

Tonight union officials again went into conference with E. H. Dunnigan, conciliation commissioner of the department of labor, Gov. Olson, and the regional labor board.

All admitted that there was little likelihood of an agreement which would prevent the renewal of the truck strike which in May tied up transportation for 10 days in Minneapolis and resulted in two deaths during rioting.

9 WEEKS' STRIKE IN HAT PLANTS OF EAST ENDED

Danbury, Conn., July 15.—(AP)—The nine weeks' strike of 1,000 hatters' fur workers was settled today. Five factories here will be opened as the employés return to work tomorrow.

The settlement came early today after a series of conferences between the manufacturers and the workers' union representatives.

Conservative Counsel Is Ignored by Unions.

of San Francisco to permit these communists to use them for their purpose of wreckage, a wreckage bound to carry the unions down with it?"

In similar vein the San Francisco Examiner, after lauding the unions and their old leadership, dwells upon the radical minority.

"Some, a very few," it says, "comprise that skilful minority which may be so radical as to defy all reasonable settlement—to whom the word communist may justly be applied. These are trained in the tactics of revolution and the technique of destruction.

"Now there arises one supreme issue: Are the sane, the reasonable workingmen of San Francisco to permit this element to capture unionism for its own obscure purposes, and destroying its very existence, destroy, too, the very community in which it has flourished so well these many years?"

Picked as Strategic Point.

One belief that seems to be quite widespread here is that California has been picked by the communists because of the perishable nature of many of its products, especially fruit. Provocative action, it is argued, would plunge large areas quickly into action.

Governor Merriam has announced that armed protection will be given, if necessary, not only to food trucks but to those running from orchards to canneries. The products of the ranchers, he points out, especially those raising peaches and pears, must go to the canneries next week or the growers will be faced with a total loss.

Chief of Police Quinn today established a new department, known as the anti-radical and crime prevention bureau, aimed especially at activities of a small but active minority of direct actionists. The bureau is composed of officers who have knowledge of the inside of communist and other radical activities, and it is to direct its attention to communistic activity, sabotage and kindred works during the strike.

Agitators Filtering In

For weeks the police have noted an infiltration of agitators from outside, many of them from the Pacific northwest. The growth in the number of longshoremen, who normally would not be more than 2,500, to more than 4,000, is attributed by police authorities largely to the influx of outsiders who swarmed to San Francisco as a spot where trouble might be fomented.

Bands of strange men are reported by the police to have sought to terrorize farmers outside of San Francisco. Groups of them have dropped upon roadside stalls where fruit and vegetables have been sold to automobile customers, with threats to wreck the stalls and beat up the family, if more were sold.

They crashed into the union and are held to have been instrumental in getting the membership to turn down the agreement for arbitration signed by its conservative heads. In the fruit and produce regions they have been reported in communistic activities among Mexican laborers much in the same fashion as in the southern cotton states, where of late much protest has been made that communistic efforts were afoot among share croppers and field hands, cotton shippers and pickers, both white and Negro.

Small But Efficient Group.

From reports of the police authorities and agencies which have watched the activities, it is a small number of men who are thus engaged in stirring up discord, but in methods they are belligerent. Many conservative unionists in this strike declare they are going along because they fear bombings and other acts of violence. As many insiders view it, the general strike itself is the product of intimidation inside the unions themselves, with the main objective a crop of trouble, extension of the general strike up and down the Pacific, and the engineering of a revolution that would see strikers pitted against all the machinery of government.

This may look like an extreme view to take of it, but many men of sober judgment say much evidence indicates that under the strikes here and in other communities this summer are efforts to plunge the country into general industrial strike, that might require a dictatorship to quell.

Meanwhile the longshoremen's strike and its issues, which found much favorable public support, have been overwhelmed and almost forgotten by the approaching general walkout tomorrow.

GEN. JOHNSON PLEADS FOR SETTLEMENT OF PACIFIC COAST STRIKE

Portland, Ore., July 15.—(AP)—An emphatic plea for settlement by arbitration of the Pacific coast strike was made here today by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator.

"Why this situation should last 24 hours longer is beyond my comprehension," Gen. Johnson said after declaring the parties to the controversy "should sit at a table and settle this thing by arbitration."

"It is merely madness," he declared, "to say that any set of our people cannot sit down around a table without violence or bloodshed."

"Strikes," he declared, "are a necessary evil . . . but like wars they never got anything for anybody—unless it was bloodshed and black eyes."

Gen. Johnson, who addressed many of his remarks to members of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' association which concluded its annual convention here today, earlier had announced his intention of going to San Francisco to study the strike situation.

Intermittent showers fell as Gen. Johnson stood in Multnomah stadium and faced a crowd estimated by police at 5,000.

Transit Company Yields to Union in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—Threatened by a walkout of 900 drivers, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company today announced it had acceded to union demands. Nine union drivers laid off in the first week in July have been reinstated and the company has agreed to follow the seniority rule in laying off men. Thirty-two call boxes of cab lines operated by the company were destroyed today. Company officials said the damage resulted from laying off 300 men.

THREE DOCKMEN SLAIN IN TEXAS UNION DISPUTE

Negroes Are Victims; 4 Persons Wounded.

Houston, Tex., July 15.—(AP)—Seven longshoremen were shot, three fatally, here today in a renewal of waterfront hostilities between union and independent dock workers. Those slain and one seriously wounded were Negroes. Two other Negroes and a white man also were shot.

The shooting occurred as approximately 20 Negro independent longshoremen were riding to work at the docks. A coupe, believed by police to have contained members of the International Longshoremen's association and sympathizers, pulled up alongside.

Pour Volley of Lead.

From pistols and shotguns, occupants of the coupe poured a deadly stream of lead into the Negroes' truck and automobile. One of the Negroes returned the fire, wounding C. O. Reeves, a white man and union longshoreman.

Three murder and three assault to murder charges were filed against Reeves and S. P. Brown, negro.

The shooting was the most serious of a series of disturbances that have punctuated trouble between ship operators and dock hands at Texas gulf ports and at Lake Charles, La. A general strike of I. L. A. members was in effect for a time, but all except three operators came to terms with the union.

Car Driver Slain.

The Negroes killed were Frank Rowland, driver of the car; Jim Barnes, who also was in the car; and George Hardy, riding on the truck. The most seriously injured was Joe Henry, another occupant of the truck.

A tense situation prevailed at the docks tonight and police feared increased ill feeling engendered by the gunfight might result in further outbreaks.

Brown was charged with murder after occupants of the truck said they recognized him as having fired several shots into their midst, one of which killed Hardy as the latter fired a pistol at the union men's car and wounded Reeves.

ALABAMA LOCALS CALL STATE-WIDE TEXTILE STRIKE

Birmingham, Ala., July 15—[Special]—A state-wide strike of textile workers in Alabama was called here today at a meeting of representatives from 40 out of 42 locals of the United Textile Workers.

The date for the strike has been set, union officials said, but will not be made known until 12 hours before the walkout takes effect.

The strike order will affect 18,000 of the state's 35,000 operatives.

Union officials indicated that the strike would be the signal for a general textile strike over the nation. Time for the strike has been left to the state council of textile workers composed of three delegates from each of the 42 locals in the state. It was this group that met here Sunday in an all-day meeting at which the state organization was perfected and strike plan formulated.

More than 2,000 textile workers in Alabama who are affiliates of the International union already have struck.

Demands made to the employers include: Thirty hour week with $12 minimum pay, abolition of the "stretchout" system, reinstatement of all jobs abolished under the stretchout system; reemployment of all workers discharged for union activity and recognition of the textile workers union for collective bargaining under provisions of the NRA.

Boy Who Lost Arm After Gangrene Set In Improves

The condition of Leonard Pawlyski, 7 years old, 2214 North Sealey avenue, whose right arm was removed Friday at the County hospital, was reported yesterday to be improved. Dr. Karl Meyer, chief of the hospital's medical staf, said Leonard still had a good chance to live. Gangrene developed in the arm after a fall a week ago.

RISING COST OF LIVING PERILS RULE OF HITLER

Prices of Food, Clothing Soar in Germany.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, July 15.—Harder to handle than a Storm Troopers' revolt is the problem of how Germany's population will pay for food and clothing in the coming winter. Twice in a month Dr. Kurt Schmitt, Nazi minister of economy, has threatened "ruthless" measures against price raisers. The fixing of compulsory minimum prices for wheat and rye which was done to protect only the farmers had to be followed last week by the fixing of maximum prices to protect consumers. No farmer is to profit by the threatened famine.

Now Chancellor Hitler's government has suddenly applied to the farmers the ruthless grain collection coercion system of Soviet Russia. Under a decree issued June 27 the farmer will be officially ordered to deliver a fixed quantity of grain and if he fails to deliver it he will be hauled off to the penitentiary.

Food Price Question Acute.

The food price question is indeed acute. The official crop index for July 1 shows a serious deterioration compared with the already-alarming index for June 1. For four years wheat and rye, both winter and summer, registered "below middling." Oats and potatoes are half-way between "middling" and "bad," and meadow hay is on the brink of 'bad."

Hitler is in a dilemma. If he allows prices to rise in proportion to scarcity the city populations may revolt. If he enforces unchanged prices as he has done so far, the farmers, having little grain to sell, may revolt.

Nature has launched this crisis but the Nazi policy prepared it. Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his pre-Nazi successors reduced the cost of living index from 154 to 116. During eight months of Chancellor Hitler's regime it has risen to 121. Rents have not increased, only because thousands of governmentally ruined jews have fled from their homes.

Under pre-Nazi administrations the food index group fell from 153 to 106. It has recovered to 114. The clothing index has risen from 110 to 115 and is still rising.

Bishop Sees Hitler Today.

BERLIN, July 15—(AP)—In informed circles it was expected that Chancellor Adolf Hitler will reaffirm his support of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller when the two meet tomorrow for a conference that may mark the turning point in the protracted Protestant conflict over church unification in Germany.

Bishop Mueller was expected to report to the Chancellor on recent developments of the religious controversy, including the vain efforts to revise the reich church's constitution, the suspension of dissident pastors and the open rebellion in some church quarters.

The widespread strife has been the basis of repeated reports that Bishop Mueller would submit his resignation.

To Keep Out of Fight.

Although spokesmen of the insurgent elements maintain that at least 15,000 of the 17,000 German Protestant clergymen oppose Bishop Mueller because of his dictatorial decrees, it is believed in well-informed quarters that Hitler has decided to keep his hands out of the church question a while longer. He is represented as fearing that the church question, if agitated now, may become as pressing as problems of the Storm Troop organization, finances and foreign relations.

In the past few weeks Bishop Mueller has been relatively inactive, particularly since Hitler indicated his displeasure at the wholesale suspension of pastors by the reichsbishop.

Although the Protestant Reich is still a bitter issue, Hitler is expected to retain Bishop Mueller for a while in the hope that the rancor of the opposition may abate.

After receiving the Reichsbishop, Hitler may start a vacation. First, according to reported plans, the Chancellor may go to Bavaria. Then, according to persons in touch with his plans, he may go to Beyreuth to attend the Wagner music festival and to visit Frau Winifred Wagner, the composer's daughter-in-law and supervisor of the annual Wagner season.

Another nation-wide Nazi "tag day" was observed today. This was Rose day.

Girls and buxom young women—some 1,200,000 of them—were called from the sphere of activity the Nazis have set for them, kitchen and nursery, to sell the roses. There were 20,000,000 blossoms for distribution at 20 pfennings [about 8 cents] each.

Each rose had a ribbon bearing the legend "fuer mutter und kind" [for mother and child].

The money raised is to be spent to send mothers and children on trips for health and recreation, under the scheme of the Nazi bureau for the people's welfare.

CHICAGO KEEPS COOL WITH LAKE BREEZES AS OTHER POINTS BAKE

Chicago enjoyed comparatively cool weather yesterday while a large section of the middle west baked in a terrific heat wave. Mostly cloudy, with showers probable by or before Monday night and probably on Tuesday, was the forecast for Chicago and vicinity.

Typical temperatures reported from the heat afflicted area west of Chicago included Lincoln, Neb., 113; York, Neb., 113; Omaha, 108; Kansas City, 108, and Wichita, Kas., 107. The weather forecast indicated, however, the affected areas may get relief today in the form of rain.

Cooling lake breezes, as usual, made Chicago's weather comfortable. Beaches and parks were thronged as people turned out to enjoy the day, while the boulevards and highways were crowded with motorists.

Quincy, Ill., had the hottest day of the year when the mercury hit 107. It was the twenty-fourth consecutive day with temperatures around 100 or over.

Struck by Car, Boy Grabs Bumper; Rides to Safety

Evansville, Ind., July 15.—[Special.]—Claude Brown, 8, is little the worse today for his narrow escape from death yesterday when he grabbed the bumper of the car that struck him and rode it to safety. The car, driven by Dr. A. M. Hayden, struck Claude as it rounded a corner. The boy grabbed the bumper and was dragged several yards before the car could be stopped. He suffered only torn clothing.

FIRST STRIKE IN KOHLER PLANT IS SET FOR TODAY

Union Seeks 65 Cents an Hour.

Kohler, Wis., July 15.—(AP)—Kohler village, the "near Utopian dream community" established and developed during the last two decades by Walter J. Kohler, wealthy industrialist and former governor of Wisconsin, was prepared tonight for a strike demonstration.

The village of 1,700 persons was acclaimed six month ago by the National Society of Arts and Sciences as the model industrial community of the United States in which worker-employer relations were nearly perfect.

First Labor Trouble.

It was the first time in the history of the village, which two years ago had an assessed valuation of over $9,000,000 with a bonded debt of $311,200 and no tax delinquencies, that workmen employed at the Kohler plumbing and farm machinery manufacturing plan have taken such drastic steps to show that they are dissatisfied.

The strikers, headed by Arthur Kuhn, president of the local Federation of Labor union, will begin picketing the plant tomorrow morning. The union claims a membership of more than 1,000 of the 1,500 or 2,000 employés. It seeks recognition by the company, a minimum wage of 65 cents an hour and a 30 hour week. The company has its own employés' union, a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour, and a 40 hour week.

The Kohler plant was closed as usual for the July 4 holiday and has not been reopened. Officials announced it would remain closed indefinitely, leading to the belief that the march of the pickets to the plant tomorrow will not be accompanied by any violence.

Keeps His Employés at Work.

Although the village's troubles, mostly economic, began in 1928, when reduced home building accounted for the greatly decreased demand for the Kohler company's products, the entire force of more than 2,200 was kept at work full time, with no pay cuts, until February, 1931. Warehouses soon became overstocked, however, and since then both the company and employés have suffered.

It is estimated that 400 of the Kohler workers live in the village and the others come from Sheboygan and Sheboygan Falls, neighboring communities. The company has favored "home" workers for jobs whenever possible, officials said.

During the last week union leaders have made demands on the company and Kohler has replied with a statement of principles in which the workers were assured of bargaining rights under the NRA and the codes under which the company operates.

'DILLINGER' AWAITED BY ARMED GREETERS; FIND IT'S WRONG MAN

Columbus, O., July 15.—(AP)—G. Clay Baker of Topeka, Kas., commissioner of workmen's compensation for Kansas, arrived in Columbus today by airplane to be greeted by eight patrolmen armed with machine guns and sawed-off shotguns.

As he alighted from the plane, Patrolman R. A. Phillips announced to his fellows, "Aw, that isn't Dillinger."

A woman in Indianapolis started the scare. She called Columbus police to warn them that a man resembling John Dillinger and registered as "Mr. Baker of Kansas City" had boarded a plane en route to Washington, D. C.

Mindful that three Dillinger henchmen, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley, and Russell Clark, are in the Ohio penitentiary here, police arranged to meet the plane in the style they thought Dillinger should be met.

Britain and Russia Will Swap Army, Air Attaches

MOSCOW, July 15. — (AP) — Great Britain and soviet Russia today arranged to exchange military and air attachés. Not since the Kerensky government has Great Britain had military attachés in Russia, and none from the soviet was received at London. Since the establishment of the American embassy in Russia all leading powers except Great Britain have had military representatives here.

LABORER KILLED BY TRAIN.

The body of Joseph Matucki, 30 years old, 2103 West Fiftieth street, a laborer, was found on the right of way of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Fifty-first street near Leavitt street yesterday. He had been killed by a train.

MILWAUKEE RUN BECOMES ONE OF FASTEST IN U. S.

56 Mile Average Beats New York Flyers.

Trains which make the 85 mile run from Chicago to Milwaukee in 90 minutes were placed in service yesterday by the Chicago and North Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroads.

The running time is the fastest ever scheduled between the two cities and compares favorably with the speed made by the best trains linking other American centers.

From station to station the average rate of progress is 56.66 miles per hour. The fastest run from Boston to New York, 229 miles, is 4 hours and 45 minutes, an average speed of 48.21 miles per hour, while the 91 miles from Philadelphia to New York, at the best scheduled rail speed, is made in 110 minutes, at the rate of 49.64 miles per hour.

Drop Several Stops.

Hitherto the North Western and the Milwaukee have had no schedules calling for the Chicago-Milwaukee trip in less than 1 hour and 45 minutes. For years the time required was two hours. The movement to cut down the travel time between the two cities is in line with THE TRIBUNE'S endeavors under plank 4 of its platform for Chicago: "Speed up railroad passenger service."

Part of the newest gain in speed comes from the elimination of three stops on the North Western and four on the Milwaukee. Evanston, Kenosha, and Racine are dropped by the North Western, and Western avenue [Chicago], Gurnee, Sturtevant, and National avenue [Milwaukee] by the Milwaukee.

The North Western's first high speed train was christened "Pacemaker" before it drew out of Milwaukee. It arrived in Chicago at 9:40 a. m., daylight saving time, yesterday. It was 5 minutes ahead of schedule.

Actress Christens Flier.

The return journey, started at 4:45 p. m., was made in 87 minutes. Three new coaches, a parlor car and a diner, on which rode 114 passengers, came into Chicago on the inaugural trip.

Jeannie Lang, motion picture actress, christened the "Pacemaker" with a bottle of Lake Michigan water. Among the passengers were representatives of the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce and the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

The Milwaukee road's first hour and a half train arrived here at 10:05 a. m. This road will have three trains daily on the fast schedule to Milwaukee and two southbound. Special streamlined coaches, now under construction, are to be put in this service about Aug. 1.

On both roads the trains, on the open stretches in the country, attain maximum speeds around 75 miles an hour, according to officials.

The Milwaukee's maximum speed is attained between Rondout and Sturtevant, a distance of 35 miles. Officials said that the engineers eased their speed somewhat in passing through Morton Grove, Deerfield, Glenview and Northbrook.

YOUTH UNDER ARREST AS KIDNAP SUSPECT AFTER SENDING NOTE

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—An idle youth, lately employed as a theater usher, was held today as a suspect in the case of 21 month old Robert Connor. The boy is mysteriously missing from the home of his parents in Hartsdale Manor, Westchester county. He disappeared last Thursday night.

The prisoner, Bernard Seidenberg, 20, a resident of the Bronx, is called the author of a note received at the Connor home Friday afternoon. It demanded $50 in return for "valuable information."

The police intimated the writer had promised to reveal data leading to the child's recovery by inviting Charles Connor, father of the baby, to come to a certain Bronx address "for further negotiation."

Mr. Connor and two detectives went to the address, a motion picture theater on the Boston Post road. Mr. Connor was met by Seidenberg, who was arrested.

Detectives say that Seidenberg readily admitted authorship of the note, which was signed "Oscar Green," but protested that he knew nothing whatever about the supposed kidnaping.

The Connor home was visited today by Gov. and Mrs. Lehman. United States department of justice agents are busy on the case.

BOY LEAPS THREE FLOORS TO DEATH TO ESCAPE POLICE

Richard Zielinski, 16 years old, 1416 North Paulina street, died in the Bridewell hospital last night of injuries suffered early yesterday when he leaped from the roof of a three story building at 1507 Wicker Park avenue in an attempt to escape arrest. His jump carried him into a tall tree, but he was unable to hold onto its branches and plunged to the ground.

With three other youths, Zielinski was siphoning gasoline from an automobile at Wicker Park avenue and Girard street, when Policemen Steven Brukewicz and Martin Martensen of the Racine avenue station approached. The youths fled. All but Zielinski were captured in the back yard of the three story building. He, more agile than the others, climbed to the third floor porch and through a trapdoor to the roof.

Policeman Martensen followed him and ordered him to surrender. Rather than submit the youth took the desperate chance involved in the leap. His neck was fractured in the fall. His companions were all locked up. They are John Ernst, 17 years old, 1756 West North avenue; William Dzincinski, 19 years old, 1547 Girard street, and Chester Lelo, 18 years old, 1614 North Wood street.

U. S. KEEPS OPEN EYE ON CLOUDS OF WAR IN EAST

Russ, Japan and Britain Are Preparing.

Plan New Parleys

LONDON, July 15.—(AP)—Discussions between British and American naval authorities, laying a groundwork for next year's naval limitations conversations, will be resumed this week.

The British government today received from Japan a request that the projected preliminary discussions between those nations be deferred until fall.

Indications were that the forthcoming conversations between Italy and Great Britain will take place before the negotiations with Japan. The American delegation expected to return to London when the Japanese arrive.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—With Europe perilously close to another armed conflict, it transpired today that high officials of the Roosevelt administration are watching with no little apprehension the war clouds hovering over the region of the Pacific ocean.

While they are confident the United States would be able to keep out of a European war, they have a feeling that the utmost caution and prudence will be requird to avoid being drawn into an outbreak of hostilities in the far east.

Japan is the disturbing element in the situation—so disturbing that war between Japan and Russia is an imminent possibility, between Japan and Great Britain a contingency by no means remote, and between Japan and the United States a perennial subject of discussion among the Nipponese, whose elder statesmen are much given to gratuitous pronouncements that a Japan-American war is unthinkable.

Russo-Japs Mark Time.

The Japanese and the Russians are resting on their arms ready to fly at each other's throats at the slightest provocation. The Japanese are rushing the completion of railroads in Manchuria capable of transporting quickly large bodies of troops to the Russian border. The Russians are rushing the double tracking of their Siberian railroad east of Lake Baikal.

The Japanese have a powerful navy, the Russians none worth the name. But the Russians have a powerful air force at Vladivostok. Before the Japanese navy could shell Vladivostok Russian bombers could be dropping incendiary bombs on all the important cities of Japan and the inflammable Japanese buildings would be going up in smoke.

By American army officers the Japanese army is considered far superior to the Russian. British military authorities regard the Russian army superior. The British view may be colored by prejudice, for the British are betraying the hope that, if it comes to war, the soviets will take the measure of Japan. Anti-Japanese sentiment in England is becoming noticeable.

Work Feverishly in Pacific.

Preparations for war are going forward feverishly in the Pacific theater. The British are working night and day to complete the great 50 million dollar naval base at Singapore which will control the western entrance to the Pacific ocean. Under the very guns of this naval base the Japanese are taking the iron ore that is being transmuted into guns and projectiles for their army and navy.

The British are at liberty to develop a great base at Singapore, for Arthur Balfour was careful to keep Singapore outside the area in which the Washington treaty decreed that no defenses could be strengthened.

Though denying any transgression of the limitations, the British have been working for months to place in a state of greater preparedness their island of Hong Kong off the coast of China. They have widened and improved a military road twenty miles long and made it capable of sustaining batteries of heavy guns. They have galleried the southwest sector of the island like Gibraltar, blasting the granite to make embrasures for big guns to the height of 1,700 feet. On the heights a new telescope has been mounted for detecting the approach of ships.

70 18-Mile Guns Placed.

About 70 new guns, said to have a range of 18 miles, reached Hong Kong a few months ago and were transported and placed in position with many precautions to preserve secrecy. The channels between the island and the mainland have been mined.

The Japanese have been building submarine and destroyer bases for commerce raiding on the shores of Formosa and the islets of Kotosho, Hokoto, and Kisanto, and also on the three groups of mandated islands farther east. Formosa has been strongly fortified. In carrying out these works the Japanese have been charged with contravention of the Washington treaty and have denied the accusation.

The deepened concern with which American officials are viewing the developments in the far east has been engendered by certain aspects of the tension in the relations of Great Britain and Japan, which have become involved in a fierce trade war.

The British have been the hardest hit by the recent industrial aggrandizement of Japan. The Japanese invasion of foreign markets in North and South America, India, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and numerous other regions, with textile and other manufactures laid down for less than the cost of competing article of British make, has proved a stunning blow to British industry.

The British have retaliated with quota tarif and other measures designed to keep Japanese goods out of the British Isles and the crown colonies, which is as far as the British government can go in this direction.

Japan has patently embarked upon an aggressive and far-flung campaign for the capture of world trade. Japanese industry is booming. It is turning out almost every important line of goods that is largely consumed, at a fraction of the cost of production in other countries, though often of inferior quality. The depreciated yen has boosted the Japanese export trade to such an extent that Japanese factories are working overtime.

Dime Store to Diesel Engines.

To realize the extent of the Japanese commercial invasion of our own country you have only to go into any chain store and note the marks of Japanese manufacture on the articles for sale. And if what you are looking for is a Diesel engine, for example, you will find that the Mitsuis of Japan will deliver one to you at less than half the cost of the cheapest American make.

Now, Japanese competition in foreign markets is serious for American manufacturers, but for the British, to whom foreign trade is bread and butter, it is stark tragedy. As things are now going, it means eventually the closing down of British factories by the score, an economic catastrophe the very thought of which chills the marrow of British statesmen.

Those who are convinced that the industrial rivalry of Great Britain and Germany made war between those nations inevitable are now predicting that Britain is contemplating war as the means of crushing its formidable commercial foe in the far east. They believe the only question in the British mind today is whether Britain must fight this war single handed or will be relieved of the necessity by some other power—that is, Russia or the United States.

Every little while something happens that causes American officials to suspect that the British hope the United States will fight this war for them and remove the industrial menace of Japan. They recall how the British, after subscribing to the Stimson doctrine in the Manchurian affair, ran out on Mr. Stimson, leaving the United States to bear the brunt of Japanese resentment.

Only the other day an incident in London revived suspicions here of what the British are up to. The British government gave it out that Norman Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, who is discussing the 1935 naval limitation conference in London, had proposed an Anglo-American combination against the Japanese demands for naval parity. The effect was to incense the Japanese against the United States. The truth was that the British government secretly proposed an anti-Japanese combine to Mr. Davis and what it made public was a part of Mr. Davis' reply.

Still Working on China.

Despite designedly disarming statements for the purpose of allaying the apprehensions of the occidental powers, Japan is steadily extending its influence over helpless China. Only within the last few weeks the Chinese significantly increased their tarifs on goods largely purchased from the United States and decreased imports on goods largely supplied by Japan.

A first rank navy is now the immediate objective of the Japanese and to get it they will advance an argument which America and Britain have employed in the past to rationalize possession of a large navy. It is the argument that the naval strength is required for the protection of world trade routes. Japanese merchantmen are now plying the seven seas carrying on a trade comparing favorably in volume and value with that of any of the western powers.

The British also have served notice that they will demand a larger allowance of cruisers at the 1935 conference. They have gone back to their Geneva conference program of 70 cruisers with a unit limitation of 7,000 tons. With 70 cruisers the British could bottle up Japan in the Pacific, particularly if they carry out a tentative plan to establish a naval base at the Falkland islands to control the Cape Horn passage. Jamaica would control the Panama Canal. Hongkong, Singapore, Australia, and New Zealand would control the western and southern approaches to the Pacific.

Seeks to Avoid Trouble.

Up to date the administration has given evidence of a desire to avoid entanglements with Japan's ill-wishers and to improve relations between America and Japan. There has been no renewal of the goading of Japan by Messrs. Hoover and Stimson on the Manchurian issue, and Secretary of State Hull, while parrying the efforts of the Japanese to obtain commitments supporting their course, entered whole heartedly into the recent exchange of good will letters between Tokio and Washington.

At the same time the administration is preserving a firm attitude toward Japan. It has announced that our entire navy will be returned to the Pacific in the fall. The Japanese professed to resent the retention of the scouting fleet as well as the battle fleet in the Pacific, the latter having been reënforced with the former at the time of the Asiatic disturbances during the Hoover administration. Now the administration has decided to send the scouting fleet back to the Pacific along with the battle fleet.

Foundling Pups Get Home and Mother

Fed from Bottle

Three weeks ago Dr. Natalie Ashmenckas, 2517 Blaine place, heard plaintive whimpers issuing from an ash can at the rear of her home. She investigated and found five tiny puppies half buried amid the ashes and refuse in the can. Since then she has been feeding them two quarts of milk a day and has persuaded her own dog Dollie, to foster the orphans. Yesterday Dr. Ashmenckas reported her small patients were were "doing nicely."

STUDY HEREDITY BY FRUIT FLIES ON SPACE FLIGHT

Effect of Cosmic Rays Will Be Examined.

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., July 15.—(AP)—One of the possible reasons why living beings on Mars, if they exist, are likely to be much different from humans, may be shown by the fruit flies to be taken into the stratosphere by Maj. Kepner and Capt. Stevens in their ascent from Rapid City, S. D.

The flies are expected to show the extent to which cosmic rays in large number, such as exist in the stratosphere, may produce the genetic changes that result in new species and in evolution.

The effectiveness of the rays in evolution depends largely on the atmosphere. Earth's atmosphere is heavy enough to screen out most of them from the surface where man lives. But Mars, a smaller planet, has a lighter atmosphere.

Depends on Atmosphere.

The fact that cosmic rays are capable of causing genetic changes in men, plants, and animals has been well established by laboratory experiments, but proof of cosmic ray genetic changes has been lacking because at the earth's surface they are scarce and their effects are difficult to identify.

Scientists have experiments showing that the human body stops sometimes a dozen cosmic rays a minute. This means that each ray hits an atom or molicule in the body and destroys it. Now and then one of these hits might be directly upon a gene, one of the molecules controling heredity. Such a hit would cause a genetic mutation, a change in some hereditary character.

Offers Heredity Study.

The fruit flies in the stratosphere balloon should furnish facts for more accurate estimates of cosmic ray effects on man's heredity. The eggs and bodies of the flies will be exposed to greatly increased cosmic radiation, so that their offspring can be compared with the known rates of genetic change at lower levels.

Living things at Mars' surface almost certainly are protected by more atmosphere than that at the earth's stratosphere level. Yet if cosmic rays affect evolution and there is a higher number of them at Mars' surface, the effect would be to speed up evolution on Mars as far as cosmic ray sources are concerned.

STRATOSPHERE CAMP AWAITING O. K. ON WEATHER

As soon as weather permits, Maj. William Kepner of the air corps and Capt. Albert W. Stevens will take off in the largest balloon ever constructed in efforts to go 15 miles above the earth for scientific observations.

The ascension — with its goal the highest altitude ever reached—is made possible through coöperation of more than 20 groups and several wealthy private individuals, Capt. Stevens disclosed.

Rob Drug Store Manager of $100; Patrons Ignored

Two quiet robbers last night forced Hans C. Pahl, manager of the Walgreen drug store at 4763 Broadway, to surrender $100 to them and then fled before customers and two clerks became aware that a holdup was in progress. The bandits, one carrying a pistol, slipped behind the prescription counter while Pahl was counting his receipts. When he had turned the money over to them, the pistol was concealed and the pair walked out slowly.

PARAGUAYAN ARMY HEMS IN BOLIVIANS ON 90 MILE BATTLEFRONT

BUENOS AIRES, July 15.—The Paraguayan right wing has established contact with Fort d'Orbigny, seventy miles northwest of Fort Ballivian and fifty miles northwest of Fort Gauchalla, on the Pilcomayo river, according to unofficial dispatches from Ascunsion. The battle front, about 90 miles long, now extends in two huge semi-circles. The Bolivians are fighting with their backs to the Pilcomayo river, which forms the frontier with Argentina, in a battle which has been going on for nine days.

Dispatches from Asuncion disclose for the first time the official version of the Paraguayan defeat at Canada Strongest in June. They admit that 1,200 Paraguayans were killed and that three battalions of infantry and two squadrons of cavalry were taken prisoners. Nevertheless, they declare that this sacrifice enabled the Seventh division to escape from the Bolivians after it had been completely surrounded.

Two squadrons of Paraguayan cavalry and four battalions of infantry held back fifteen Bolivian regiments, according to Paraguayan reports. The Bolivians, it is said, did not win a strategical advantage from the defeat of the Paraguayans, but changed their battle plans and retired to Fort Ballivian, where they are now virtually surrounded.

FLYERS POSTPONE ROUND WORLD HOP 24 HOURS

A decision to postpone their flight from 24 to 48 hours was reached yesterday by the American flyers who had planned to take off yesterday in a Sikorsky sesquiplane on a "trade recognition flight" to Russia and an around the world cruise.

Maj. Gordon M. Bryant, Chicago representative of the International Flight corporation, sponsoring the trip, said the Navy pier basin, on the surface of which the ship reposed, was too rough to refuel or make necessary repairs to the motors. The radio also needed repairs, he said. The ship will be taken to the ramp in Grant park, where the refueling and repair work will be performed.

The plane probably will leave tomorrow afternoon, Maj. Bryant said. It is scheduled to stop at Washington to pick up mail for Russia, will be fueled again at New York and then take off for Bermuda. It is to stop at Paris and Berlin, and after goodwill tours throughout Russia will return by way of Siberia, Alaska, and the Pacific coast back to the United States.

3 CHICAGOANS DROWN; MOTOR SQUAD SAVES GIRL

Three Chicagoans were drowned yesterday—one at Gage's lake, 15 miles west of Waukegan; another at a Lake Michigan beach resort seven miles north of Benton Harbor, Mich., and the third at Wolf lake, near Roby, Ind., a suburb of Hammond.

The victim in the Gage's lake tragedy was Joseph Krayner, 20 years old, 2019 Sheffield avenue. One of his companions, Martha Brod, 18, 1764 Clybourn avenue, narrowly escaped the same fate and was rescued from the water, unconscious.

The two with Martha's brother, Peter Brod Jr., 20; Rosalia Kohler, 15, and her sister, Katherine, 18, of 1715 Sheffield avenue, and Howard Livergood, 18, of 936 Willow street, were in a rowboat about 400 feet from shore when the boat capsized.

Livergood and other rescuers brought the girl to shore. All of the others, except Krayner, swam to safety. He had apparently been forgotten in the excitement. A pulmotor squad from the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois revived Martha but was unsuccessful on Krayner. All had been attending a neighborhood picnic.

The Benton Harbor victim was Norman Grendahl, 30, 3724 Sunnyside avenue. He and several others had swum out to a sand bar. All became exhausted on the return journey but all except Grendahl managed to reach safety. He sank because his companions were too exhausted to go to his aid.

Otto Perill, 28 years old, of 2476 Pensacola avenue, a radio shop employé, was the victim at Wolf lake. Perill was swimming with a party of friends at the time. He was missed about 4 o'clock. Police recovered his body shortly after 10 p. m.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Chane Rosevich, 92 year old inmate of the Jewish Orthodox Home for the Aged, died yesterday in the Mount Sinai hospital from injuries incurred Friday, July 13, when she fell in the home which is at 1648 South Albany avenue.

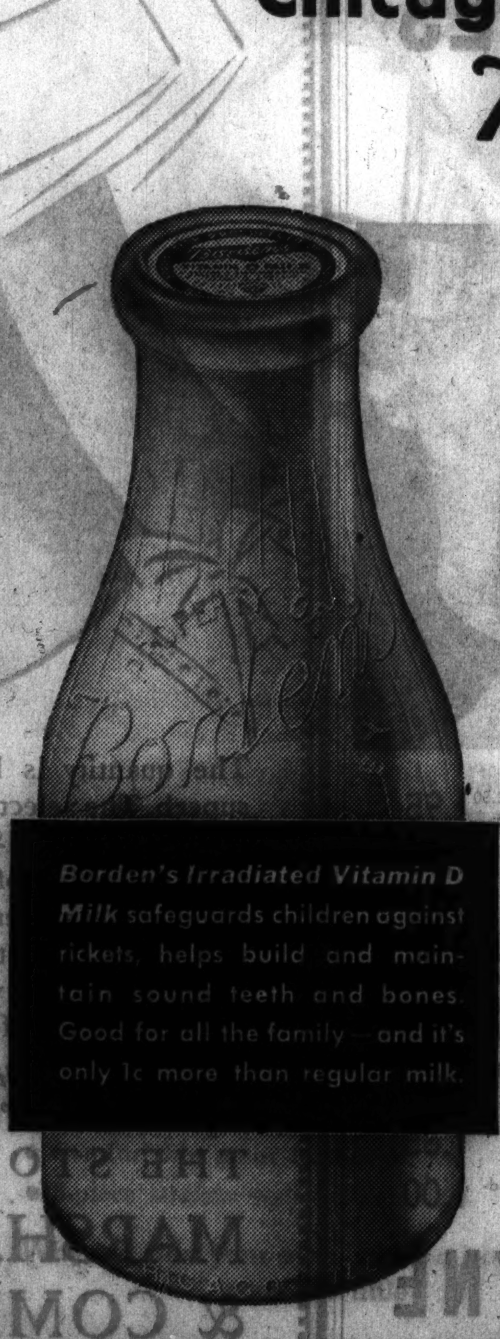
FOR 41 YEARS
Chicagoans Have Depended Upon
Borden's for the Best Milk



Through all these years we have developed a system of dairy sanitation that has been recognized by leading state and city legislative bodies.
To reach these high standards Borden's have had to maintain a full-time staff of graduate veterinarians, whose only job is to test the health of all cows supplying Borden's milk and make frequent inspections of dairy barns, milk houses, milking equipment and practices.
As a further check, Borden's chemists test samples from every farm just to be sure that these standards are attained.
All of this extra care and supervision costs money, but it gives Borden customers a feeling of security in every quart. You, too, will find that security by ordering from the Borden Milk Man, or calling BITtersweet 8600.

LAWYERS FEAR BUROCRATS TAKE ROLE OF JUDGES

Legal Safeguards Fade, Bar Group Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—The accelerated growth of independent commissions and federal executive agencies under the New Deal threatens the judicial branch of the American government with virtual extinction.

The stream of rules, orders, decrees and regulations which has poured out of Washington since March 4, 1933, makes the presumption of knowledge of the law impossible.

The rights of the individual are being lost in a labyrinth in which the clear-cut constitutional lines have been obliterated by vesting administrative agencies with combined judicial, legislative and executive powers.

Report to Bar Association.

These in brief were the vigorously outspoken conclusions of the report which the American Bar association's special committee on administrative law made public today, and which it will present at the association's annual meeting at Milwaukee, August 29, 30, and 31.

Members of the committee are Louis G. Caldwell of Washington, D. C., chairman; Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law school; Thomas B. Gay, Richmond, Va.; O. R. McGuire, Clarendon, Va.; and Charles B. Rugg of Boston.

Whether significantly or not, Prof. Frankfurter did not sign the report. Friend of President Roosevelt, known as the holder of advanced political and legal theories, he has been sponsor of many of the "brain trusters" who officer the agencies attacked in the report.

Frankfurter Travels Cited.

The report explained that because he was absent in Europe during the year and was unable to participate actively in the committee's work or to examine the report, Prof. Frankfurter had suggested that he be not included among those signing.

The report presented a detailed study of the independent commissions, various departmental bureaus and executive agencies which have been invested with legislative and judicial powers.

The committee recommended as an essential step to the restoration of the constitutional form of government, with its three separate branches, that the judicial functions of the federal administrative agencies should be divorced from their legislative and executive functions and be placed preferably in a federal administrative court with appropriate branches and divisions. Failing that, it was advised the judicial functions should be vested in an appropriate number of independent tribunals modeled after the board of tax appeals.

Would Halt New Boards.

A second conclusion called for the abolition of the independent commissions, the transfer of the executive and executive functions to one of the executive departments, and the calling of an immediate halt on the creation of new commisions.

A third recommendation enumerated numerous needed reforms in the administrative machinery, notably the collection in some central and available office of the host of orders, rules, and regulations all having the effect of law.

The committee saw in congress a Frankenstein which it could not control. Though retaining its power to regain the authority it had legislated away, congress might well find itself so lost to be unable to act, it was suggested.

Sees Congress Losing Power.

"The real danger," said the committee, "seems rather that an effective exercise of the power of congress to review and to veto will be made practically impossible by the multitude of uncorrelated agencies, the Gargantuan volume of their legislative output, the lack of authenticating formalities and of any trustworthy source of information, and the sometimes discriminatory and uneven enforcement of regulations."

"When, however, congress reposes judicial power in agencies directly or indirectly under control of the executive or of the legislature," the report continued, "and provides no method for judicial review whatsoever, or only a limited and inadequate method—when at the same time the courts show an inclination to accept these limitations on the judicial branch of the government and to recognize principles that seem almost to preclude a restoration of full judicial power—the regaining of the lost territory may prove a much more difficult matter.

Older Structure Is Blurred.

"The committee is apprehensive that federal administrative agencies exercising judicial in combination with legislative and executive powers are obliterating essential lines of our government structure and, for the original classic simplicity, are substituting a labyrinth in which the rights of individuals, while preserved in form, can be easily nullified in practice.

"Administrative tribunals with judicial power are courts in fact; without adequate judicial review of their decisions they are potentially at least courts controled by the executive or by the legislature. To the extent that courts are permitted to fall under such control, poignant lessons of history have been forgotten and a fundamental condition to the administration of justice—i. e., the principle of judicial independence—has been sacrificed."

Vast Extension of Power.

The committee avoided any expression of opinion as to the constitutionality of legislation, such as the NRA act and the AAA act, employing administrative machinery to effect its ends.

"The vast extension of the field of government operations and the use of administrative machinery therein," said the committee, "make it all the more important that the adjective side of the law be carefully scrutinized, and that this machinery be so constructed that it will bear the heavy load with which it is burdened.

"Enthusiasm for attractive experiments in the substantive field of law, designed to accomplish great social and economic purposes, should not be permitted to carry, like 'riders' to an appropriation bill, disastrous and futile experiments in the machinery for making laws or for administering justice. Further experimentation hardly seems necessary, for example, with the maxim that a man should not be judge in his own cause, or with the elementary requirements of due process of law with respect to notice and hearing before an adjudication is made affecting the rights of an individual."

Justice Is Disregarded.

"When judicial power is combined with executive or legislative power," the report continued, "a maxim fundamental to the administration of justice is disregarded, that a man should not be permitted to adjudge his own case. When an administrative tribunal is charged with investigation of alleged violation of the law or of its own regulations, and with the preparation and conduct [through its own attorneys] of the very proceedings on which it sits in judgment, and [again through its own attorneys] with the defense of its own decisions on appeal, it is doing exactly what the experience of ages has demonstrated to be unwise and, indeed, unworkable."

Difficult to Be Fair.

"Furthermore, a tribunal exercising such a combination of powers can with the greatest difficulty, and only if its personnel have an unusual share of judicial temperament and integrity, maintain the necessary aloofness from ex parte presentations of facts and arguments offered to them off the record."

"Having in mind these tendencies to attempt to remove large fields of legal controversy from the jurisdiction of the courts," the committee further declared, and "to place them under administrative machinery, to deprive administrative tribunals of safeguards necessary to the exercise of judicial functions, to reduce and so far as possible to eliminate effective or independent review, and to employ indirect methods of adjudication, the committee believes that it is not going too far to state that the judicial branch of the federal government is being rapidly and seriously undermined, and, if the tendencies are permitted to develop unchecked, is in danger of meeting a measure of the fate of the Merovingian kings.

Great Maze for Lawyers.

"It is not an exaggeration to say," the report declared, "that a lawyer in continuous contact with these federal agencies in Washington can find his way through this maze of conflicting and overlapping agencies only with the greatest difficulty, if at all, and with regard to some of them, has no trustworthy source of information as to the extent of their power and jurisdiction. The lawyer located elsewhere, not enjoying such continuous contact, and not having access to the flood of executive and administrative orders which legislate such agencies in and out of existence, is at a loss to advise clients, and it becomes hopeless for the average citizen to attempt to understand his government."

Between March 4, 1933, and June 15, 1934, 674 executive orders aggregating some 1,400 pages were turned out by the President, or 10 per cent of the total number since 1862. Many carry criminal penalties. Up to June 25, 1934, 485 codes and 95 supplements had been approved.

Law Output of NRA.

To June 16, 1934, the NRA administrator had issued 2,998 administrative orders. By the NRA alone it was estimated 10,000 pages of "law" have been issued in one year, as compared with 2,735 double column pages in the United States code. The committee believed it no exaggeration to say that the total of administrative "laws" now in force greatly exceeds the total legislative output of congress since 1789.

NOW A U. S. PREACHER O. K.'S GREAT BRITAIN'S DODGING OF WAR DEBTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 15.—Dr. A. G. Cummins, rector at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., today expressed the opinion that the majority of the people of the United States are willing to relinquish America's claim to war debts from Great Britain.

Dr. Cummins, who was preaching at the fashionable St. Margaret's church, Westminster, in connection with the interchange of preachers in Anglo-American churches, urged a real alliance between the British and the United States governments.

"Secret diplomacy must give way to international cooperation," he said.

"I think," he continued, "that a majority of the people of our country are willing to say that in such matters as indemnities for loans contracted during the great war, we are willing to forego these because of the inherent benefit that accrued to our nation when we made the loans."

66 WALK OUT ON TOBACCO MEETING IN CODE PROTEST

A meeting of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors at the Hotel La Salle ended in an uproar yesterday when the sixty-six invited guests walked out in protest.

The guests were subjobbers, members of the Chicago Wholesale Dealers' association. Their sudden departure occurred after they had tried in vain to voice their objections to the National Recovery act code as it was disclosed to them.

Max Schwartz, 1857 Komensky avenue, chairman of the dissenters, bitterly complained their hosts were "trying to cut our throats."

The situation, as outlined by him, is this. Yesterday the subjobbers who are the members of the Wholesale Dealers' association, received telegrams urging them to attend the meeting. The new code was read.

Under the code, according to Schwartz, the discount allowed to subjobbers has been cut 1 per cent. The subjobbers say this will necessitate discharging approximately 250 employés now working for subjobbers in this region.

130 AAA MILLIONS WILL BE USED TO PACIFY FARMERS

New Dealers Alarmed at Poll Results.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—A 130 million dollar deluge of AAA benefit money will be poured into the corn belt during the next few weeks in a deliberate attempt to swing the discontented middle west more firmly behind the New Deal.

Alarmed at the results of the Literary Digest poll of New Deal sentiment, which indicated only 55 per cent approval of the Roosevelt régime in the corn belt, the farm adjustment administration has thrown its check distributing machinery into high gear, determined to put upwards of 130 million dollars in the hands of corn-hog producers within the next month or six weeks.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, just returned from a speaking trip into Wisconsin, made no bones about attributing farm belt lukewarmness toward the New Deal to the fact that corn-hog producers have not yet experienced the feel of cash benefit payments from the government. In fact, the secretary declared, he found the administration even more popular than he had expected on his recent trip.

Admits Grumblings.

"The corn belt so far has had little benefit from the agricultural adjustment act, Mr. Wallace explained. "The farmers out there are in just about the same shape the cotton farmer would be in if he were getting 6 cents a pound for cotton. If that were the case there would be some grumbling against the Democrats even in the south."

"In the corn belt they are almost instinctively Republican," he added significantly. "They only vote Democratic during a relapse."

An inrush of nearly 150 millions in cash money during the next few weeks, Mr. Wallace admitted, will go far toward causing a "relapse" when the benefiting farmers go to the polls in November's congressional elections.

By that time, probably, the AAA will have paid out most of the entire 350 millions it plans to distribute to coöperating farmers under the corn-hog adjustment program. The 130 millions to be distributed in the present burst of speed represents only the first instalment. The remainder is to be turned over to the producers when they have complied with the terms of their adjustment contracts. Thus far, less than 10 million dollars has been sent out, and more than half of that has gone to farmers in Mr. Wallace's home state of Iowa alone.

Blames Delay on Money.

Even before his journey through the farm belt, Secretary Wallace frankly admitted that the corn country's evident discontent with the New Deal was probably due to the fact that farmers there had not yet begun to receive the benefit money promised them in return for compliance with the AAA corn-hog program. At the same time and with unusual naïveté Mr. Wallace explained that the New Deal's popularity in eastern industrial sections, as indicated by the Literary Digest poll, was due in large part to the fact that PWA, CWA, and federal relief money has been poured into the cities with a lavish hand. Even normally Republican areas, he opined, could not be expected to resist the generosity of the New Deal, and he appeared quite confident that all will be well in the corn belt once the federal corn-hog money has started flowing abundantly.

In this connection it was recalled today that the millions which Mr. Wallace so candidly expects to exert a tremendous influence in behalf of the Democratic administration, are drawn from the consumers of the nation in the form of processing taxes on food and clothing.

1,100,000 to Get Checks.

The extent of that influence was discernible in the fact that more than 1,100,000 farmers are slated to receive checks under the corn-hog program. The average check will be about $200. Some 176,000 of the benefiting farmers are in Iowa, about 120,000 in Illinois, 82,000 in Indiana, and 89,000 in Nebraska, but thus far, not one cent has been paid out either in Illinois or Nebraska. Iowa has received considerably more than five millions, but Indiana thus far has received less than $100,000. Mr. Wallace attributes the failure to get the corn-hog money out to the tardiness with which state and county committees are forwarding contracts to Washington. The AAA, he says, can turn out 45,000 checks a day as soon as the contracts begin to arrive in sufficient number.

Meanwhile, as November approaches, the AAA is bending every effort to expedite the distribution of wheat and cotton benefit money. Daily more millions are pouring into the hands of producers throughout the country and the torrent is becoming so huge that observers find it difficult to keep informed.

Brief Picture Presented.

WHEAT.

1933-'34 program—First payments totaling $67,073,788 already in farmers' hands; second payments of $30,000,000 starting out.

1934-'35 program—First payments totaling about 65 millions to start out in October; second payments of about 30 millions when farmers have complied with contracts.

COTTON.

1933-'34 program—Approximately 125 millions paid out.

1934-'35 program—First payments totaling 30 millions already distributed out of potential 50 million initial instalment; second instalment of 50 million to go out upon proof of compliance; parity payments additional of 25 to 30 millions to go out in December.

CORN-HOG.

1934 program—About 9 millions of potential 130 million first instalment now distributed, with distribution of full amount promised by end of August; some 220 millions in second payment to go out on proof of compliance.

ROOSEVELT HEADS FOR TINY PACIFIC ISLAND; TO DO MORE FISHING

ABOARD THE U. S. S. NEW ORLEANS ACCOMPANYING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, completely relaxed and dreaming of another fishing expedition, sailed almost due west today on the cruiser Houston, taking him on his vacation in Hawaii.

The President scanned the map of the Pacific and noted that his course took him near Clipperton island, where the deep sea fishing is reported to be excellent. He ordered that the Houston be headed for this little dot of land in the ocean, and present plans are to anchor near it Tuesday afternoon. If the weather permits he will try the fishing.

Today the President and his party attended a religious service on the deck of the Houston conducted by Chaplain Salisbury. The remainder of the day the chief executive divided between reading and resting.

Clipperton island is a little south of the regular course to Hawaii, and at noon the Houston was about 1,000 miles from it. At that hour the cruiser was due south of the mouth of California bay off the Mexican coast. Tonight sailors were setting back the clock for the second time since leaving the Panama canal.

FOUR RESCUED ON OCEAN AFTER CRUISER BLAST

Point Pleasant, N. J., July 15.—[Special.]—H. Craig Severance, architect who designed many of New York's skyscrapers, and three companions were rescued from the Atlantic ocean today after the motor of his 33 foot cabin cruiser, the Alfreda III., had exploded two miles off shore, setting fire to the boat.

The rescue was effected by Edwin F. Dodge, a partner in the brokerage house of Abraham & Co., 120 Broadway, who was returning from a fishing trip with a party of four men, including his two sons.

With Severance were A. O. S. Havens, 79, a Point Pleasant real estate operator; Roy T. Havens Jr., 26, his grandson, and Joseph Morrison, 24, of Plainfield, N. J. Morrison and the younger Havens were blown out of the boat by the explosion and were gravely injured. The other occupants also suffered burns and shock.

The four received first aid treatment on the beach, and Morrison and the younger Havens were taken to a hospital in Point Pleasant, where physicians expressed fears their injuries might prove fatal.

Irvin Kaufman and Arthur Nackman, partners in a cigaret vending machine business, were robbed of $225, cigarets worth $250, and their car last night by two bandits at the rear of the building at 5465 Everett avenue, where both live. The robbers confronted their victims as the latter were driving the car into a garage.

TWO N. U. CO-EDS AND 2 STUDENTS INJURED IN CRASH

Four Persons Die After Trafic Accidents.

Two Northwestern university co-eds and their student escorts were injured, three of them seriously, early yesterday when their automobile crashed into a taxicab that stopped for a trafic light at La Salle street and Chicago avenue. They were:

Miss Mary Cranin, 24 years old, 704 Michigan avenue, Evanston, who incurred internal injuries; Miss Mildred Sweeney, 23 of 431 Aldine street, cut and bruised; Hollis Peck, 24 years old, possible skull fracture, and Marshall Hammergren, 27, internal injuries and a possible skull fracture.

Both youths were residents of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house on the Evanston campus. All were taken to the Henrotin hospital. Benjamin Lieberman, 3632 Grenshaw street, the taxi driver, said he would sign a complaint against Peck, driver of the other car.

Four fatalities yesterday increased the automobile death toll since Jan. 1 to 648. The victims were:

Georgiana Bowers, 7 years old, 4151 North Claremont avenue, died at the Ravenswood hospital from injuries incured when she was struck by one of two machines which collided and overturned on the sidewalk at Belle Plaine and Oakley avenues.

Anthony Trainer, 22 years old, 456 West 42d street, a truck driver, fatally injured when a hit and run auto struck him as he was crossing Garfield boulevard at Ashland avenue.

Anthony Schultz, 48 years old, 214 South Campbell avenue, a junk collector, died in the County hospital of injuries incurred Friday when he was struck by an automobile at Jackson boulevard and Rockwell street.

Unidentified Negress, died in the County hospital from a skull fracture, supposedly incurred when she was struck by an automobile July 13. Another Negro, who brought her to the hospital, believed she was Margaret Jones, and said she had been injured in an automobile accident at Dearborn and 18th streets. Police were unable to verify this account.

Francis J. Coughlin, a brother of Thomas and James, was taken to a Dover hospital in a serious condition.

They were driving from Philadelphia to the Chesapeake bay for a fishing trip. Police said their car sideswiped a farm truck loaded with produce and driven by Arthur Taylor of Dover.

FALLS TO DEATH OFF TRAIN.

Irvin Mans, 30 years old, 652 South Kildare avenue, fell to his death between two moving freight cars of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad last night near Roosevelt road in Broadview, Ill.

WOMAN AND TWO MEN SEIZED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Go on Trial Today in Safety Court.

After three minor accidents yesterday, two men and one woman were charged with driving while intoxicated and were held for trial today in the new Safety court, where Chief Justice John Sonsteby has decreed that there shall be no fixing. This court was created after the alarming increase in motor accidents held to be due to drunken drivers and during the past week jail sentences have been imposed in a number of cases.

William P. McGarry, 29 years old, 551 Michigan avenue, Evanston, was accused after his automobile struck one driven by Herbert D. Pratt, 5527 North Campbell avenue, early yesterday morning, at Sheridan road and Hollywood avenue. Both cars were damaged.

Woman Hurt in Crash.

Carl Scherburth, 22 years old, 1747 Julian street, a waiter, was arrested after his automobile ran into the rear of a car driven by George Koris, 4507 South Washtenaw avenue, yesterday afternoon at Division street and Damen avenue.

Miss Stephanie Herbut, 21 years old, 1107 North Winchester avenue, riding in Koris' car, was slightly injured. Policemen James Douglas and Steve Simpson of the accident prevention bureau said Scherburth and his companion, Bruno Lochenmeyer, 1107 North Hoyne avenue, also a waiter, were incoherent after the accident, so both were arrested.

Hold Saloonist's Wife.

Mrs. Eleanor Strom, 34 years old, wife of the owner of a tavern at 2115 North Damen avenue, was held in $100 bail for the Safety court after an automobile driven by her struck one owned by Albert Rzevko, 2341 Armitage avenue.

The collision occurred in front of the Strom tavern Saturday night and Sergt. John Quill of the Shakespeare avenue station said Mrs. Strom had been drinking.

HAVANA HUSTLES 2,000 BEGGARS OFF TO INSTITUTIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, July 15.—Havana police today ousted 2,000 surprised and offended beggars from their haunts and rushed them in dozens to public institutions. Men, women, and children, who collect an estimated yearly income of $500,000 from American tourists and pious Havana citizens, were caught in the roundup.

The raid was directed by Dr. Santiago Verdeja, minister of health and sanitation. The government asylums, which provide free food, lodging, and clothing, have hitherto been practically deserted because the beggars found a lucrative living on the streets.

Crowds cheered as police chased the astonished beggars, some half nude, through the streets and bundled them into patrol wagons. Sixteen men, seized in a preliminary checkup, were found to have bank accounts of $2,000 to $5,000, six owned city real estate, 21 owned their homes, 51 owned several properties in Havana, and 36 were found to be operating a powerful dope ring.

Sea Gets More American Boys Than Ever Before

New York, July 15.—(AP)—The sea is calling more American boys than ever before, the Seamen's Church institute said today. Because many of the inexperienced youths are unable to find jobs on ships, the report added, they are sent back home or given other work.

THUMBERS RULED OUT IN DRAFTS OF NEW AUTO LAWS

Would Make Riders Stay Entirely Inside Car.

BY HAL FOUST.

Picnickers would be protected from their own folly, hitch hikers would be suppressed, and roadside merchandisers would be curbed under three amendments to the Illinois motor vehicle code drafted by Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, for introduction at the next session of legislature.

This is the season when the three nuisances are at their worst. Every Saturday afternoon, Sunday, and holiday on the highways in the metropolitan area are truck loads of young men and women or boys and girls headed for the forest preserves or some nearby lake resort with lunch baskets and sometimes a keg of beer.

Arms and legs hang over the side or rear of the vehicle and some "smart aleck" member of the party rides a fender, a bumper or the top of the driver's cabin.

Blow at "Hopping" Evil.

"Legs, arms and sometimes lives are lost by these merry-makers due to their carelessness in being care free," said Attorney Braun. "This amendment to the law would also permit prosecution of the youthful rowdies who climb upon spare tires, trunk racks, or rear bumpers of passenger cars in city trafic without the knowledge or consent of the drivers. It would prohibit any one from riding a motor vehicle with all or part of his body protruding from the side or rear of the machine."

The hitch-hiking provision would be similar to statutes now in force in eleven states of the Union, including Wisconsin but not Illinois, Indiana, or Michigan. The act would provide a penalty for standing on the highway to solicit a ride from passing trafic.

Would Strike at Robbery.

These "thumbers" are numerous on the arterials of Chicagoland. Some are destitutes, begging a lift from necessity. Others are youths "mouching" a tour as a lark. Some are robbers, as shown by police reports of motorists who have been slugged by those they would befriend.

The restrictions on roadside merchandising would hit the venders who peddle confections, drinks, and novelties at busy highway intersections. It would also hit the practice of suburban policemen and firemen of periodically selling benefit association tickets to motorists.

As the bill has been drafted by the motor club lawyer, however, the restriction is mild, merely barring these salesmen from the roadway and not from the entire right of way.

150 AGENTS TO START CAMPAIGN TODAY FOR STATE LIQUOR FEES

State investigators will start today on a drive to collect liquor license fees and to gather evidence to prosecute law violators, according to K. L. Ames Jr., state director of finance. The 150 investigators will visit every manufacturer, importer, and distributer to determine whether the state law provision that liquor must not be sold to unlicensed dealers is being obeyed. If abuses of this provision be found, a warning will be given first to be followed up by prosecution, Director Ames said.

CHINESE BANDITS FREE MISSIONARY SEIZED ON MAY 8

HANKOW, China, July 15.—(AP)—The Rev. Howard Smith, missionary, whose home is in Washington, Pa., has been released by bandits who abducted him May 8, it was learned today, and has arrived at Fowchow on the Yangtze river.

Details of the release were lacking, but the missionary, who was kidnaped near Penghsien, was understood to be in good health.

Mrs. Smith, who has been staying at the Christian Missionary alliance headquarters since the kidnaping, rallied with the confirmation of his release. She had been in a state of virtual nervous collapse.

For several days Chinese officials of Szechwan province have insisted that Smith had been released, but confirmation was lacking until today.

CHICAGO SALOONS EXCEED NUMBER BEFORE DRY LAW

Liquor Revenue Less, but Bootlegging Persists.

Chicagoans may not be drinking as much tax-paid liquor as in pre-prohibition days but, according to a survey completed yesterday, the diminution is not due to lack of opportunity. There were nearly 8,000 taverns in Chicago in the first six months of 1934 as compared with a maximum of 7,000 saloons before the war.

It is generally agreed that the quality of alcohol liquors is not what it it used to be. Also, it appears that the bootlegger still bootlegs and home made booze still abounds.

The questions about how much and what people are drinking arose from a dispatch from Washington, stating that internal revenue bureau receipts show the public is consuming only half as much liquor as in pre-prohibition days.

Taxes of 1915 and 1934 Compared.

Dr. James M. Doran, once national prohibition administrator and now chairman of the Distilled Spirits institute, estimated that on the basis of consumption during the first six months, America will use about 36,000,000 gallons of distilled liquors this year. Annual normal consumption prior to the dry era was about 84,000,000 gallons.

At the office of Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue for this district, a comparison was made of 1934 receipts with 1915 receipts. For the year ending June 15, 1915, the federal taxes collected on distilled spirits in the 1st [Chicago] district were $974,542, and in the 5th [Peoria] district, $25,655,281, or a total of $26,629,823.

The taxes collected in the same territory for the first six months of this year totaled only $7,144,511, which would mean an estimated $14,300,000 for this year as compared with the $26,629,823 in 1915.

Beer Revenue Rises.

In 1915 the tax was $1.15 per gallon and now it is $2 per gallon. The 1915 tax was on approximately 23,000,000 gallons of liquor. At that time Peoria was a big distilling center. The estimated 1934 tax collections would be on about 7,150,000 gallons.

Collections in 1915 on beer and wines were $7,410,709, and up to June 30, 1934, they were $9,601,098, but in 1915 the tax was $1 for a 31 gallon barrel of beer while in 1934 it is $5 a barrel. Taxes on wines are said to be about the same as in pre-prohibition days, and the $25 fee for a federal retail license and $50 for a wholesale license are the same.

Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki said about $2,000,000 has been collected at the port of Chicago on imported liquors, wines and beers, and this is on a greater import than in pre-prohibition time because it was supposed a great scarcity existed here and several times the government let down the bars on imports to satisfy a demand now found to be largely imaginary.

At the city collector's office William P. Geis, in charge of licenses, said the number of applications for taverns for the first six months of 1934 was 7,855, and that since July 1, 2,700 tavern keepers have sent in the cash for a renewal of licenses and they are coming in now at the rate of 700 or 800 a day.

More Women Patrons.

At one time Chicago had 7,150 saloon licenses but when the license was $1,000 a year the average was 7,000, bringing in a revenue of $7,000,000 a year, Geis said.

"High prices have cut down public drinking to some extent," it was said.

"Women, particularly, are going in for mixed drinks. They want to try everything that is mentioned. The bartenders' union lists 1,600 mixed drinks where formerly there were only fifty.

"Bonded 17 year old whisky sells for 35 or more cents a drink. In pre-war days the best whiskies were 15 cents a drink. The 17 year old whisky costs $67 a case. Seven year old whisky costs $45 to $48 a case and 4 year old runs about $44. Blended whisky comes at all prices.

"In many of the larger places blended whisky is used in mixed drinks. Some use 4 year old bonded liquor and the price in many night clubs is 90 cents for a cocktail or highball."

Recounts "Milking" Operations.

It developed as a result of many inquiries that most of liquor sold in the city is of the so-called blended variety.

One man qualified to speak as an expert said that much of the good whisky was taken from bonded warehouses during 1923, 1924, 1925, and 1926. This was done, of course, illegally, according to the expert, and the barrels were refilled with alcoholic blends which would register 100 proof. Those substitutes are now on the market labeled whisky, he declared.

Inquiry brought forth the statement that considerable liquor is still being smuggled into this country through the Bahamas and from Canada. Scotch that can be purchased abroad for $10 to $12 a case and smuggled in to avoid the $5 per gallon import tax, can be purchased for around $20 a case, a liquor dealer stataed, while ordinarily the cost is at least twice that much.

Stills Still Go Strong.

The alcohol syndicates were reported still in business, selling alcohol at an average of $2.50 a gallon to be made into two gallons of gin, or, with the addition of prune juice and sherry wine, two gallons of whisky.

E. C. Yellowley, in charge of the federal alcohol tax unit, has raided in recent months many large stills turning out alcohol as in the days of prohibition.

GRECIAN WOMAN ARRIVES TO SEE INSULLS; SILENT

Mme. Coyimzoglu Helper in Extradition Flight.

Mme. Helene Coyimzoglu, wife of a Bagdad date merchant, arrived in Chicago yesterday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, whom she befriended in Athens when Insull was there fighting extradition.

Accompanied by Mrs. Insull and Samuel Jr., who met her at the train, and trailing two cabs of assorted baggage, she was taken immediately to the Seneca hotel, where she will occupy a private suite. The Insulls also are staying at the Seneca. The entire party went to the Insull apartment for breakfast with Samuel Sr.

Praised as Loyal Ally.

When interviewed later in the day Mme. Coyimzoglu politely declined to answer questions. She said she was here just to visit her old friends and to see the Fair.

Mme. Coyimzoglu, who speaks perfect English, is youthful appearing with vivacious brown eyes and a fine complexion. She wore a brown and white printed silk dress and a broad brimmed white hat.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Insull have often praised the generosity and kindness shown them by their Greek friend during the latter months of Insull's stay in Athens.

Guest's Plans Indefinite.

The Greek government announced that Mme. Coyimzoglu would be prosecuted for disseminating false information concerning Insull when he escaped from Athens early in the year on the steamer Maiotis. This talk blew over, however, without action.

Mme. Coyimzoglu was reticent about the length of her visit. She said she did not know whether she would be here for the trial of Insull and his co-defendants on a charge of mail fraud violations in Insull promotions which is scheduled to open in federal court on Sept. 18.

RECORD THRONG JAMS FAIR FOR ITALIANS' DAY

Perfect Weather Adds to Colorful Fetes.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Thousands of Americans of Italian descent thronged the Fair yesterday to participate in ceremonies commemorating the good will flight of Gen. Italo Balbo to Chicago, made just a year ago. With the Italian-American program as the highlight of the day, and with perfect summer weather adding to the multitude of attractions, more than 112,000 paid admissions were registered.

Yesterday's crowds were exceeded only by the record of last Sunday, and by that only to the extent of a few thousand.

At midnight the official clocking was 114,546. The admissions of Saturday totaled 108,560, making the two day week-end total the second best for the seven weeks of the Fair.

40,000 Italians Attend.

While it was impossible to accurately gauge the number of Italian-Americans on the grounds, officials estimated that close to forty thousand were on hand to make yesterday the most successful national day yet presented.

The two highlights of the Italian program were the unveiling of a marble column in front of the official governmental pavilion and the radio address of Gen. Balbo from Rome. The column was presented to America by Premier Benito Mussolini.

Parade Opens Ceremonies.

Opening the ceremonies was a parade from the Court of Honor. Led by army and navy bands, the Black Horse troop and sailors from Camp Roosevelt, some 150 Italian societies were represented in the march. Dressed in national costumes, the paraders marched through the Avenue of Flags to the Italian pavilion for the start of the formal program at 3 p. m.

The speech of Gen. Balbo was brought from Rome by short wave radio, and at times was indistinct to the three thousand persons crowding the pavilion. He referred to the mass flight of twenty-four seaplanes, commemorated by the ceremony, as a bridge of good will between Italy and America.

Gen. Balbo, who was sent to Tripoli as governor of Italy's North African provinces by Premier Mussolini a short time after he returned to Rome last year from Chicago, made a special trip to Rome to make the broadcast.

Distinguished Guests Attend.

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES

THE Burlington railroad's streamlined train, the Zephyr, was placed on exhibition yesterday on the tracks south of the Travel and Transport building, where it will remain for the duration of the Fair.

Dorothy Le Fold, runner-up in the recent World's Fair beauty contest, who is employed by Wilson & Co. in their exhibit on the grounds, was the first to register in the radio audition contest to be conducted at the Fair by the National Broadcasting company and A Century of Progress. The auditions will be presented twice daily beginning Wednesday on the balcony above the north terrace of the Hall of Science. Entries are to be addressed to Newspaper Row, Hall of Science, and most include a stamped and addressed envelope.

Kathleen McLaughlin, women's page editor of THE TRIBUNE, will be one of the speakers at the afternoon session of A Century of Progress Better Housing forum today in the lumber industry's model home in the Home Planning area at the Fair. Mayor Kelly, Clarence E. Pickett, assistant general manager of the Federal Subsistence Homesteads corporation at Washington, Coleman Woodbury, secretary of the Illinois housing commission, and others will speak at the meetings. The morning session will begin at 10:30 a. m. and the afternoon session will begin at 2 p. m.

There will be 800 voices in the massed chorus which will feature the Good Will Center day program at 9 o'clock tonight in the Court of States.

Among the unit groups which will sing individually are the Carl Craven ladies' chorus, the Olivet chorus, the Chicago Welsh male choir, and the Fine Arts Glee club.

Paintings by two prominent Mexican artists, Orozco and Riviera, will be placed on exhibition today in the Mexican village near the south end of Northerly Island.

Bau?na-ga-bik, Pottawatamie Indian brave, yesterday raised a Colonial flag over Fort Dearborn in dedication ceremonies for a new exhibit of Indian relics in the south blockhouse.

The Mexican Tipica orchestra of 58 pieces will stop over in Chicago for a few hours today on their way to Grand Rapids, where they will play at the Lions international convention. They will be met at the Dearborn street station at 3:40 p. m. by the committee in charge of arrangements for Mexico day at the Fair, to be held Saturday. The orchestra will return to Chicago that day and will play daily concerts at the Fair during the following week.

SCOTTISH MUSIC OF HIGHLANDERS WINS FAIR CROWD

Canadians Plus Symphonies Furnish Real Treat.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Band music of an unusual sort, and unusually good, too, is being presented this week at the court of the Hall of States, A Century of Progress, by the Forty-eighth Highlanders band of Toronto. They are eye filling as well as ear filling, Scottish in plaids and scarlet coats, caps at rakish angle and banners flying, Scottish as well in much of its music.

In reality it consists of three units, a military band in full instrumentation, a band of pipers and drummers, a third of buglers and drummers. At times all three are heard in the concert programs, and if you do not believe that a large company of pipes and drums has the power to stir the blood, just go over some time before Friday and listen to this organization. You will be convinced.

Military Band Scores.

Over them all their veteran director, Capt. John Slatter presides with firm hand and alert gesture. His military band is as good as his pipers, and this is saying a good deal.

It has a solid, warm tone, brilliant on occasion, sustained and lyric on another, at all times with all the spirit in the world behind it. The music may be grave or gay, generally gay, and when a band piece is finished, Capt. Slatter lays aside his baton, takes up the pipes, and leads the pipers about the platform in a scene that by sight and sound fairly captures the imagination.

Symphony Honors Italians.

Both symphony orchestras celebrated Italian day in their programs yesterday afternoon, having similarly celebrated Bastille day on the afternoon before. There was one point of resemblance between the two. Both played Casella's "Italia," and, having heard them both, it was hard to tell whether Victor Kolar with the Detroit organization or Eric DeLamarter with the Chicago put the most spirit into its gay tones. Both performances captivated the audience.

Mr. Kolar added to the occasion by playing the "Roman Carnival" Overture by Berlioz and Charpentier's "Impressions of Italy." Mr. DeLamarter made his section of the program entirely from the works of Italians.

'EPIC OF A NATION' REHERSALS ARE BEGUN BY JEWS

400 Youths Train; Cast Has 5,000.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than 400 Jewish youths participated yesterday in the first general rehersal of the pageant, "Epic of a Nation," to be given July 29 in Soldiers' field as a climax of Jewish People's day at the World's Fair. Yesterday's rehersal, in which intricate symbolic dances received main attention, was held at the Morrison hotel. More than 5,000 persons will make up the cast of the giant pageant.

While the "Epic of a Nation" is reminiscent of the mighty pageant drama, "The Romance of a People," given at the 1933 Fair, yet the 1934 pageant will feature feeling rather than history. For instance, the mystic moods of Chassadism, a cult of Jews which flourished in Russia and Poland for nearly four centuries, will be depicted in a dance of highly emotional content.

Defense in Rhythms.

People of that cult learned the art of defense against persecution through rhythms which symbolized carefree happiness. They chopped their wood rhythmically; the Talmud was learned by rote and rhythm. Nothing mattered to them; nothing really existed except God and his law and will. Thus, under this simple creed, realities were lulled out of existence and happiness ensued.

But the Chassadic scene is but one of the nine to make up the great show. The Jew has turned his back on Chassadic self-hypnotism as a means of blotting out grim reality. The Jewish group sponsoring the 1934 pageant differs from 1933. This year the labor group, largely enlisted from strictly orthodox synagogues, is in charge. Last year Zionism was featured. With labor the center, the great climax of "Epic of a Nation" rises in the final Jewish scene, "Tribute to Labor."

Saga of Jewish Masses.

In that scene the Jewries of all lands are represented in a saga of Jewish masses. The tragic centuries of wanderings have been symbolized scene by scene. Work, henceforth, is to be the watchword. "The work of man's hands, whereby man shall be redeemed," emerges as the final theme when tribute is paid to workers of today.

I. B. Ury, general chairman of Jewish People's day, announced yesterday that 40,000 out of the 100,000 seats in Soldiers' field already had been sold. He said many chartered trains will bring throngs from other cities to view the great pageant. Blake Scott of New York, who assisted Isaac Van Grove in the direction of last year's Jewish pageant, is the director.

GUNMEN HOLD UP AGENT IN STREET AS SCORES PASS

Four gunmen held up R. M. Cobb, 8145 Harding avenue, Niles Center, a collector for a World's Fair ticket agency, in front of his office at 2326 South Michigan boulevard and escaped with between $600 and $800 yesterday afternoon. Hundreds of automobiles were passing at the time.

The robbers apparently trailed Cobb as he made his round of the booths which the agency, a private enterprise, has in different parts of the city. Three of the gunmen alighted and menaced Cobb with revolvers while the fourth remained at the wheel of the car. A pedestrian, D. N. Reason, 519 Arlington place, strolled along and was ordered to put up his hands.

THE END OF THE RACE! —and then he Smoked a Camel!

IT TAKES A MAN like "Bill" Horn, who won the Gold Cup in 1933, to wind a big racing hydroplane up to 3000 r.p.m. and hold her to a speed of 60 to 70 miles per hour...for mile after mile. And when he's tired Camels quickly increase his vim and energy.

YOU'LL LIKE this delightful way of "turning on" your flow of energy

Experience of Camel Smokers confirmed by Science

A famous New York research laboratory reveals that smoking a Camel produces a definite increase in your flow of natural energy. The effect is delightful, completely natural.

Many smokers have learned of this "energizing effect" in Camels for themselves. "Bill" Horn, winner of the gruelling Gold Cup race, refers to his experience in these words:

"The man who drives a Gold Cup winner needs the last ounce of energy he's got. After a championship race I 'break out' my pack of Camels quickly, believe me! In no time at all I get a 'lift' and everything is all serene! It's a swell feeling—just to smoke a Camel and be your real self again! That's what I do whenever I feel played out, and Camels never get on my nerves."

Try this pleasant and sensible way of ironing out fatigue and increasing vibrant energy. Turn to Camels and learn the truth of the saying, "Get a lift with a Camel." Like to smoke steadily? Smoke as much as you wish! Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand. They do not get on the nerves.

DON'T SPOIL OUR ALLIANCE, PARIS WARNS POLAND

Urges Warsaw to Support Security Pact.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 15.—A warning to Poland not to allow her recent rapprochement with Germany to interfere with the older Franco-Polish alliance, and especially not to cause her to turn down France's pet scheme of a security pact for eastern Europe was expressed today by Foreign Minister Louis Barthou. He spoke at Bayonne in the presence of the Polish ambassador, Alfred Chlapowski.

LOUIS BARTHOU.
[Associated Press Photo.]

The foreign minister in clear diplomatic language indicated that France is impatient with the recent trend of Polish policy, and that hesitancy by the Warsaw government to endorse the "Eastern Locarno pact" was hardly justified in view of the fact that Italy as well as England agree to it.

Voices France's Displeasure.

It is understood, furthermore, that prior to the speech Barthou told Chlapowski in detail how displeased France was and served warning that Poland's efforts during the past year to break away from France and pursue a policy of playing Germany off against Russia must end.

The foreign minister in his recent visit to Warsaw apparently had failed in bringing this about and in obtaining Polish support for the regional pact. Evidently he felt that the present warning was necessary. Other capitals besides the French were represented as likewise giving hints to Warsaw of their displeasure.

Dwelling on the usual security theme in today's speech, Barthou said his nation would make no moves toward disarmament until his peace scheme had been signed and tested.

Insists Upon Precautions.

"Regardless of my horror of war," he continued, "I believe France must take precautions. When these regional pacts are realized, one can believe that, with the first Locarno, a new era can open which will enable us to examine the effect of these pacts upon disarmament.

"That disarmament negotiations can begin as a result of regional pacts, yes; but that they can begin as a condition to pacts, no."

Barthou then turned to the Polish ambassador and asked:

"What will happen if the regional pact we propose is not accepted? Let the voice of England and France be heard. Since the Polish ambassador has affirmed his admirable and immovable faith in the Franco-Polish alliance I can assure him that the regional pact we are considering will in no case diminish our friendship or ruin the spirit, conditions or consequences of our alliance."

The ambassador had spoken extravagantly of the friendship between the two nations and paid personal tribute to Barthou, but omitted all reference to the question of the Locarno pact.

Russia Warms Up to Nazis.
[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, July 15.—A changed and softened attitude toward Germany and a growing belief that Germany after all may be brought into the eastern Locarno pact were plainly indicated here today in the first authoritative comment on Great Britain's swing toward the pact.

The new and almost conciliatory tone was surprising, coming as it did after almost daily attacks on Nazi Germany in the soviet press. The silence maintained by soviet officials and newspapers ever since the statement of the British foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, on Friday, giving Britain's blessing to the Franco-soviet project, was broken today with a long discussion of the new diplomatic situation in the newspaper Pravda.

"Certain German newspapers are being too hasty in declaring in advance that the eastern European security pact is not acceptable to Germany," says the Pravda, significantly.

GIRL WHO TRIED DEATH EXPECTED ON STAND TODAY

June De Long Mistakes Pills for Poison.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—June De Long, whose attempted suicide yesterday failed when she mistook sleep inducing pills for poison, will resume the witness stand in the "Hollywood morals trial" case tomorrow, if her physical condition permits, Prosecutor Arthur Veitch said today.

Miss De Long is the state's star witness in the trial of Dave Allen, former head of Hollywood's Central Casting corporation, and Gloria Marsh, film extra, who were indicted on charges of participating in a "wild party" at Miss De Long's apartment. She eluded her female guard yesterday, leaving a note indicating she was going to take her life.

Only Makes Her Sick.

Miss De Long said "I wanted to die and I took some pills that I thought were poisonous, but they only made me sick."

Dr. Benjamin Blank, county jail physician, said Miss De Long apparently had taken sleep inducing pills.

Following an interrogation by Deputy District Attorney Veitch late last night, Miss De Long was taken back to the Hollywood apartment where she has been kept in seclusion since her testimony before the grand jury resulted in Allen's and Miss Marsh's indictment.

Doesn't Know Whereabouts.

She was unable to tell her questioners where she had been between the time of her disappearance shortly before noon yesterday and her recovery, which occurred within two blocks of her former apartment, the place, she has testified, where she participated with Allen and Miss Marsh, who also is a film extra, in the asserted immoral party.

"All I know is that I wrote Marjorie [Marjorie Fairchild] a note while she was absent from the apartment getting a bottle of cream for our breakfast telling her that I wanted to die," Miss De Long told Veitch. "Then I put some pills which I thought were poisonous, in my handbag and left."

GROUP NAMED TO MAP U. S. POLICY ON ELECTRICITY

Hints Probable Move for Power Rule.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15—[Special]—Presaging a probable move to nationalize the power industry, President Roosevelt today announced the creation of a special committee to formulate a new federal policy with respect to the generation and distribution of electricity.

The announcement was made by Marvin H. McIntyre, White House secretary, in the absence of the President. McIntyre made public a letter from Mr. Roosevelt to Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes in which the President asked Mr. Ickes to head the new committee.

"I wish to establish in the Public Works administration a committee to be called 'the national power policy committee,'" the letter stated. "Its duty will be to develop a plan for the closer coöperation of the several factors in our electrical power supply—both public and private—whereby national policy in power matters may be unified and electricity be made more broadly available at cheaper rates to industry, to domestic, and, particularly, to agricultural consumers.

"As time goes on," the President continued, "there undoubtedly will be legislation on the subject of holding companies and for the regulation of electric current in interstate commerce. This committee should consider what lines should be followed in shaping up this legislation. Since a number of the states have commissions having jurisdiction over intrastate power matters, it is necessary that whatever plan is developed should have regard to the powers of these various state commissions as well as of the states in general."

Appointment of the power policy committee was regarded as a harbinger of legislation looking to government regulation and perhaps to even more complete federalization of the power industry.

Aside from Secretary Ickes, who is to act as chairman, the committee will consist of Dr. Elwood Mead, bureau of reclamation; Frank R. McNinch, federal power commission; Morris L. Cooke, of the PWA Mississippi Valley committee; Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers; Robert E. Healy, of the Federal Stock Exchange commission; David E. Lillienthal, Tennessee Valley authority, and T. W. Norcross, assistant chief of the forest service.

FRENCH REDS AND SOCIALISTS UNITE TO FIGHT FASCISM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 15.—An offensive and defensive alliance with the communists, which is expected to bring an increase in political violence in France, was voted late tonight by an extraordinary congress of the Socialist party, 3,471 votes to 366. It agreed to work with the communists to "fight Fascism and war."

As a first demonstration of their unity the Socialists asked the communists to stage a great joint meeting in Paris for the twentieth anniversary of the outbreak of the world war on Aug. 4. The communists already plan to celebrate on July 31 the twentieth anniversary of the assassination of Jean Jaures, their pre-war chieftain. Socialist coöperation will increase the danger of the clash between left and right followers, which police fear.

PEOPLE AND FOOD CROPS PERISH IN CHINA HEAT WAVE

HWAIKING, China, July 15.—(AP)—This north Honan town, in the midst of the great central plains which constitute the nation's granary, lies today surrounded by death and suffering over a wide area as a result of the worst heat wave within memory.

The affected area—in which scores of persons have died—reaches westward into Shensi province, southward beyond the Yangtze river, east to the coast, and north virtually to the great wall.

With the temperature varying from 100 to 115 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade day and night, many persons have died.

The fall crops are burning up, despite the desperate efforts of the peasants to keep up irrigation from depleted water supplies. This means more deaths from famine during the coming winter.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. —Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

GEN. JOHNSON EATS CROW.

Gen. Johnson has changed his tune. He now says that events in Germany have taught him that the editors and publishers of the nation were right when they insisted that the newspaper code contain a specific reservation of the constitutional freedom of the press.

Perhaps the general's conversion is to be attributed also to the circumstance that he is about to quit office. NRA may or may not continue as an economic tyranny, but Gen. Johnson has said he is about to return to private life and abandon the rôle of economic tyrant. Therefore he can now observe the preservation of individual rights and liberties with great equanimity. He may even have need of them himself.

This administration has sought to undermine the bill of rights, not for the fun of tampering but because it could not squeeze the country into an economic strait-jacket so long as the charter of liberties was operative. The prohibitionists, when they were in power in Washington, similarly sought to nullify sections of the bill of rights. Prohibition could not be enforced so long as the right of trial by jury remained; therefore trial by jury upon indictment was discarded. Likewise double jeopardy was approved. Likewise cruel and unusual punishments were instituted; likewise immunity from unreasonable searches was denied; likewise property was taken without compensation.

Precisely the same necessity for suspending the bill of rights confronted Gen. Johnson when he took office. He could impose and enforce codes which protected the inefficient business and penalized the efficient only if he could coerce the efficient; and he could not coerce the efficient if the bill of rights was operative.

Gen. Johnson erected an enforcing system which permits a business man to sit in judgment on the business conduct of a competitor. The NRA code authorities are no more qualified to conduct an impartial investigation and hand down an impartial verdict than is the new star chamber court created by Hitler, yet Gen. Johnson's position has been that the finding of such a tribunal is due process within the meaning of the American constitution.

As long as Gen. Johnson regarded NRA as a going concern and felt his tenure to be secure he opposed the freedom of the press reservation. He knew that with the press free to criticize, his tyrannous enforcements could not stand before the blasting criticisms that would be directed against them. He feared that the press would encourage the judiciary to exert itself on behalf of the people's liberties and at the same time encourage the citizens to demand their rights. The general feared, and rightly feared, that a free press would prove his undoing, and he therefore, with admirable logic, strove to curb the press.

Now that he is on the way out he no longer cares. He will leave the matter to his successors. Meanwhile the people of this country dare not overlook the general truth that economic freedom and political freedom are Siamese twins. The planned society can be had only by the sacrifice of the bill of rights.

Any one who denies that proposition is allowing his hopes to blind his eyes and befuddle his mind. In Russia, Italy, and Germany the process is plainly visible, and a moment's examination will show why the planned society must always destroy individual liberty. When a society is planned, i. e., when economic relations are dictated by government, men and property must be placed at the disposal of the planners. Many men will not willingly submit, and unless they are coerced the plan cannot be executed. Men cannot be coerced so long as the constitutional protections against the arbitrary coercion of individuals are in full force. Similarly, property cannot be used as the planners wish to use it unless the constitutional protections against confiscation are somehow nullified.

Even if the administration could guarantee that its coercive measures would bring some economic improvement, the price would be far too high. In fact, if experience is worth anything as a guide, it stresses the probability that the government's schemes will actually lower the standard of living. In effect this administration (like the governments of Germany, Russia, and Italy) is asking the people to sacrifice their liberties in order to obtain a low standard of living. It is encouraging to find Gen. Johnson no longer a party to the scheme, but it does not follow that the scheme is dead.

LOYAL AMERICAN YOUTH SPEAKS.

The first declaration of the new organization of Young Republicans could not have been better. It is most encouraging evidence that the thought and purpose of this significant political force are wisely oriented and grounded on the essentials of American recovery. This is the first and foremost requirement of sound and farsighted political action at this stage of the struggle of American institutions. There will be no difficulty in following it up with the explicit proposals for legislative action for which it has laid the solid foundation.

Lacking the votes in congress necessary for the enactment of measures or the repeal of laws, the first and only immediately practical duty of an opposition is to criticize. It is the function of the administration in office to act, since it has the power to act and the responsibility for action. It is the function of the opposition to object as its judgment indicates and to present to the body politic the reasons and principles upon which its objections are based and the lines of public policy and principle which it would have the nation approve and adopt.

The declaration of the Young Republicans will leave no doubt in any candid mind of the fundamental ideas and policies they cherish and would see reëstablished in American government, and it must inspire the spirit of every citizen loyal to American institutions and to the American way of life. As an utterance of an organization of young citizens who will bring the force and intelligence belonging to the vigor and sane idealism of normal young manhood and womanhood it is one of the most significant and encouraging events since the coming of the New Deal. It expresses admirably a very widespread and profound reaction against the departure from American principles and the adoption of European ideas which the present administration is attempting to impose upon the American people.

RED RECOGNITION BEARS FRUIT.

The scattered strikes and riots which are an ominous and deplorable aspect of industrial readjustment at this time are not the expressions of organized labor's good sense. As they are analyzed it becomes apparent that they are largely influenced by professional agitators drawing their inspiration from the radicalism of Europe and without respect for American social and economic institutions, or regard for the general welfare of American workers and people. This represents an alien invasion, inexcusable under the conditions which in this country support the welfare and progress of the wage earner and deserving of his repudiation and rebuke. That these influences have appeared and prevail as far as they do prevail is, we think, about the only tangible result of the recognition by our government of the communist régime in Russia, and it is a result foreseen and predicted by the opponents of that ill advised departure from the policy declared by Woodrow Wilson and adhered to by his Republican successors.

In normal times this invasion might have been suppressed without much difficulty by the appropriate local agencies or by responsible American leadership within the ranks of labor itself. But the formal recognition of the bolshevik régime and the favor shown by the President and other high officials to its emissary gave a prestige and implied a sympathy for communistic experiment which has not been lost on its advocates.

THE SAFETY COURT.

The first experience of the new court for the trial of serious automobile offenses tends to verify our forecast. A great deal of pressure of various kinds has been exerted, some innocent enough and some far from innocent. The vital interest of the public, including all motorists, will have to be defended chiefly by the presiding judge, and he must have the strong support of public sentiment and of responsible authority. The disposition shown by Judge Scheffler encourages the hope that the court will be substantially useful in improving conditions on the highways, now so dangerous to every one using them.

Prominent among the influences threatening effective action will be the appeal of sentimentality. Judge Scheffler disposed of a common fallacy in one of the first cases. An attorney for the complaining witness in an accident caused by an intoxicated driver recommended leniency for the defendant because his client had not been injured. The judge reminded this lawyer that the injured party was not his client but the people of the state of Illinois. It is essential to the purpose of this court, which is the protection of the public from reckless driving, that this principle be firmly enforced. If every accident which happens not to have resulted in the death or injury of an individual is condoned or dismissed with inadequate penalty, conditions will remain as they are and the casualty rate will increase with the increase of motorists. The court is established to make motoring as safe as it can be by a faithful enforcement of the laws. It cannot accomplish this urgently needed service if it lets off every defendant whose offense has not resulted in a tragedy.

Driving while under the influence of alcohol is inexcusable, yet it is a far too frequent offense and can only be checked by a strict and stern discipline. Other dangerous offenses must also be dealt with in accordance with their gravity.

Editorial of the Day

THE OBSOLESCENCE OF "SHALL."

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

Is "shall" dying out? The writer of a letter to the London Times sees such a tendency in the books of many well known novelists. "Formerly," he says, "every English child thought the Frenchman ill-advised who shouted 'I will be drowned,' when he was, in fact, anxious to be rescued, but I suppose the point would be lost on Miss du Maurier, who has entitled a novel of hers 'I'll Never Be Young Again.' It would also be lost, presumably, on Mr. Priestley, who says: 'Even I will never feel quite the same about a box of chocolates' ['The English Journey,' p. 91], and on Mr. Golding, who says: 'The legal actions which we will be called upon to speak of . . .' ['The Five Sisters,' p. 501]."

Twenty years ago novelists knew the distinction between shall and will. But now will has to do double duty. And when "Philip Lindsay's Catherine Howard says, 'I'll die,' it suggests an Indian compassing his own death on his enemy's doorstep by force of will, whereas Catherine by no means wanted to die."

It does seem from this that "shall" is on its way out. It is being plowed under. For these novelists only reflect a tendency in the speech of educated persons in what they write. Soon it may be necessary to go back to books written 50 years or more ago to find "I shall" and "We shall." And it may be just as well. The distinction between shall and will was never very clear in most of us.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

I WANT TO MOVE.

Saturday's headlines: "San Francisco Strike Threatens Food Famine"; "Two Slain, Three Wounded in Relief Riots in Cleveland"; "Kills Two Women, Shoots Self"; "Five Dairy Company Workers Flogged with Chains"; "Eccentric Peddlar Sought in Disappearance of 21 Month Old Boy in New York"; "'Death to Traitors,' Cries Hitler"; "Actress' Story of Party in Hollywood 'Morals' Case Shocks Courtroom"; "Five Indicted in Big Chicago Arson Ring Plot"; "Dollfuss Opens Drive to Exterminate Bomb Throwers."

Dear Admiral Byrd: How much would be the steamer fare down to that place in the antarctic where you are spending the winter? I understand you are moving out very soon and your igloo or whatever you call it will be for rent. I should like to rent it for an indefinite period provided you take out the radio, telephone and telegraph and that there is no postoffice within three thousand miles and no Free Rural Delivery.

Also, I would not care to have any neighbors closer than nine thousand miles. There are probably plenty of seals and penguins around your little home in the ice and I prefer to get acquainted with them and in time make many warm friendships. I am certain that no seal or penguin would do any of the things mentioned in the Saturday headlines. Penguins seem very thoughtful birds, given to deep, philosophical pondering, and it would be a great pleasure to live among them. I am positive that no penguin would drop around at odd hours and drink up all my best Scotch and gin and that they would not speed their automobiles past my igloo at sixty and seventy miles an hour. I think that a protracted residence among the penguins and seals, say twenty or thirty years, would be a delightful experience.

Let me know what rental you will expect for your igloo and don't tell me that the house is provided with everything needful for light housekeeping but that I must bring my own silverware and table linen. Silverware and table linen belong to the world from which I wish to escape. I do not think the seals and penguins would be in the least impressed with my social position if I brought down silverware and table linen, and as they are to be my only friends and the only ones whose good opinion will mean anything I will chuck the silverware and the table linen into the alley when I get ready to sail for the antarctic.

And if there are any polar bears wandering around near your igloo give them my best regards and tell them I should love to meet them. After again glancing over the Saturday headlines I feel that it would be a real pleasure to sit around on the ice and chat with a group of nice, respectable polar bears. And much safer, oh very much safer. Hoping to hear from you real soon and that I can move into your igloo as soon as you leave, I remain, Always and Sincerely, Et cet., et cet.

DEW IN THE GARDEN.

Early one summer morning
Somebody let fall
A heavenful of silver,
Bright and ephemeral.

Silver spilled from the Dipper
Lacquered the leaves, and moons
Of silver hung from the blossoms
In tremulous festoons.

There were silver suns on the grasses
Thicker than dandelions;
Vegas sparkled in roses;
Hollyhocks held Orions.

Day so shone with the starfall
I marveled that night to behold
No empty place in the darkness
Where a planet gleamed of old.

ADELAIDE LOVE.

BRITISH PEERS have published a couple of books in which each one tells what he would do if he were dictator of Great Britain. And how many of them, would you say at a rough guess, declare somewhere in their essays that they would stop welshing on the war debt and pay up? You're right; not one.

A BANDIT DOWN IN OKLAHOMA, killed last week by a posse after he had robbed a bank, was seventy-two years old. Gosh! too bad he was nipped off in his prime like that! What couldn't he have pulled off if he had lived to a hundred! And yet people talk about "flaming youth." That up and coming seventy-two year old could run rings around flaming youth.

AH! HERE IS SOMETHING that would be most interesting to one and all. Have Gen. Johnson and Herr Hitler debate the Nazi business. Herr Hitler could speak before the radio in Berlin and Gen. Johnson could talk from wherever he happened to be in the United States. He wouldn't need the radio if he just opens the front windows of the room where he is speaking.

ANENT "SCRIMSHAWS."

One of the "mass production" singers I,
Who "fashion phrases with a common theme"
Like birth and death and immortality
That pattern in the poet's ageless dream;
For in that Trinity the whole world's heart
Lies bound in chains of love and suffering.
No knight am I, with "keen and polished" dart;
To common people like myself I sing,
And if some vagrant melodies may find
Night lodging with the lonely ones of earth,
What critics label them I do not mind
Nor that more gifted bards deride their worth.

Prince, we who die, salute your lasting fame
But cry you "Merci!" in your caustic blame.

ETHELYN BRYANT CHAPMAN.

"I ORDERED THE KILLINGS!" says Mr. Hitler. Probably so, probably so. But if I were you, Mr. Hitler, I wouldn't brag about it. R. H. L.

GLAUCOMA AND FAILING SIGHT.

GLAUCOMA, a disease of the eyes, is one of the most important causes of blindness. People of middle age are chiefly affected, although the disease may attack infants and children. It is caused by defective drainage of the fluids from the eye, resulting in hardness or increased tension of the eyeball. With increased tension, pressure on the optic nerve results. Decreased vision is early noted and may result in blindness if proper treatment is not instituted.

In acute glaucoma there is intense pain, redness of the eyeball, and rapid loss of vision. This form usually requires an operation to restore proper drainage to the eye. If this is done shortly after the onset of the attack it is nearly always successful and much or all of the vision is restored.

Chronic glaucoma is much more common and causes more blindness, since it begins so insidiously. There is usually no pain, the only symptom being a gradual loss of vision, especially peripheral vision, while accurate vision of small objects in the center remains unaffected for a long time. When a person with normal eyesight looks directly at an object he is able to see for a considerable distance to the right and to the left. In glaucoma objects not in the direct line of vision cannot be seen. Seeing colored halos around lights at night and a dull, aching pain in the eyes may be other symptoms.

The causes of glaucoma are not altogether known. We do know that premature age changes in the eye about middle life close the drainage channels in some cases. These channels may be opened more widely by the use of drugs called miotics, the most important of which are eserine and pilocarpine. These make the pupils smaller and reduce the tension of the eyeball, sometimes for long periods. Cases receiving such treatment must be watched carefully, however, since these drugs may gradually lose their effect.

In spite of the use of drugs a large number of cases require operation to establish permanent drainage of the eye. This operation, if performed in the early stages of glaucoma by one with proper experience and surgical skill, is usually successful. The vision present at the time the operation is performed is retained and there is sometimes a moderate improvement. If operation is delayed too long damage to the optic nerve is beyond repair and the vision cannot be restored.

The condition is most commonly confused with cataract, a disease that comes on with many of the same symptoms in persons past middle age. Careful examination of the eyes with instruments allowing direct observation of the interior of the eye and a correct record of the peripheral as well as the central vision is necessary to distinguish the two. The tension of the eye must also be recorded with accurate instruments. While cataract may be allowed to go on for several years without permanent damage to vision, it is most important in glaucoma that an early diagnosis be made and treatment instituted at once.

Another disease that is confused with glaucoma, in the popular mind, is trachoma. This is a contagious disease of the lids which is easily distinguished from glaucoma by any physician.

Much can be done through personal alertness and modern medical science to preserve that most valuable of the senses—eyesight.

NERVOUS DISORDERS.

M. E. G. writes:

1. Do you have a booklet on nervous disorders?

2. Can nervous diarrhea with mucus in entire digestive tract, which followed a nervous breakdown, be helped by simple deep breathing exercises and by bending exercises to strengthen the abdominal muscles?

3. Some years ago a prominent doctor said the patient alone could cure himself of constipation and nervousness if he had an iron will. He recommended exercises. Does this hold true in high nervous tension or does exercise increase the tension and in turn the mucus?

4. Is there any truth in the old adage, "Health goes out through the nerves and comes in through the muscles"?

REPLY.

1. We do not have a booklet on nervous disorders. No doubt one will be prepared during the year.

2. Exercise will help to keep the muscular system in proper tone. This will have the effect of improving your general health. Mucus colitis is an inflammation of the lining of the large bowel. It is a chronic condition that must be carefully managed. Diet is a factor in relieving the condition. Infections play an important rôle. Sometimes parasites such as ameba cause or aggravate the condition.

3. Constipation is largely a matter of habit, although foods in proper variety and amount will stimulate a sluggish bowel. In constipation exercise is necessary. People who exercise but little are more likely to have the constipation habit.

4. No. Health does not go out through the nerves and come in through the muscles. Perhaps a careful examination will disclose that the stomach needs hydrochloric acid. So-called nervous diarrhea sometimes occurs because the secretion of hydrochloric acid by the stomach is too low. This acid should not be taken except under the advice of your physician.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

L. J. G. writes: From my own experience may I advise Betty, whose temperature rises to 100 degrees in the afternoon, and whose X-ray shows no tuberculosis, to have a differential blood count made to determine the relative number of leucocytes and lymphocytes? The count should show about 75 to 25 per cent, respectively. If there is a larger number of lymphocytes there is a possibility of glandular fever which would be very likely to cause an afternoon temperature.

REPLY.

A good suggestion.

REMOVING HAIR.

Miss J. J. writes: Is there any way to remove hair from the face so that it will not come back?

REPLY.

The electric needle in the hands of a competent specialist is the only safe and permanent method.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Chicago, July 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I recently purchased an automobile for the sum of $200, subject to a chattel mortgage. The car was registered in Illinois by the seller in 1933, but not in 1934. On making application for title a reply as follows was received: "It will be necessary that you secure a clear title, as you cannot assign the title until all encumbrances are paid. Forward papers showing there is no lien on the car, also show same on the application, and a clear title will be issued to you. You may then assign the clear title to the purchaser." This seems like an absurd assertion, as the bill of sale shows that the car is subject to a chattel mortgage and is bought on that condition. Would be glad of your opinion.

F. O. P.

If the holder of the chattel mortgage has assented to the transfer, but your first papers did not include a written assent, we suggest that you send the papers back adding such written assent. An Illinois statute forbids a sale without the consent of the holder of a chattel mortgage.

GUARDIANSHIP.

Chicago, July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Where a guardian has been appointed for a ward due to infirmity [Iowa], [1] has the ward the right to know the truth concerning the expenses of the ward's funds? 2. If the guardian lies to the ward about expenses, what action may be taken? 3. May the guardian transfer personal property belonging to the ward to the guardian's own home and for his own private use without the consent of the ward or heirs? 4. What action? 5. Have the heirs the right to contest the expenses incurred by the guardian? 6. Has the guardian the right to refuse to answer when asked by the heirs for a statement of expenses and money on hand?

C. E. W.

1. The guardian could be required to file accounts in court, and the ward could examine them there.
2. Insist that court accounts be filed.
3. In general, no.
4. Appeal to the court.
5. Yes.
6. Yes, but he can be required to report to the court, after which the beneficiaries could examine the report in the court files.

DID NOT DERIVE CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, July 11.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born in Ireland and came to this country in 1926 at the age of 13. My mother and stepfather accompanied me. Five years later my stepfather became an American citizen. Does his citizenship automatically make a citizen of my mother, and as a result, don't I acquire citizenship through my mother?

D. K.

The naturalization of your stepfather any time on or after Sept. 22, 1922, did not vest you or your mother with United States citizenship. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director of Immigration and Naturalization, Chicago District.

ANNUITY INSURANCE.

Chicago, July 2.—[Friend of the Insured.]—If life insurance is recognized as highly desirable, why should not a similarly favorable view be taken of annuities which have for their purpose protection against the hazard of an inadequate income during old age?—C. B. A.

Although many people feel that the purchase of an annuity is not as proper as the purchase of insurance because the loss of a substantial principal through early death may be regarded as a selfish act and as a wrongful use of the fund. This is not the case. One is no more guilty of dissipating a fund when purchasing an annuity than when buying insurance. It can be said that the purchaser of life insurance makes contributions for the benefit of widows and orphans more truly than one who dispenses charity. While the purchaser of an annuity makes contributions for the dependent age, just as much as he who contributes to charity. While annuities are not well adapted to people with immediate responsibilities or to young people starting out in life, there would of course be exceptions, where financial conditions would warrant even those with children to devote at least a part of their accumulations to the purchase of an annuity.

TOUGH YOUTHS AT LARGE.

St. Charles, Ill., July 3.—I read with great interest your editorial in today's TRIBUNE under the caption, "Tough Youths at Large."

The St. Charles School for Boys has for some time been a source of annoyance to the citizens of this community: First, because of the escapades which have taken place, making it unsafe for women and girls in this community, and secondly because of the ideals for which the school was originally founded being completely ignored by the management and because of the type of young criminals which are being sent there.

Mr. E. J. Baker and I recently called on the governor and asked that the St. Charles School for Boys be given the opportunity to carry out the intention of the original founders, one of whom was Mr. John W. Gates.

During the conference with the governor I told him that I would solicit the aid of THE TRIBUNE, which has always been interested in the problems of the Fox river valley, if something was not done to remedy conditions at the school.

There are many stories of deplorable conditions at the school which I will not touch upon here, but which the governor promised to investigate and remedy.

Your unsolicited support as indicated by your editorial of today is greatly appreciated by the people of this region.

LESTER J. NORRIS.

FROM DON GEYER.

Madison, Wis., July 10.—Regarding your editorial today on the price of milk, Chicago milk producers do not permit rain in milk and therefore there has been no increase in supply. The first general rain was on July 4. Feed for cows to make milk does not grow overnight. Seven thousand tons of hay were bought by producers during the last thirty days to keep the cows alive. Ask Ridgway, Becker or TRIBUNE farm manager. The cost of milk production in the Chicago shed will be higher this fall and winter than in twenty years. Why not give farmers a break in your political fight against the administration instead of making the farmer the goat?

DON GEYER.

BLUE LIGHTS.

Chicago, July 9.—The writer wonders what brilliant mind evolved the idea of putting those blue globes on the light posts on Lincoln Park West. They are hideous by day and even more so at night, when they cast a sickening and ghastly glow on everybody and everything. I hope the property owners and residents on this beautiful thoroughfare will rise up and make a vigorous protest and succeed in having these abominable globes replaced with the white ones which cannot be improved upon for street lighting.

W. MCKAY.

ONE OF THE FINEST.

Chicago, July 11.—Mr. Orr's cartoon of today is, in my opinion, one of the finest ever printed. I wish he could give the people his conception of the poor old thing (the donkey) when the experimenters get through with it.

PETE COOK.

RESENTED.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 11.—Your front page cartoon by Orr, published today, is a disgrace. Even though you are prejudiced you should be fair. Readers of any political belief resent such cartoons.

R. F. JORDAN.

IT SEEMS TO HAVE WORKED.

Berwyn, Ill., July 11.—I see by your paper that your gas attack is becoming so ineffective that you are compelled to use color to attract attention to your front page comics.

L. SKALICKY.

PLEASURABLE READING.

Park Ridge, Ill., July 10.—It certainly gave me much pleasure this morning to read of the 300 per cent increase in deaths by reason of drunken automobile drivers. This certainly is a reversal from your campaign to bring liquor back that you put over for several years. I sincerely hope that none of your loved ones will be killed or injured by these drunken drivers, for I assure you you will have to put on a bigger campaign now to stop it, as between you and the Democratic party they have brought the real old saloon back again, only it is much worse than it ever was.

I might say I was justice of the peace years ago and know that plenty of the distress of families was caused by liquor and the old saloon and it is here again today with all of its curse and more, too.

We owe as much to you as any one for your share in bringing it back.

FRED I. GILLICK.

BICYCLES ON THE SIDEWALKS.

Chicago, July 12.—Today at noon my mother was knocked to the street and painfully, although fortunately not seriously, injured by a girl riding a bicycle. There have been many similar accidents on Chicago streets lately, more or less serious. The power of your newspaper should be used to call forcibly the attention of the police commissioner to this condition and his men should arrest (as the law requires) violators of the municipal code forbidding bicycle riding on the sidewalks.

JACK H. MUSLINER.

EXCUSE IT, PLEASE.

Chicago, July 10.—In last Thursday's paper you spell citrus "citrous." Funk & Wagnall's New Standard Dictionary gives the spelling citrus. On the Pacific coast citrus is used almost exclusively. As a champion of simplified spelling why don't you use citrus?

OUR SECRET AMBITION

BRAZIL SETS UP 'BRAIN TRUST' TO RULE REPUBLIC

Divorces Forbidden Under New Deal.

RIO DE JANIERO, July 15.—(AP)—A new constitution for Brazil, which provides, among other things, for a "brain trust" whose unanimous opinion cannot be rejected by cabinet ministers, was published today.

The constitution was given out officially for the first time since the assembly which wrote it completed its work. It will be promulgated tomorrorw.

The new basic law is liberal in part to native workers and in part rigorous to foreign interests.

Immigration Restricted.

Immigration from all nations will be automatically restricted by a clause interpreted in some quarters as aimed at Japanese, although it has been insisted that this is not the case.

For 44,000,000 persons in the 20 states and the federal district in the largest country in the western hemisphere in area the new constitution lays down rules that reach to the relationship of marriage.

Church weddings are given the force of civil law, divorces are forbidden, and nuptial bonds are declared forever fast.

Immigration is restricted to a number from each nation annually amounting to not more than 2 per cent of the number who came during the last 50 years. The fact that Japanese have come in only recently was emphasized by persons who looked on this law as striking at those nationals.

State to Rule Industry.

Directorates of public utilities must have a majority of Brazilian nationals under the new provisions, and the state may take over any industrial enterprise "in the public interest."

Deposit banks may be required to submit to progressive nationalization.

Important sections deal with the rights and privileges of workers. Labor legislation was still being studied as an innovation in the United States when Brazil adopted a law requiring that any employé who had served for a decade be indemnified on discharge.

The new constitution provides for a maximum working week of six days, and a maximum day of eight hours. It states also that no worker's wages shall be less because of age, sex or marital status.

Room for Expansion.

Squatters who have remained on land for ten years are given the tract, up to ten hectares, roughly 25 acres.

Room for expansion of the "new deal" was left open with this section: "The economic order must be organized in accordance with the principles of justice and the requirements of national life, safeguarding for all a dignified life."

The form of government established by the constitution presents a number of departures from precedent.

The power of the president is conditioned by the creation of a senate—in addition to the chamber of deputies, the national legislative body—of 42 members, two from each state and two from the federal district.

Senate Guards Constitution.

The senate is charged with standing guard over the constitution and coordinating the entire government.

The president will be elected for a term of four years by direct suffrage, and the present provisional chief executive, Getulio Vargas, is eligible for the first term, although thereafter no president may succeed himself.

The presidency is deprived of the former task of arbitrating in matters involving state rights, that duty going to the senate.

The chamber of deputies will be composed of one or more representatives for each 150,000 persons, and when it assembles in October for the first meeting will have about 213 members, of whom one-fifth will be elected by professional and trade associations.

Satins Have a Place All Their Own

Truhu Satins, which you'll see in Chicago only at Field's, will be, we think, one of the "big" fabrics for autumn. This luxuriously soft quality for which Truhu is famous gains additional beauty with the new colors . . . alone or combined with woolens. $2 a yard.

Metals Are Shining Examples

The woman with a flair for clothes will be delighted that canton crepes, blithely touched with metal, are distinctly in the fall fashion picture. The soft, deep tones in reds, browns, greens combined with gold or silver, are both flattering and adaptable. Keep your eye on it, this fashion will be "good." $5 a yard.

Woolens of Gorgeous New Texture

Back to nature for inspiration go many of the first arrivals. Treebark crepes in suitings or sheer woolens . . . soft, mossy weaves for dresses or suits . . . woolens flecked with blending or contrasting colors like fall leaves . . . tweeds with the breath of the Scottish moors . . . these are assured favorites. Choose them in the gorgeous colors of autumn or the mellow tones of old wines. $2.50 to $12 a yard.

U. S. AND RUSSIA FIND NEW TIE HAS FEW BENEFITS

America Still Awaits Soviet Order for Goods.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, July 15.—The action of the Roosevelt administration in recognizing the bolshevik régime in Russia has not improved soviet-American relations, according to the opinion of the foreign diplomatic corps in Moscow.

Officials of the Moscow foreign office do not conceal their disappointment at Washington's disinclination to act jointly with Russia to guarantee peace in Europe. They further admit that the development of both political and economic relations between the United States and Russia is at a standstill.

The large orders for American goods which Commissar of Foreign Affairs Litvinov discussed during his trip to America have failed to materialize. Litvinov and Ambassador William Bullitt of the United States have had several discussions about the possibilities of increased trade. The Russians are demanding the Washington government annul the Johnson bill, which forbids credits being granted to defaulting countries.

Presents Counter Project.

Bullitt is reported to have communicated Washington's rejection of this proposal and presented a counter project. Under the latter proposal the soviet government could obtain credits in America if it would guarantee to pay to America 25 per cent of its annual gold production. Litvinov announced these terms as unsatisfactory since all Russia's gold production was being used to cover the large credits which the soviet government had obtained in Germany and Great Britian.

Russia, according to diplomats, is encountering increased difficulties in meeting her commitments abroad. The export of grain, formerly a large source of revenue, will be stopped this year. Optimistic estimates of the Russian crops place this year's grain production between 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 tons, against last year's 89,000,000 tons.

The drouth, which has seriously affected the crops of Europe and America, has also damaged the harvests in Russia's three chief grain districts—the Ukraine, the northern Caucasus and the Volga provinces.

Although they have refused to permit foreign correspondents stationed in Moscow to visit these districts to investigate the reports of famine, the Moscow foreign office insists that there is no famine, as the country still has 30,000,000 tons of grain left from last year's harvest.

This statement is in contradiction to the reports received by diplomats from their nationals traveling in Russia, and while it is admitted that Russia has large reserves of grain, most of it is stored in Siberia as a source of supply in case of war with Japan.

Seek More Grain for Army.

KHANAROVSK, U. S. S. R., July 15.—(AP)—The farmers of far eastern Russia were appealed to today to produce more grain and forage for the defensive forces of the soviet union. Pleas were made by Gen. Blucher, chief of the far eastern army, and Secretary Samoliov, secretary of the communist party for the region.

"Each pig and each bushel of grain is as important as a machine gun or a bomb," said the general. "The army is ready to fight the enemy, but agriculture must support it."

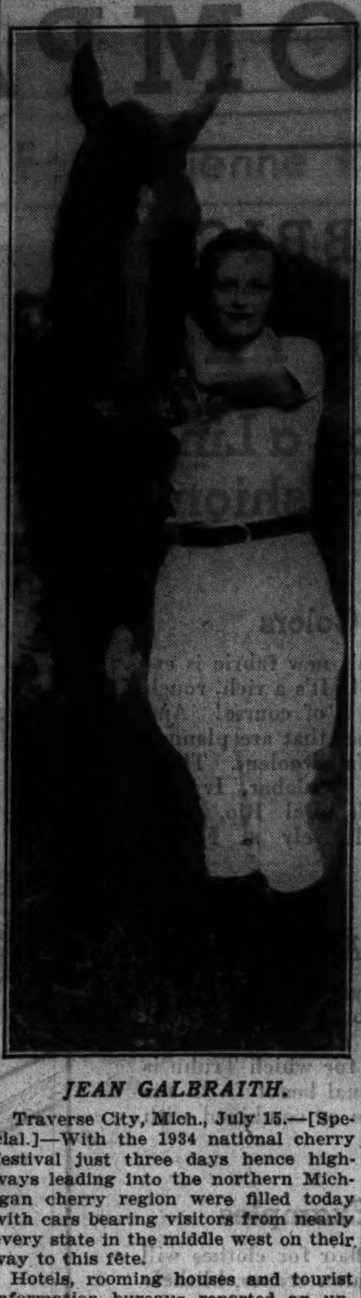
Blucher said he was ashamed when Dictator Josef Stalin asked the communist party congress in January: "How long will you require hay from the western provinces?"

Urging the necessity of immediate establishment of a far eastern food case, Samoliov said:

"We are living on the edge of two worlds. A very narrow stretch of water [the Amur river, boundary of Manchuquo] separates us from the capitalistic world. Each shock brigade of the field is a shock brigade of defense. The more grain, the better our resistance."

For the encouragement of settlers in eastern Siberia the government has been offering to exempt collective farms of ten individuals or more from levics for five years.

In Michigan Fete



JEAN GALBRAITH.

Traverse City, Mich., July 15.—[Special.]—With the 1934 national cherry festival just three days hence highways leading into the northern Michigan cherry region were filled today with cars bearing visitors from nearly every state in the middle west on their way to this fête.

Hotels, rooming houses and tourist information bureaus reported an unprecedented number of early arrivals. The festival is to be formally opened at daybreak Wednesday, and until Friday night there is to be some kind of entertainment. Miss Jean Galbraith is to be marshal of the opening parade.

3 MORE SLAIN IN KENTUCKY'S SCHOOL VOTING

Red Bird, Ky., July 15.—(AP)—Bullets followed sharp words over county school elections and today three men were dead, another wounded, at two communities within a few miles of this little southeastern Kentucky town.

Official reports were lacking, but it was known that Deputy Sherif John Wooton of Leslie county and Willis Sizemore were dead of gunshot wounds after an election dispute near Big Creek.

Hugh Spurlock died some time after another election dispute, and Kelly Sams was wounded after an argument over a voter's qualifications in a school trustee election at Langdon schoolhouse on Bear creek.

Today's reports brought to five the known dead in quarrels over this year's school trustee elections in Kentucky.

2 Kulaks to Die for Killing Guard on Collective Farm

MINSK, U. S. S. R., July 15.—(AP)—The Supreme court of White Russia today sentenced two Kulaks [propertied peasants], Andrusovitch and Kazhan, to death on charges of killing the guard of a herd of cattle belonging to a collective farm. The killing was alleged to have been the outcome of an attempted theft of cattle.

Logansport, Ind., July 15.—[Special.]—Believed to have fainted while swimming, Elaine Stanton, 13, member of a Gary, Ind., Girl Scout troop encamped on Tippecanoe river near here, was saved from drowning today when life guards recovered her unconscious from ten feet of water. Artificial resuscitation revived her.

JOHNSON CITES GROWTH OF ADS AS GOOD SIGN

Talks to Pacific Coast Association.

Portland, Ore., July 15.—The gains in advertising were cited here today as a sign of recovery by Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, speaking before the Pacific Association of Advertising clubs.

"You learned all too well," he said, "during the bottom years that firms do not spend their money telling the world what they have to sell when they see no customers in the offing. Now that new billions have been added to purchasing power of the mass of population, industry is again scrambling for business.

"You have this year for the first time a nation-wide acceptance of the principle of truth in advertising [without disparagement of competitors]—a thing for which your organizations have long battled."

Admits NRA Faults.

"We acknowledge the errors and faults of NRA, but if NRA had no other boast than that it had brought chivalry to economic conflict—it would be enough.

"We have now reached a new point in NRA processes. Just before I left Washington we completed plans to finish all code writing this month. There is only 5 per cent of industrial and commercial employment and production remaining to be codified, but it is broken up into hundreds of small groupings.

"We have offered these the option of a simple, basic code, embodying the essential of the NRA program or the alternative of merging with existing code groups. This is no arbitrary "crack down" plan, but on which long study has convinced us will meet the desires of the industries involved.

Talks of Darrow, Borah.

"It is a bitter thing to me that two men for whom I have perhaps the greatest admiration—Clarence Darrow and Senator Borah—should attack NRA on the charge that it helps big business and hurts small business.

"All you have to do is to ask any small retailer—ask any small saw mill operator—Ask any movie house. I'll be content with the answer."

Of the advertising man Johnson said:

"He must have an insight into the manufacture of the article he is to write the copy for. He must know the resistance to be met within prospective sales; he must know his market. In a word, in this great country, he must know the temper and mind of the American people and when a man knows that he is a statesman—no less. Your material is human minds and emotions—a far more delicate and fleeting thing than the sculptor's clay. You are artists or you are not good advertising men."

48,500 JOURNEY TO BROOKFIELD TO SEE ANIMALS

Ideal summer weather attracted 48,564 persons yesterday to the Chicago Zoölogical gardens at Brookfield. The crowd was the fourth largest since the zoo opened July 1. Work is to be completed this week on the playground in the wooded area at the northwest end of the gardens where parents visiting the zoo may leave children in the care of a custodian. It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE that this playground had been established at the south entrance of the park. The south playground is used only for children separated from their parents. About 10 lost children are cared for there daily.

Found Dead with Motor Running; Cracks Stuffed

Louis Burkart, 60 years old, 5944 North Artesian avenue, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in his garage. Rescue squad No. 4 of the fire department tried to revive him. Detective Frank Khubiar of the Summerdale police said the motor of Burkart's automobile was still running, and that blankets and papers had been stuffed under the door and around windows.

2,200 TRIBUNE WORKERS GET NEW INSURANCE

cause premiums advance with age to a point where the cost is prohibitive. The rate remains a flat $9 per $1,000, and even those retired on pensions may retain their insurance at that rate.

Under the insurance plan in force in THE TRIBUNE household for the last 18 years 1,591 individuals were insured for a total of $1,854,000. The new plan will include approximately 2,200 for a total of about $8,800,000. The old policy was not available to persons with less than 5 years of service behind them. Under it, however, more than $300,000 has been paid to TRIBUNE families in death claims.

Subsidiaries Are Included.

In addition to workers of THE TRIBUNE itself the plan will cover subsidiaries such as the Ontario Paper company and the Quebec and Ontario Transportation company, so that the sailors on THE TRIBUNE's paper and pulpwood fleet, the gangs in its mills, and the rangers and woodcutters in its timber limits along the Gulf of St. Lawrence will share in its benefits.

The new group insurance program was drawn up by W. E. Macfarlane, TRIBUNE business manager; D. M. Deininger, auditor and controler, and L. H. Fischer, manager of the insurance department, in collaboration with Raymond Kirk, vice president of the Rollins, Burdick & Hunter agency, brokers. The policies are with the Aetna Life Insurance company of Hartford, Conn., the company that carried the group insurance under the old plan.

Under the employés' benefit plan workers are paid their regular salaries during illness and are visited by a nurse engaged by the company. The benefit plan also provides periodic free dental examinations and cleansing of teeth. In maternity cases there is a six weeks' leave of absence with pay and, if desired, additional weeks of leave without pay. Employés share in TRIBUNE earning through bonus payment at Christmas time. Also sponsored by THE TRIBUNE is the Medill Building and Loan association, an association of members of the organization, and the Dearborn Mutual Benefit society, a savings and insurance enterprise.

THROWN FROM TAVERN; DIES.

William Krump, 35 years old, 1815 Jackson boulevard, died yesterday at the county hospital of injuries incurred July 7, when he was ejected from a tavern at 6852 South Ashland avenue.

DIOGENES SKIPS WITH HONESTY PLEDGE OF $547

The honesty of Otto Meyer, a barber at 3304 Archer avenue, cost him exactly $547 on July 12, he reported to the Hudson avenue police yesterday when he asked them to find two confidence men. Inclined to be loquacious, Meyer said he was easily drawn into conversation with a customer on July 9. The stranger said he was looking for an honest man to advise him about the purchase of a rooming house for his sister. Meyer was honest, so he offered his services, and the pair went to Lincoln park, near Belden avenue, where they sat on a park bench to discuss business.

Another stranger, who said he was an Austrian and spoke no English, joined the party. Meyer, knowing German, was able to understand his story. The Austrian said his father, once a wealthy contractor here, departed several years ago, leaving behind a number of debts. On his death bed, the Austrian said, his father adjured him to return here and settle these obligations. Being a stranger, the Austrian said he wanted an honest man to distribute the money for him.

Meyer agreed to undertake the task. To show his good faith, Meyer said he gave the men $550. In return he received a satchel which they said contained $16,000. On his return home to await further instructions, Meyer said he found the bag held a bundle of newspapers.

Plan Gay Party at Barrington Pool Dedication

Professionals to Perform Aquatic Feats.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SOCIAL activity in Barrington will reach a new high on July 28 when the pool at the Barrington Hills Country club is formally opened, for the club has planned a bang-up party to celebrate the occasion. Festivities will commence with dinner and dancing around the pool as well as on the porches directly above it, where the dancing usually takes place, and for entertainment there will be diving exhibitions galore with some of the best professionals in this part of the country taking part. There will be also a fashion show featuring bathing suits.

The pool is 30 by 60 feet, painted blue, and has a blue tiled walk around it wide enough for two rows of tables. There is direct access to both the men's and ladies' locker rooms, and while one suns on the blue tiles one has a magnificent view of the green golf course stretching to the west and to the north, bounded in the distance by heavily wooded, rolling hills. The underwater lighting will add color at night, and in the daytime the gayety of the scene will be augmented by bright umbrellas over the tables on an extra terrace that is being constructed at the north end of the pool. Mothers may keep an eye on their young from this terrace or from the screened-in porch above, which, Barrington residents assert, is the coolest spot in Lake county.

Robert W. Buckley Heads Committee.

Robert W. Buckley is chairman of the committee in charge of the opening party a week from Saturday night, and a few of his committee members are: Mr. Buckley, Mrs. John Roberts, Mrs. Kenneth K. Knickerbocker, Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe, Mrs. Byron Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Richmond W. Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clark, Daniel Woodhead, Paul Corbett, and Lawrence Vilas.

The Buckleys' daughter, Miss Mary Grubbs, is being married on Sept. 15 to Carl Dautel of Evanston. All Barrington is looking forward to the wedding, for the Buckleys are such favorites there. The ceremony will take place in the quaint old St. James Episcopal church in Dundee at 4:30 o'clock and a reception will follow at the Buckleys' home, Brookmoor. Mrs. Robert Fobes, the former Katherine Grubbs, will come down from her home in St. Paul to be her sister's matron of honor, but it is a bit far in advance for Miss Grubbs to know who else will attend her. Mrs. Fobes will be in another wedding just before her sister's, that of her brother-in-law, William Fobes, and Miss Elizabeth Irvine, which will take place in St. Paul on Sept. 12. Both Mr. Fobes and Miss Irvine have many friends in Chicago.

Elva Eitel to Wed Theodore Bersbach.

Highland Park has a wedding to look forward to also, for on Aug. 25 Miss Elva Eitel, daughter of the Edmund Henry Eitels, will become the bride of Theodore Brentano Bersbach, son of Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach of Winnetka. The ceremony will be read in the afternoon in Trinity Episcopal church on Laurel avenue and will be followed by a small reception at the Eitel home on Prospect avenue not far away.

The wedding and the reception will seem especially small in contrast to the number of attendants that Miss Eitel is having. Her younger sister, Jane, will be her maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include the bridegroom's three sisters, the Misses Barbara, Helen, and Joan Bersbach, and three Highland Park girls, Miss Barbara Bullard, the Sellar Bullards' daughter; Miss Welthyan Harmon, daughter of the Hubert Harmons, and Miss Jane Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Holmes.

Because the wedding plans have been revised two or three times, Mr. Bersbach is not certain just whom he will have for best man and ushers, or where he will take his bride on their wedding trip, but they will make their home in Evanston.

Four of Bersbachs Away on Vacations.

The Bersbach residence on the Indian Hill club grounds in Winnetka must seem very quiet these days—as quiet as it does in winter—for four of Mrs. Bersbach's six children are away from home. Barbara, who is to be a debutante of the coming season, and Helen are visiting a Shipley schoolmate, Miss Huldah Cheek, in Nashville, Tenn.; Robert is at a camp in Maine, and Joan is at the Timberline ranch in Arizona. Theodore and John are the only ones at home.

Six of Joan's Winnetka friends also are at the Timberline ranch, and there are six other north shore girls there, too, enjoying the horseback riding, roundups, rodeos, swimming, and trips to interesting places within riding distance of the ranch, which is at Silver Creek, Ariz. The Winnetka girls are Mildred Kemper, Jane Darrow, Mary Phyllis Barber, Nancy Palmer, and Mary and Miranda Palmer, and the other north shore girls are Louise Jane Galbraith of Glencoe, Jeanne Cutler of Wilmette, Huster Dillon of Kenilworth, and Marjorie Mock, Mary Bauman, and Gertrude Dolese of Evanston.

Nancy Blaine, who spent the last two summers at the Timberline, is spending this summer in the east with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Lawrence of Winnetka, who are motoring through New Hampshire. John Lawrence is at a camp for the season.

Highland Park is having its fair share of romantic news these days and another wedding is scheduled to take place there within a matter of weeks. In September Miss Ann Mather-Smith, daughter of the Charle

PRETTY Miss Edith Behr has not been joining in the social whirl of Lake Forest's smart summer colony lately because two weeks ago while taking a riding lesson from the popular Capt. Santini at the Onwentsia Miss Behr's horse failed to make a jump and both horse and rider fell. The accident resulted in concussion of the brain to Miss Behr and she was confined to her home. She is feeling quite fit, however, and is ready to be about again, particularly on the bridle paths. Miss Behr is a daughter of the Benjamin L. Behrs.

EXCERPT from letter from small boy at camp to his parents: "We have setting up exercises, breakfast and chapel, then play ball games and have kind of a track meet and swim until meal time, but I think if you would not talk too long I could see you when you come down here. Also please do not say Honey to me in front of the other kids."

Warning—Titled—Announcement—Error.

ONE of the most beautiful homes in Glencoe was sold recently, but the identity of the purchaser has been a secret. There has been a natural interest on the part of property holders as to the new neighbor, and one woman was interested to hear her chauffeur make a comment about it. He said he knew the house had been sold, and she asked him if he knew who was the buyer.

"An English lady. A lady with a title," he informed her.

"Is that so?" exclaimed the woman, then she added eagerly, "Did you hear the name?"

"Yes, madame," the chauffeur informed her. "Lady Esther."

THERE is a rule at the society desk that all engagement and marriage announcements must be written, signed by one of the parents, and the address and telephone number appended. Verification was established a little less formally, but with more color perhaps, in a note that accompanied such an announcement the other day:

"All the principals in the accompanying announcement except poor Albert [the prospective bridegroom] are my wife's relatives," read the note. "I am therefore able to assure you that it is kosher. I have seen the J. P.'s certificate, have verified the signature of witnesses and kibitzed while the father opened the champagne [Piper Heidsieck, 1919, a vintage], which had been saved for just such an occasion. A call to Mrs. Blank at Blank 2352 will establish that all this is true and that I am not simply trying to build myself up in my wife's estimation by getting the name of one of her relations in the paper."

EVERYBODY knows the old drunk story about the fellow who inquired where he was, and when told the street intersections, asked, "Yes, I know, but what city is it?" A true version of a similar incident happened night before last in one of the suburbs west of Chicago. Two Geneva residents came back from the movies, and while the husband took the car around to the garage the wife, who had happened to leave the door unlocked that evening, walked in. As she entered the living room she heard a strange noise, and as she switched on the light found a perfectly strange man lying on the sofa fast asleep, snoring. She hastened to call her husband and he, after inspecting the fellow, decided to call the police and let an officer wake him. The policeman woke him up with some difficulty, and although he was in no condition to explain much, the fellow kept murmuring that he was "shorry." It turned out that he was a West Aurora resident who had attended a party in West Chicago, and when he drove home had got into—not only the wrong house—but the wrong town.

Good Morning!

"Whom the gods destroy, they first make mad."

A moment's madness—panic!—and the life of a brilliant theatrical producer—a devoted husband and father—lies in ruins about him! . . .

Aboard the good ship Balkan he's sailing for Europe on business, leaving behind his wife and child who heretofore have accompanied him on like trips. . . . A derelict looms up. . . . Too late to turn the ship. . . . A crash! . . . Pandemonium! . . .

No braver man is on board than John Forrester. He gives his own life belt to a woman. . . . He helps the officers keep men from taking women's and children's places in the lifeboats. Then, with death imminent, his mind's eye sees a vision—the faces of the beloved two he must leave. . . . At the same time his physical eye lights upon a woman's discarded evening cloak—long and richly collared. . . .

When a certain lifeboat grounds on the Newfoundland coast one of the survivors is a man who has escaped in woman's clothes. . . . The hardy fisher folk regard him—he gives a fictitious name—with contempt and loathing. All but one kindly old man who takes Forrester in, hides the wallet and papers that disclose his identity, nurses him through a siege of pneumonia and guards his secret. . . .

This wise old chap knows well how easily a moment's madness can bomb a lifetime's achievement and it is he who points a way by which John Forrester, believed among the heroic dead by those who knew him, can go home and still keep his honor. . . .

Forrester lands in New York. . . . And suddenly he knows it's no use. . . . The story would leak out and disgrace his family and friends. . . .

The picture shall show you subsequent events, and detail how the outcast becomes a moving influence in his son's life. . . . The finale is deeply touching.

Now here's a film that the Legion of Decency will support if it's as eager to boost good movies as it is conscientious about condemning salacious ones.

Walter Connolly plays Forrester with the fine reticence, sympathy, and humanness for which he is noted. Doris Kenyon is appealing as the wife. Hobart Bosworth as the kindly Newfoundlander is a warm note in the arresting mosaic of the whole.

See you tomorrow.

Studio Ready to Compromise Today on Shirley Temple's Pay

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., July 15.—[Special.]—The climactic conference between Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Temple, parents of little Shirley Temple, and the Fox studio to determine whether Shirley gets $1,000 a week in future or $2,500 or some figure in between and whether she makes four films a year as the studio suggests or two as her papa wishes, is scheduled for tomorrow morning. Unofficial information is that Shirley will receive more than the $1,000 the studio offered—that the Fox executives feel they'll get a lot more than that out of her coming films—and that the studio is prepared to grant some of the most unusual clauses ever included in a motion picture contract, but that $2,500 is out of the question. Meanwhile, 5 year old Shirley is a picture of romping gayety, disturbed only because the conferences over her contract have caused a delay in the family's departure which had been scheduled last Saturday for a vacation lasting the rest of the summer near Carmel, Cal.

The next movie pageant Cecil De Mille makes will have Richard the Lion Hearted as central figure [probably played by Henry Wilcoxon of England] and be titled "The Crusade." Harold Lamb, writer of historical best sellers, "Genghis Khan" and "The Crusades," will write the plot and production is expected to begin before autumn. Saladin the Saracen, the great and chivalrous rival of Coeur de Lion, will be prominently featured.

In spite of having her husband, Maurice Maschke Jr. of Cleveland, here with her, Helen Morgan is very lonely for her mother in New York. Somebody asked her why she didn't send for her mother to come out here if she felt so homesick for her. Helen said: "I would like to, but I have twenty-four tanks of fancy fish in my apartment there and I can't leave them with anybody but mother, so I guess I'll have to stay lonely."

Failing to find any actress in the British Isles who reminded them of Aunt Betsy Trotwood in "David Copperfield," Producer Dave Selznick and his staf, who went abroad to seek talent, have assigned the rôle to Edna May Oliver, who joins a cast including Lionel Barrymore as Dan Peggotty, Lew Stone as Mr. Wickfield, Elizabeth Allan as Mrs. Copperfield, and Jean Cadell—who was seen and signed in England and isn't here yet—as Mrs. Micawber.

Nick Stuart is taking enough time from his newly opened Bath and Tennis club to see lots of Irene Harvey.

Hugh Walpole's original movie writing contract of one month has been extended by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio for six months.

Jan Rubini, the composer, is signed by M. G. M. to do a violin specialty for "The Merry Widow."

Pola Negri's manager sends word she'll do a movie comeback.

Sally to Take 100 Youngsters to See Sox Play Senators

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

O boy, another ball game—and this time it's the White Sox against the Washington Senators at Comiskey Park, Wednesday, July 25. Baseball is sure the grand old game. What a kick one gets from watching George Earnshaw twirl a fast one, or the performances of such favorites as Luke Appling, Zeke Bonura, and Mule Haas.

So just sit down now and put on your thinking caps and write me a letter, one of those keen, honest-to-goodness letters that only boys and girls know how to write. Of course I can't take every one who writes to me, even though I'd love to. I can take only 50 boys and 50 girls.

There are boys and girls who do not even mention their ages in their letters, and some do not include their addresses. Of course that's not following the rules and no matter what swell letters they are, they're out. So be sure to mention your age, your address, and write your name plainly. Be sure that your letter gets to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, by Thursday, July 19.

Shop to Offer White Collars of Garbo Film

Style Experts Pick Green as Fall Winner.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Uncensored fashion hints that have leaked through, and this means definite news about stuff that you will be able to buy and wear within a few weeks, sound like a million!

For instance, some of those startling white, served-up-in-a-dish, platter collars that Garbo wore in her latest film. Remember the wide, white linen affairs with matching cuffs? Well, you can try them out yourself in a few weeks. One shop has them on order and expects them in most any day now.

They may be a bit trying on a hot day, but then, heat has never deterred any adventurous clothes hound from wearing thin wools, summer furs, on velvet hats, if they were new and daring. So a little extra like a stiff starched collar will probably go far.

They're shouting about green for fall—every conceivable shade from dark forest green to lovely almond tones. Green coats trimmed with rich brown fur; green suits and quantities of green wool daytime and street costumes, as well as countless creations of every matching shade of green in hats and costume accessories.

If you have a weakness for green this fall is the time to indulge your fancies. You'll probably never have a better chance.

The smartest combine ahead is pale pearl gray worn with sooty black accessories, gloves, hats, footwear, and such. Gray has been pushed before, with much success, so this new wave ought to be welcomed likewise. It's a fascinating and impressive contrast. Watch for it.

And it can be reversed for charming though contrary shoppers. Try a black frock with pale gray accents or accessories, and you'll look as if you had just stepped off the latest boat from Paris.

Would you like to be a decorative lounger on a summer beach or verandah? Then try the gorgeous lounging pajamas shown in the photograph. The trousers are creamy white, as is the flannel halter top, tied around the neck with a cotton cord. Anchored to the chest façade is a blue steering wheel. The long loose jacket is a gasping scarlet, with pockets, and the white edge is a cotton cord. Coat and trousers are of loose knitted effect cotton material. It is one of the best beach outfits of the season. Obtainable in a Chicago shop.

Her Husband's Fiancee

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

INSTALMENT I.
A BEREAVED WOMAN.

Among the few passengers who alighted from the 6:26 from Newcastle that stormy winter's night was a weary young woman, pallid of face and not too well dressed, but still distinguished by the beauty which as a girl had set her apart from her more commonplace sisters.

Her name was Cecily Marshall, and only a year ago she had been a happy wife and mother. Perhaps the most envied of all the young matrons in Bellchester, for David Marshall, her husband, was the city's leading merchant prince, having inherited a flourishing business from his father.

David was also, in many people's opinion, a prince among men—young, handsome, and radiant, with that indefinable quality known as personal charm.

Seven years ago he had first set eyes on Cecily when she served in the hosiery department of Marshall's, and between them it had been a case of love at first sight.

What a stir their marriage had made in staid, old fashioned Bellchester. Cecily Adams, the orphaned daughter of a postman and herself at 19 just a shopgirl selling silk stockings behind a counter and boarding with old Mrs. Leach in Standish-crescent, to become the wife of rich and handsome young David Marshall of Maple Grange and all that appertained thereto.

Most people called it a romance, but there were others—notably David's mother and a host of disappointed young spinsters—who looked upon that marriage as a dire calamity, indeed an outrage, and predicted an unhappy ending. It seemed now that this latter view was the correct one, although for six years David and Cecily had proved the croakers wrong.

But from the beginning there had been a snake-in-the-grass masquerading in the form of a dark and beautiful girl, whose name was Audrey Lowe, and it was Audrey and her cousin, Reggie Davies, who between them had contrived to break up the devoted little family.

A year ago David Marshall, driven half mad by a wholly unwarranted jealousy, had divorced his wife, and with cold determination succeeded in retaining custody of their little girl. It was her own broken pride, however, more than public opinion which turned Cecily Marshall adrift from Bellchester.

Of the details of this tragedy we will learn more later.

Suffice it to say that a year after she had gone away Cecily was back.

Why had she returned?

The porter who took her two suitcases did not recognise her for the principal figure in that divorce drama which had shaken Bellchester to the core,

Seven years ago he first set eyes on Cecily in his father's store. It was a case of love at first sight.

but that station master knew her very well. Her father had been a friend of his. Mr. Dodds was startled by Cecily's tragic, altered appearance, and also by the fact that she had come back to the little city which for her could have but the unhappiest of memories.

He came forward and took her cases from the porter, telling the man to get a taxi. It seemed to the kind, elderly station master that her face had the white, intent look of death itself—as though Cecily had apprehended the whole of life and scornfully cast it aside.

"O, thank you so much, Mr. Dodds," she said, as one shaken out of a dream. "I would like them put into the cloakroom, please."

She followed him in a listless manner, and then the porter came back to say that the taxi was waiting.

The station master elbowed him aside again. He wanted to say something friendly to Cecily, but he did not know how to do so. Her aloofness made him feel awkward.

"I hope you've been keeping well, Cecily. Not a very nice night to be coming home." That was all he could think of and it sounded very tactless.

"Home?" she echoed. "O, yes—yes, of course. But it always rains a lot in Bellchester at this time of the year, doesn't it? Thank you so much, Mr. Dodds."

The station master felt that he was being dismissed, and he still hadn't been able to say anything worth while. Mr. Dodds' sympathies were all with Cecily Marshall. There had been something altogether fishy, in his opinion, and certainly high-handed about the way David had obtained his divorce, and more particularly the custody of little Rose Ann.

The talk around Bellchester was that David Marshall soon intended to marry again; the girl, Audrey Lowe, who had been picked out for him long ago by his mother, and who had bided her time very cleverly. As for Reggie Davies, "the man in the case"—who and what was he but a convenient tool in Audrey Lowe's pocket? The best you could say for Reggie was that he still didn't know he had been used for a sinister purpose. Mr. Dodds firmly believed it was a plot, no less, which had driven Cecily Marshall from Bellchester, a disgraced and bereaved woman.

She gave him her hand mechanically and smiled with her lips. Her eyes looked as though they would never smile again.

"Tell him to drive me to Maple Grange, please. And—and thank you again."

The Grange, of all places. Cecily's old home, where her former husband lived in state with his cherished little daughter. Mr. Dodds seemed to remember hearing that the child had been ill recently. Perhaps David's love for Rose Ann had impelled him to send for Cecily in spite of the dark oath he was reported to have taken that the young mother should never be allowed to see her child again.

"'Ere, guv'nor—what's this all about? You've done me out of my tip."

That was the porter, secretly resentful, but playful on the surface as befitted him toward his superior.

"So I have, Joe. Here's sixpence for you. You didn't recognize that young lady?"

The station master nodded in a sad fashion.

"She's an old friend of mine, Joe. I've known her when she was no more than so high. Cecily Adams that used to be and then married young Dave Marshall."

"Lum'me, you don't say so! Was that her, really? Wonder what she's doing back in Bellchester?"

"I'm wondering myself," said Mr. Dobbs.

Cecily's purpose was definite and determined. A steely light blazed in her weary eyes, and she sat bolt upright in the musty old cab, every muscle taut.

In her handbag was Nanna's last letter and the telegram that had reached her at 10 o'clock this morning. The former had prepared her somewhat for the latter and she had already decided that she must go to Bellchester, go to Maple Grange and force an entry—if it came to that—in order to clasp again her baby in her arms. For Rose Ann, now nearly six years old, was still a baby to the bereft young mother.

Dear, faithful Nanna, who loved Cecily almost as much as she loved Rose Ann, secretly had kept her informed from time to time of the child's welfare. David Marshall did not know that he had what he would undoubtedly have called a traitor in his well fortified camp.

The last letter had said that Rose Ann was convalescent after a mild form of flu, but not progressing as well as expected. She slept badly and was fretful. Nanna did not say that she was fretting still for her mother, but Cecily read between the lines. And then the telegram: "If you come by evening train today will try to arrange something. Nanna."

It could only mean, of course, that Nanna would try to arrange for Cecily to see Rose Ann. And it must mean, too, that the baby was not at all well. Nanna would never have dared send such a message if it were not serious. It would be as much as her situation was worth, and Nanna meant to hang on to Rose Ann as long as she possibly could, as much for Cecily's sake as for her own. She was the only link between mother and child and she had to walk very warily, indeed, lest the young master suspect her double dealing.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THREE MEN IN A BOAT

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: So She Won't Talk

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

CONCLUDING SUMMARY OF SLAM TRIES OVER ONE NO TRUMP.

First. Lacking a five card suit, you can make only invitational responses in terms of no trumps. Three no trumps, when you have not already passed, invites a slam by virtue of high cards without suit length. Requirements—three tricks plus intermediates, including either two aces or one ace and one king-queen holding. With almost four tricks, you can make the invitation stronger by bidding four no trumps, which partner can raise to six if able to confirm the unqualified soundness of his opening bid. With four primary tricks, plus about a jack for margin, responder can usually name every high card which constituted his partner's opening bid. Able to count losers, he should respond with six no trumps, which the opener may take to seven if he has about a half trick in reserve, or, better still, with a strong concealed five card suit.

Second. With one or more suits of not less than five cards, the responding hand may make a forcing take-out of three in the suit provided [a] that his hand contains an ace; [b] that the forcing suit is headed by the top cards called for by its length; [c] that the hand contains the primary trick values called for by the length of the main suit.

Third. With a void holding, make eventual use of the cue bid. If this will necessarily force your partner to six in the suit he prefers of those you have bid on genuine suit length, start the bidding with a take-out of only two unless you have your full primary values and are thereby justified in deciding immediately to reach slam in spite of opener's signoffs.

Fourth. Let the location of aces be your first consideration. You need never reach a slam in these circumstances with two aces against you unless you do so deliberately because of a void suit.

Safety First.

Fifth. When in doubt, make a minimum takeout on the first round and a jump bid later. This will give you something in reserve on your later bidding. The meaning of an immediate jump take-out is definite regarding the possession of an ace, a strong suit and primary values. On no account deceive your partner at this stage. Better to underbid slightly now, and surprise him pleasantly later. If your partner's response was in minimum terms but you, nevertheless, make a jump bid subsequently to a minimum take-out, he will deduce that your hand must contain an ace and very nearly the requirements for an immediate forcing take-out. There should be no risk of missing a slam because your were cautious on your first response. You have thereby made it permissible for you yourself to bid all the more freely afterward. This same principle governs our theory of opening bids. It is always true, whenever it can be applied. It preserves your forcing bids from dilution; it enables you not only to enter the bidding, but to remain in it.

Sixth. With extreme freak hands, allow yourself to devise your own strategy if some departure from the beaten path seems necessary. However, do not allow your investigation of the ace situation to become obscured unless you can afford to disregard it because of "cue" holdings.

Freaks Flock Together.

Seventh. At all times, remember that freak distribution in your hand is likely to be reproduced in one or more of the other hands. Do not assume that the opening bidder's distribution is even, both in strength and suit divisions, until he has passed up the opportunity to bid a concealed strong suit of five or more cards below the three no-trump level. If his no-trumper was the "one long strong suit with outside stoppers" species, his support for your suit or suits may not solidify them; so that even with full slam inviting values, you must be willing to sign off short of slam and play the hand in his suit or in no trumps. This decision will be up to you as the responding hand. I will explain this point in detail when we investigate the rebid procedure of the opening no-trump bidder.

Plan Gay Party at Barrington Pool Dedication

Frederic Mather-Smiths, will become the bride of Richard Fletcher Baldwin III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Baldwin of Fall River, Mass. Chicago society remembers Miss Mather-Smith best as a young girl, already a beauty in her early teens, for she has not spent much time here during the last six years. The Mather-Smiths live on their estate, Edgegrove, in Oakland, Fla., near Orlando, during the winter, and the spring and autumn months are spent in Columbia, Tenn. The family spent last summer at Evergreen, Colo., and the summer before that was passed in Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Mather-Smith returned to Chicago to announce Ann's engagement, however, telling the news formally at a luncheon at the Saddle and Cycle club Saturday, and they will remain here for the remainder of the summer. Miss Mather-Smith has been educated privately.

Mr. Baldwin prepared at Hotchkiss and attended the University of Geneva in Switzerland. He is a member of the class of '35 at Yale university, but there is some doubt whether he will finish his college career, for he plans to take his bride around the world on their wedding trip.

Miss Sarah Anne Ridley of Columbia arrived in town Saturday for the announcement party and will remain here for two weeks as the guest of the Mather-Smiths.

Junior League Seeks Early Chicago Relics.

No matter how hot the weather nor how alluring the various summer resorts, the Junior league continues on with its business all during the year. This summer, in addition to the group of members which labors thrice weekly producing plays at the Children's theater on Enchanted Island at the Fair, another group is assisting the Chicago Historical society gain more curios and mementos of Chicago's early life. Oddly enough, the one room at the historical society which is not filled with a rich cross section of early Americana is the Chicago room, and it is sadly lacking in material. The Junior league has appointed a committee headed by Mrs. Ambrose Cramer and Mrs. John I. Shaw to dig up relics and curios and their authenticating data in order to fill this room.

Mrs. Cramer has invited what members of the committee remain in Chicago to her Lake Forest home for luncheon tomorrow to discuss the task. Among those who will be at Mrs. Cramer's board are Mrs. Robert M. Adams, Mrs. Ronald Boardman, Mrs. Bruce Thorne, Mrs. Ewing Webb, and Mrs. Shaw.

Society for Shut-Ins Sale at Oconomowoc.

Mrs. Dexter Fairbanks is a busy woman this summer, traveling from resort to resort with one or more members of the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins, arranging the board's summer sales. A sale will be held tomorrow in Oconomowoc at the home of Mrs. Robert R. Baker, who has just returned from Atlantic City to open her lovely estate, Knollwood, for the occasion. Among the residents of Oconomowoc who will be assisting Mrs. Baker at the sale will be Mrs. George P. Earling, Mrs. Walter E. Faithhorn, Mrs. Frederick C. Thwaits, Mrs. Thomas Van Alyea, and Mrs. Paul Walker. Mrs. Sangston Hettler, Mrs. Daniel Peterkin and Mrs. Earle Zimmerman, president of the society, will drive over from Lake Geneva to assist, and Mrs. Laird Bell will motor up from Chicago with Mrs. Fairbanks. Mrs. John B. Hurley, president of the Junior auxiliary, and two members of the auxiliary, Miss Barbara Graf and Mrs. Eugene Cary Jr., will drive up to Oconomowoc also.

Mrs. Fairbanks will go on tour with the stock shortly, covering Harbor Point, Mackinac and Charlevoix.

Miss Charity Harris to Wed John R. Moulton.

From Greenwich, Conn., comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Charity Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gale Harris, to John Rawlins Moulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Glenn Moulton of Washington, D. C. Mr. Harris is a brother of Hayden B. Harris. Miss Harris has been attending the University of Chicago, and Mr. Moulton also is a student there. After their wedding this summer in Greenwich they will return to Chicago, where Mr. Moulton will continue with his studies.

The Skokie Country club is holding a ladies' bridge day tomorrow at the club in Glencoe. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

It's agreed by the experts that there is no scent in the world so romantic as that of the rose, and if being romantic is your rôle you'll undoubtedly be enamoured of a trio of summer aids to charm and beauty that have just come to town—bath salts, dusting powder, and toilet water, each in a rose perfume.

The pretty pink crystal that will transform the bath water into a perfumed pool are scented with rose geranium, that magic fragrance that is rich but not heavy.

The frothy dusting powder is a straight rose odor. The powder is pure white and as light and fine in texture as any we've ever encountered. The puff is actually an efficient one; in the back there's a snug slot for the fingers.

Third piece in this rose symphony is an exquisite toilet water, perfumed with red rose.

No one of the three items is very expensive, and using one or all as a bath glorifier is a heavenly summer delight. Our own idea would be to adopt all three, tossing the rose crystals into the tub first; then having a glorious shower of slathers of the powder and as a final, fastidious touch spray hair and hands with the red rose toilet water.

Wise Women Take Warning Not to 'Slump'

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You know how it is when a group gets together and hasn't much to talk about. One will make a sweeping statement about women or about men that will start a lively argument. The statement may just prove to be one of those generalities without much substance, after all. But it so happened on an occasion recently it was stated that women on the loose kept their youth longer than most "substantially married" women.

Of course, to clinch her argument the speaker dragged out names of women in the public eye; that is, of such reputation as feed sensational news columns with their doings. I can't mention names, naturally. But one pretty well known "woman of the world" was brought in as illustration and a married relative of hers, both of the same birth year.

For chic, for smartness, and for that look of sophisticated care of person the woman of experience outshines her relative. Her figure is better, her hair more beautifully dressed and cared for, her complexion more artistically done, and her nails better groomed. Her clothes, expensive and a bit sensational, are naturally more covetously admired. Nevertheless, personally, I held out for the warmth, the niceness of person, the softer, sweeter expression of the one not in the limelight, in spite of her heavier figure and her general lack of expensive beauty parlor care.

Some sentiment was swaying my judgment. Not all that, however, for part of the price a woman pays for her sensational reputation is an inescapable hardness with the years. But one person did say with more than the proverbial grain of truth that a woman for whom the man hunting quest was over did not stir herself in the matter of beauty as does one of those women ever "on the make." The latter cannot let herself slump for a minute, with the consequence that she does those things daily that keep the figure down and the complexion up.

A comfortably married woman will let herself spread without being over-concerned, since George seems to think she is all right. She'll do her hair in the same old knot, wear the same old cut and color of clothes. There must be something to it, since beauty salons are notoriously the temple to which wives come with their offerings once they get wind of George's losing his mind over a trim blonde.

It's just an idea we offer for discussion yourselves, or a hint to check up that you're not confirming the suspicions involved.

Angel's Breath.

BY NANCY CABOT.

An applique block as fragile in appearance as its name implies is "Angel's Breath." It is a dainty flower, and one the beauty of which is enhanced and quite in keeping with its ethereal title when the quilt is appliqued in that lovely shade known as "heavenly blue."

Pattern of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

BY MARY MEADE.

With the problems of red and green colored foods taken care of yesterday and the day before, the most difficult of the color cookery problems are out of the way. There is one type of color change, however, that, because it isn't quite as startling as the others, sometimes gets overlooked. And that is the discoloring or yellowing of white foods.

The culprit here is a substance called "flavone." It is present in most of our foods, but seldom makes an important change in them unless they are of an unusually pale color. In rice, white cabbage, potatoes, cauliflower, and especially in certain types of white onions flavone too often turns in the cooking and leaves us with dingy yellow or greenish products when we had a right to expect snowy white foods.

Different from the green pigment, chlorophyll, which thrives in hard or alkaline water, but similar to the red vegetable and fruit coloring, these flavones, invisible when we put them in the kettle of water, are turned to yellow by the presence of alkalies and demand the addition of a little acid to keep them white. Rice sometimes becomes an exceedingly creamy yellow in hard water. Cooked in soft water it is perfection itself.

One other factor sometimes accounts for our mustard colored potatoes or cauliflower. The pigments I called flavones react strongly to iron and often all unknowingly we put white foods into a chipped enamel pan which has iron exposed, and are much distressed by the sudden odd yellowish-green color they acquire in cooking. Watch this in choosing your pan for cookery.

The last color on our cooking color wheel hardly needs to be mentioned at all, but being the bright light on the horizon in that it is practically unaffected by acids or alkalies, I think it deserves a word of appreciation. These last pigments are appropriately called "carotinoids," and supply the yellow and orange color we see in carrots, turnips, squash, and various other golden vegetables and fruits. They do not dissolve out and defy hard water, soft water, or even long hard cooking to injure their colorfulness.

Carrots, however, sometimes take on a dark shade, but for another reason. When cooked in hard water the sugar, which is present so abundantly, is likely to become browned or caramelized by the action of the water salts and so give a noticeable change in color. Cooking only until tender, and the use of soft water, are the answers in this case.

In these three days' food talks I have tried to present a picture of just what it is that gives foods their color, and especially how that color may be retained during cooking. If you have any questions on special color troubles of your own please feel free to write to me about them.

THE WRONG MAN

BY MAY EDGINTON

INSTALMENT XLIX.
MARRIAGE BELLS.

Benjamin Follette knew a restfulness that had been denied him for the last year and more, because with all their experience, all their possessions, all their ambitions and frets and fevers behind them, they were setting out at the beginning of the road again. And whereas, for so long he had wanted to lean again sometimes on the kind breast that had with love soothed the wild anxieties of his young manhood, and thought that lovely comfort gone forever, it was here beside him all the time, and now he pillowed his head on Anny's shoulder as he had done many times long ago.

"You should have told me more," she kept crying and he answered: "You weren't interested, dear one, you said so."

"Because I was jealous, Benjy boy." "But it was all for you, dear one." "It seems to a woman, Benjy boy, that there comes a time when it isn't for her any longer. It's just for itself—all that working, slavery, planning, sacrificing to a great god—a great beast of a god——"

"You were proud at first, Anny."

"I'm prouder now."

"How, Anny, how?" Go on telling me."

"It's a miracle that we should be like this again, here, in this house where you forgot me——"

"Never."

"And I tried to forget you."

"Listen. I never, never forgot you, Anny. You became more like a dream than a woman. That's all."

"I'm a woman, dear. No dream."

"And Cara's a woman, too," he meditated. "No use my trying to make her a son."

"You wanted a son very much, Benjy?"

"Yes, I . . . I did."

"You never said so."

"We'd begun . . . "

"I know. My fault. I see now."

"I see now it was mine."

"Who is that?" she said quickly, and drew herself erect. They were sitting in the half darkness looking out into the gardens, and she felt the presence of the servant in the room, quietly as he had come, and began to feel a small confusion, and then knew that she didn't care. She didn't care who knew that she was sitting on a couch making love with her own husband.

"The evening papers, madam," the servant said. "We're all very excited, madam."

For a moment her hand found Benjamin's hand. The thought ran from her to him: "Already?"

Already the news.

"Put on the lights," she said quietly, and the Madonna lilies rose on the glass wall panels as the light came on behind them. "The reading lamp, too, please," she said.

"In the late news, madam," the butler said.

Under the lamp close to the couch where they sat, they read the late news.

Miss Cara Follette of Toronto married Redman Harmer this afternoon at Edmonton.

Anny sat back quite quietly in a corner of the couch. But Benjamin continued to read the line over and over again.

"Is it true, please, sir?" the servant asked from the background.

She had to touch Benjamin's arm for his attention.

He said in a sure voice:

"Perfectly true. Perfectly."

The servant went out.

"Is it true, Benjy?" Anny asked very softly.

He turned to her:

"Yes," he stammered. "Of course, it's true. I don't know how it comes about, but it's true. I can't tell you how. Harmer did it, but it's true. And—and—and Anny, do you understand what this news means to us, now, tonight, tomorrow? No panic, no crash——"

"Come back here," said Anny. And again his head was on her shoulder. They hugged tight. "This is where you belong," she said, guarding him.

"Listen, dear," he murmured, and he could feel the beat of her heart as ardent as a girl's, "it'll never part us again. Never. And say you're glad. Quick. Say it, Anny."

He began to laugh a little, and checked, her hand over his mouth.

"Listen," said Anny. "I'm not old. Neither are you, my splendid Benjy. Why shouldn't we have a son?" Then she laughed, too. "I'd love to race Cara to it."

Then the telephone rang as if it were marriage bells.

. . . .

"Now that's over," said Harmer, as his wife put down the receiver after speaking on long distance to Toronto. "Now we're not going to trouble even about them for weeks. Are we? We're lost, and the world is ours."

"Half for you and half for me," said Cara, and she went into his arms.

THE END.

Seeking Faults Costs Many a Business Girl an Admirer

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There are thousands of young women in the business world, paragons of efficiency, competence, and intelligence as far as their jobs are concerned, who could learn a good many things from their sisters "at home" about making and holding men friends.

I have on my desk, for instance, a letter from two young stenographers who apparently feel that their lack of companionship is the result of their not wishing to pet or drink.

But that's not where the blame lies. A glance at the letter shows us the real reason:

"We are two stenographers, 20 and 21, who live and work in a small city. We find it difficult to get boy friends, while the other girls, who drink and pet, have no trouble at all. We both dance, enjoy movies and sports, and drive our own cars.

"We can't seem to find any one fellow that comes up to our expectations. When we find that a fellow cares a little for us that is the time we begin to see all his faults. How can we overcome this defect and win popularity with the opposite sex?"

These stenographers must be holding down fairly responsible positions to be able to afford cars of their own. But they've forgotten, if they ever knew, that romance flees in terror from the onslaught of feminine superiority. They haven't realized how men shudder from contact with women possessing calculating, critical minds.

No matter how modern we've become, men still prefer a degree of humility in women. They want their women to seem dependent, if not helpless, with plenty of ah's and oh's in appreciation of their own abilities.

Afternoon Nap May Be Merely a Rest Period

Don't Worry if Your Child Does Not Sleep.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The daytime nap causes mothers a great deal of worry. Let us see how much they need to worry before they set about doing so. Here is one form of the nap problem:

"My two year old daughter is put to bed at 1:30 each afternoon for her nap. However, she seldom sleeps. I keep her in bed—in her own room with the door closed—until 3:30, then get her up. In the past two or three months she has averaged about one nap a week. When she does sleep she will sleep until 5 or 5:30.

"I am at a loss to know if there is something I should do to make her sleep at nap times. Although she plays, talks, and sings while in bed she always seems rested. Should I see that she lies perfectly quiet while in bed—or is it better to keep her door closed and stay out of her room? I do not think she is old enough to give up her naps entirely, and I would certainly appreciate any suggestions."

Now, it's easy if you're a theoretical advice giver to lay down rules such as, "yes, she must sleep," and "every child should have a nap at least until she is 5." But it's not so easy if you're the mother and try to follow the advice.

The fact of the matter is that children vary so greatly in regard to napping that you can't lay down rules about it. Many children begin to lose the nap habit as early as three and some times even earlier. And it is not only circumstances or training that are responsible. Studies have been made in nursery schools and in many homes and it has been proved that you simply cannot make all children sleep in the middle of the day up to a certain age.

Naturally, I believe you should make everything conducive to sleep—such as undressing your small one and having the room cool and quiet and darkened. But if you can't induce sleep, don't worry about it. If your child rests and is alone that's all you can do. And after all that is a great deal.

If you were the mother whose letter I have quoted, I should let well enough alone. It certainly is not advisable to keep a child in her room so long that she drops off into one of those late naps—because those simply throw out her regular bed hour and all the rest of the day's routine. If she seems rested without sleep, the desired end has been gained.

I do think it is often wise to put a young child to bed earlier at night if she begins to skip her nap—but one has to be guided by the individual child. If she does not seem irritable and tired, the chances are she is having enough sleep.

PLOTS BANK RAID OVER LOST JOB, LANDS IN CELL

Kentuckian's Revenge on Home Town Foiled.

A desire to avenge himself for the loss of his job on the town of Guthrie, Ky., landed Gordon Morgan, 43 years old, in a detective bureau cell yesterday.

GORDON MORGAN.

Until May 30 Morgan was telegrapher and ticket taker on the Louisville and Nashville railroad's station at Guthrie, a town of 1,500 persons. He said he was discharged for taking an unauthorized vacation of three days to fish in the Red river. He came to Chicago to visit Eugene Morgan, 2841 Lincoln street, a friend to whom he confided his plan for revenge.

Conceived Bank Robbery.

Gordon said he believed it would be possible to rob the Bank of Guthrie of $20,000 which he knew to be in its vaults. Eugene unfolded the plan to Rodney Langdon, a salesman for the Busse Safe and Vault company, 308 North Michigan avenue, where Eugene is employed. Langdon went to Sergt. Andrew Richards at the detective bureau. Yesterday afternoon Richards, posing as an expert cracksman, met the two Morgans at Lawrence and Western avenues by appointment.

There Gordon Morgan said he knew the combination of the safe, promised entrance could be effected into the bank with ease, and said his only problem was to have an expert work on the time clock of the vault so the combination might be worked. For this work he promised Richards one-third of the $20,000.

Trapped by Police.

As the deal closed Richards signaled Lieut. Richard Barry and his squad who arrested the two Morgans. In his cell Gordon Morgan first attempted to dismiss the plot as a joke, but later confessed he was motivated by a desire for revenge.

The arrest presented police with a nice legal problem. The Morgans had entered into a conspiracy, police said, but the scene of the conspiracy is in another state which might preclude prosecution here. For the present they charged the Morgans with disorderly conduct and will leave solution of the legal problem to a court today.

PRESENT FINANCE PLAN TO COUNTY BOARD TODAY

A plan to make possible the payment of employes' salaries and the retirement of 1929 and 1930 tax anticipation warrants by the sale of $3,000,000 worth of county 1934 corporate fund tax anticipation warrants will be presented to the finance committee of the county board today.

The sale of the warants to Chicago banks is to be conditioned upon an agreement that not more than $5,200,000 of the issue be sold or issued to creditors, according to proponents of the plan, County Comptroler Michael J. O'Connor, County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash and Commissioner Maurice J. Kavanagh, chairman of the committee. The 1934 corporate fund tax levy totals $9,360,000.

The plan, which has been approved by John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures, will insure payment of practically all salaries in cash for the rest of the year. A substantial portion of outstanding supply bills will also be paid in cash or warants.

LINK HUMBOLDT AND SACRAMENTO AVENUE TODAY

West park commissioners and west side civic leaders will attend ceremonies this morning when Humboldt boulevard is connected with Sacramento avenue through Palmer square, eliminating an old trafic hazard. Motorists may hereafter drive through a paved gap in the park area.

Kedzie boulevard will similarly be connected with Kedzie avenue through the park land, as soon as workmen have completed the Humboldt boulevard portion of the project. The necessity for trafic following a semi-circular route around the park land caused many accidents.

The cutting through of the streets has created 150 foot islands on each side of the square. These are being beautified and will have fountains and benches. The work was performed by CWA labor until this was discontinued, and since then mainly by men employed under the work relief plan of the Illinois emergency relief commission.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

A Home-Made Zoo.

July 15, 1934.

RAWLINGS has just had a sort of Brookfield holiday with the "wild animals" here on the farm. When he went around the pond yesterday morning to look at the traps he was able to collect enough animals to start a zoo. For example, this one visit yielded a crow, a woodchuck, an opossum, and a turtle. All but the crow entered the live traps. Mr. Crow was picked up with a pole trap.

When Rawlings got back to the barnyard one of the guinea hens was right there yelling "surprise" at him. This smart old hen was strutting around the yard with 20 young ones. She pulled a trick on everybody by "stealing" her nest, as Rawlings describes it. In other words, she turned up her nose at a comfortable little hatching coop in the barnyard and built a nest in a secret spot. Now that this hen has joined the poultry parade in the barnyard with 20 young ones all is forgiven.

Charley, the good old work horse here on the experimental farm, never will have another chance to help break a colt. This fine animal died suddenly in the pasture yesterday morning. The boys tried to get the poor old fellow up to the barn, but he was too sick to even hobble that short distance. Before the veterinarian could be called Charley was dead.

It was this horse that was so patient this spring when Barney and Bill, a couple of frisky young colts, were broken to harness. Day after day Charley was hitched up to Barney and Bill to show them how a good farm horse ought to behave.

The middle of July finds the farm looking very green and flourishing, and the fields smell good, too. It's fun to lean against the wire fence and look out across the corn which has been developing rapidly since the rain. Down the road in the pasture you can see the sheep dozing in the shade on any hot day.

The oat fields have a story to tell about harvests because all the shocks of oats are neatly stacked, row after row, through the field. Black-eyed Susans, those gay midsummer flowers, make a dash of bright color against the green of the fields.

In the garden near Clarence's house the tomatoes are ripe. The alfalfa is growing fast. The buckwheat is showing above the ground since the rain.

Late in the afternoon you can usually see a cock pheasant gravely walk up from the bird marsh, look over the landscape around the information house and then go back to inspect the rest of his "beat."

While I was hiking around the farm looking at the crops and checking on the growth of the seed planted around the bird marsh to make cover for game birds, I became conscious of the scent of some kind of a flower that was especially rich.

The question was, what flower in mid-July could drench the air so heavily with its perfume.

We finally tracked it down. It was just the common flowering dogbane, the plant that early botanists thought was a sure poison for dogs.

We located quite a growth of this dogbane. It grows about 3 feet high, has many branches in its stem at the top of which are tiny bell-shaped flowers which look very much like lilies of the valley. The edges of these flowers curve back. Although very small each little flower seems to be literally saturated with perfume.

3 UNION CHIEFS TO GIVE UP TODAY IN FLOGGING CASE

Steve Sumner Denies Torture Plot.

Steve Sumner, president of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, and two other officials of the union, against whom disorderly warants were issued Saturday, will surrender to the Fillmore police today, according to information received yesterday. Municipal Judge Robert J. Dunne issued the warants on the complaint of Henry Bresler, president of the Blue Ribbon Dairy, Inc., 3659 Harrison street, after the flogging of five of his employés.

The union officials named in the warants with Sumner are Jack Smith and James Kennedy. The police are also searching for two unidentified men who entered the dairy early Friday morning, carrying shot guns, forcing the employés to line up along a wall, and then flogged with a chain.

Denies Union Responsibility.

Bresler, in court Saturday, said that about ten days before the torture incident the three union officials approached him in his dairy and made efforts to have his employés join the union. He declared that they intimated there would be trouble if his men did not join the union.

Sumner, interviewed over the telephone at his home yesterday, said that no one connected with the union was responsible for the assault.

"When we talked with Bresler on that day he said that he would be willing to have his men join the union provided employés of his rivals also joined," he asserted. "We are out to make friends with the laboring man and we certainly would not resort to any such cruel tactics. However, it is my opinion that every milk driver should belong to the union."

Police Guard Workers' Chief.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office has ordered that the officials be brought to his office for questioning when they surrender or are arrested. He said that his office would spare no pains to determine who perpetrated the outrage.

Sumner, it was learned, still has a policeman for a bodyguard and rides around in a bullet proof automobile. His policeman body guard was assigned to him two years ago when Murray Humphries, who attempted to succeed Al Capone as Chicago's chief racketeer, made efforts to take over the union by force. Sumner installed machine guns in the union office on South Ashland avenue.

GIANTS WIN, 5-3; HUBBELL STOPS CUB RALLY

ALL-STAR TEAM IS ALL PACIFIC IN COAST'S EYES

Thinks Its Heroes Can Whip Bears.

BY ARCH WARD.

The all-star college football team which will play the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field Aug. 31 will be made up almost entirely of coast players, if California fans have their way. The voting among the fans of Los Angeles and San Francisco has been as brisk as in the Chicago area, where you might expect considerable interest.

Ernie Nevers of Stanford, former manager of the Chicago Cardinals and one of the greatest players football has produced, has broader views than most of the coast fans, but even Nevers names only four men from sections other than the coast. This is the team Ernie would like to see take the field in Chicago's big charity game:

Ends—Canrinus, St. Mary's, and Skladany, Pittsburgh.
Tackles—Jorgenson, St. Mary's, and Crawford, Duke.
Guards—Corbus, Stanford, and Rosenberg, Southern California.
Center—Bernard, Michigan.
Quarter back—Griffith, Southern California.
Full back—Sauer, Nebraska.

"There will be so many men from different sections who will be favorites in their own back yard I thought I might as well go native son also," Nevers explained. "The only possible weakness I can see on the team I have submitted is the lack of a blocking quarter back. Masterson of Nebraska probably is best in this respect, but I would string along with Griffith on his all round ability."

Warburton Picks All Coast Men.

Interest in the game is so keen in California that Bill Henry, sports editor of the Los Angeles Times, reports his department is unable to keep up to date with the votes.

Cotton Warburton, Southern California quarter back who has been the most brilliant ball carrier football has had the last two years, has picked a team composed entirely of coast players. Warburton himself is not eligible to compete as he has another year at Southern California.

"I did not include any midwestern or eastern men on my selections," Warburton stated, "because in the first place I believe coast players can handle the Bears themselves, and secondly because I don't know enough about men in other sections to comment intelligently."

This is the way the Trojan athlete would line up the team:

Half backs—Wilson, St. Mary's, and McNeish, Southern California.
Full back—Keeble, University of California at Los Angeles.

"You couldn't ask for better ends than Smith and Canrinus," Warburton wrote in his letter to the Los Angeles Times. "Few fans, particularly those in the east, know how good Schwammel and Jorgenson were at tackles, but I can remember well the trouble they gave us. I wouldn't trade Larry Stevens and Aaron Rosenberg of Southern California for all the guards in the country. Coats and Keeble would go well with the other stars. Wilson is one of the hardest runners in football, while McNeish's blocking and passing were not surpassed on the coast last season."

Get Yours In Early.

Midwest fans who are anxious to see Manske of Northwestern, Krause of Notre Dame, Schammel of Iowa, Gailus of Ohio State, Jones of Indiana, Bernard of Michigan, Krueger of Marquette, Laws of Iowa, Pardonner of Purdue, Lukats of Notre Dame and other stars get into the game had better go to work. The players who receive the most votes will be chosen for the squad regardless of where they live. Should a player who has been voted a place on the squad be unable to accept, the man receiving the next greatest number will be moved up.

You have only a little more than a week to send in your selections. The contest closes July 25. Address your lineups to the All-Star Game Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

AUSTRALIA BEATS CZECHS; U. S. NET TEAM NEXT FOE

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, July 15.—(AP)—Australia defeated Czechoslovakia, three matches to two, in the European zone Davis cup tennis finals today and qualified to meet the United States in the interzone finals.

It was a narrow squeak for the Australians, young Vivian McGrath hanging up the deciding victory in the final match of the series when he defeated Ladislaus Hecht, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, 7-5, after Jack Crawford had lost to Roderich Menzel, Czech star, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 3-6.

Menzel's victory was his second of the series, for he beat McGrath, 10-8, 6-2, 8-6, on the opening day of play Friday when Crawford defeated Hecht, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

THE GUMPS—ALL IN A DAY'S CATCH

Play Off Today for St. Paul Open Golf Prize.

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—(AP)—Climaxing a day of spectacular thrills that kept the gallery cheering until the final putt dropped, Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee raced over the Keller fairways with a smashing 65 today to tie the marathon twins, Harry Cooper of Chicago and Ky Laffoon of Denver, and throw the $5,000 St. Paul open golf tournament into a playoff.

Cooper and Laffoon had just matched each other with sub-par 69s to put the seventy-two hole duel for top money into a deadlock when Revolta came home to make it a threesome. The trio, tied at 283 strokes, will meet in a thirty-six hole playoff for the title tomorrow.

Equals Course Record.

Revolta's round carried him from a ninth place tie after fifty-four holes and equaled the course record set by Ed Dudley in the 1931 tournament. His score was more remarkable than Dudley's, however, as the course has been stiffened with a liberal assortment of traps.

Tommy Armour faltered on the final four holes to toss away what seemed to be a certain winning total.

With only nine holes left Armour held a one stroke lead over Cooper and Laffoon, who then appeared to be his only threats. But the silver Scot, who had rushed into contention in the morning with a great 67, lost his putting stroke suddenly and finished with three 5s to fade out of the picture with a 286, tied later by George Von Elm of Akron, O., and Sam Parks of Pittsburgh. Cooper picked up three shots on the same holes with a 4—4—4 finish.

Needs Birdie to Win.

Laffoon, the next to finish, stood on the final tee with victory in sight over the man who beat him in the western open playoff. He needed a birdie 4 on the 462 yard hole, a setup par 5, but he blew his chance by pushing his tee shot into a trap, dubbing his out and just getting in with a 5 to tie.

Then came Revolta, who played almost alone except for his three partners until word spread that he was 7 under par and needed a birdie 4 on the last hole to win. Showing the strain of his great round, Revolta pushed his tee shot into the same trap that stopped Laffoon, hit a pretty out, and landed 30 feet from the pin in 3. He putted boldly, but the ball rolled 5 feet too far and he was happy to get his 5 and a tie. Revolta took 13 putts each way, scoring 33 out and 32 back to crack par by seven shots.

The leaders' three rounds were: Revolta, 73—74—71—65—283; Cooper, 69—73—72—69—283; Laffoon, 72—70—72—69—283.

Horton Smith Is Seventh.

After taking a stroke lead with a 70 in the morning, Horton Smith of Chicago fell to a 74 on his last trip to wind up in seventh place. Walter Hagen of Detroit landed next with 288.

Three tied at 291—Oliver Sleppy, St. Louis; William Kaiser, Louisville; and Orville White, St. Louis. Bunny Torpey of Kansas City shot a 293 to land in the money.

TOUCHDOWN!

Yes, sir, the football season is opening early this year—Aug. 31, to be exact—and it's opening with a game that will beat any October or November battle you ever saw.

A real all-American college team, chosen from last year's senior stars by the nation's football fans, will meet the Chicago Bears, professional champions, at Soldiers' field on Friday night, Aug. 31.

Don't forget that the early bird catches the best seats. Four thousand of the seats between the 25 yard lines are $1.65. All others are $1.10. All are reserved. Just mail check or money order, payable to The Chicago Tribune, to Football Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

TRIPLE STEAL WORKS—AND IT HAD TO HAPPEN TO SOX!

Bob Johnson, major league home run leader, slides in safely under Catcher Shea of the White Sox in the eighth inning of the first game at Comiskey park yesterday as the Philadelphia Athletics worked a triple steal. It happens about once in a lifetime. So it happened to the Sox. The umpire is Red Ormsby and the batter Charlie Berry, Athletic catcher, formerly of the Sox. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Eaton Whips Goldman in Western Golf

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 15.—[Special.]—Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City today defeated David Goldman of Dallas, Tex., 4 and 3, in a thirty-six hole match over the Twin Hills Country club course, to win the western amateur golf championship. He succeeds Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, Chicago, as champion.

Eaton, 21 years old today, has been considered a great medal player for a long time, having been medalist in four tournaments in the last year, but today marked his first major championship. He was the eighth medalist to win the title in the thirty-five years' history of the western amateur.

Beats Two Champions.

Goldman, who eliminated Westland in the quarter-finals and disposed of another champion, Charlie Yates of Atlanta, the national intercollegiate titleholder, yesterday battled Eaton nearly all the way, being only 1 down at the turn this morning and two holes in arrears at the halfway mark at noon, a margin which Eaton also held when they made the turn this afternoon. From then to the finish, however, Goldman faded fast.

Eaton boosted his lead to 3 up after the turn, driving a beautiful tee shot into a strong wind to reach the green on the par 4, 287 yard hole, and score a birdie 3. After that the new champion did not lose a hole, ending the match at the thirty-third with his par 4. Goldman tried hard to prolong it, but he missed a 10 foot putt by inches.

Eaton Steps Out.

Goldman was trans-Mississippi medalist this year and in 1932 lost to Gus Moreland in the trans-Mississippi finals here. Eaton was medalist in the same tourney a year ago as well as in the 1933 western and the Oklahoma state amateur.

Goldman missed two chances to square the match in the first two holes of the second 18. At the first Eaton drove into a deep ravine which parallels the fairway and then had to take a penalty strike to get a playable lie. Goldman, however, after whipping a 300 yard drive over the trees and on to the fairway, sent his second over the green. Both took 5s, one over par.

Both Have Trouble.

Eaton drove into the rough off the 20th tee while Goldman was down the center and on, 15 feet from the pin, with his second. But two putts cost him the hole when Eaton chipped a third to within six feet of the cup and holed it for a half.

Eaton got into plenty of trouble at

15 Quit Crew of Endeavour, Racing Yacht

[Copyright: 1934: By The New York Times.]

Portsmouth, England, July 15.—[Special.]—Fifteen out of the twenty-three men of Endeavour's crew went on strike and left the ship today, refusing to accept the wages which the owner, T. O. M. Sopwith, offered them.

Mr. Sopwith promptly announced that he would fill the vacancies with amateur yachtsmen who, he said, had already applied in large numbers. Endeavour's departure, fixed for next Saturday, will be postponed for a few days. Some time in the following week the British challenger for the America's cup will set sail across the Atlantic, manned by fifteen amateurs and eight professionals.

The trouble sprang up suddenly last night when the crew presented a formal demand for twice as much extra money as Sopwith offered. The men had been getting $13.50 a week for sailing in England. With racing prizes this brought their wages roughly to $25—more, according to Sopwith, than is being paid on American yachts.

For sailing to the United States and racing for the America's cup, Sopwith had offered them $27.50 a week if Endeavour loses and $32.50 if it wins.

This morning fifteen malcontents packed their kits and left. Six officers and two hands accepted Sopwith's terms.

"Sopwith doesn't mind," it was said on the owner's behalf later. "He is sorry to lose good men, but he thinks amateurs are just as good as paid hands, especially since some of the best known amateur yachtsmen in England have been begging him for places in Endeavour's crew."

ATHLETICS END PHILANTHROPY; BEAT SOX TWICE

Capture Double Header, 11-7 and 10-5.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox were rudely surprised yesterday by discovering their cousins from Philadelphia had turned on them. Part of the turn was painfully evident in the front portion of a doubleheader which the Athletics captured, 11 to 7. The other part showed up in the second game, which the guests lugged away without much trouble by a 10 to 5 score. However, the Sox can console themselves with the knowledge that they still have a big edge over the Philadelphians in the season's play. They have won 8 out of 13 starts.

The run production in the first game is sufficient proof that it was a sorry occasion for pitchers. Three of them served for the Sox and four for the Athletics, and by working diligently these seven men were able to pile up 20 bases on balls.

Then Comes Gallivan.

When Phil Gallivan was summoned to pitch the nightcap the 12,000 attending folks may have felt they were about to see a marked improvement in the Sox affairs, but they didn't have to wait long for disappointment.

Phil went into arrears as early as the second inning due to a homer by Eric McNair with one on. From then on to the finish his troubles were numerous. So were those of the Sox.

FIRST GAME

The happenings which culminated in four runs off Tietje in the third inning started with a single to center by Baldy McNair. After Simmons had handled Cramer's line drive, Johnson singled to right to put McNair on third. Tietje walked Foxx. This filled the bases and Higgins promptly cleaned up by banging a homer into the first story of the left field stands.

The Sox didn't warm up sufficiently to make a hit off Benton until the fourth. Then they produced three singles good for two runs. Swanson bunted past Benton. Dykes popped out, but Bonura singled to center to send Swanson to third. Bonura took second on the throw in. Swanson scored while Simmons was being tossed out by McNair. Appling singled off Warstler's glove, Bonura scoring. Boken fouled out.

Tietje Out, Heving In.

Tietje faded from sight in the fifth after four men in a row had reached base. This started when Foxx walked with one out. Higgins singled to left and Miller walked, filling the bases. Warstler singled to left, but only Foxx scored because of the speed with which Simmons made the throw in. Heving then came in and the inning ended abruptly with a double play in which Bonura featured with a neat pickup of a low relay throw from Appling.

Heving was only partly to blame for two runs scored by the A's in the sixth. With two out Cramer and Johnson singled and Foxx walked for the fourth time. Higgins also walked, forcing Cramer to score. Then Dykes fumbled Miller's roller and Johnson scored, leaving the Sox in arrears by 7 to 2.

The end of Benton's effectiveness began when Shea singled with one out in the seventh. Haas batted for Heving and walked. Jones ran for him. Conlan also walked, filling the bases. Mahaffey relieved Benton and Swanson singled to score Shea. Mahaffey gave up to Cascarella. The latter hit Dykes and Jones was forced in. Bonura walked and Conlan scored. Swanson scored the fourth run while Simmons was forcing Bonura.

There Goes the Ball Game!

The Sox dropped back again when three scored off Wyatt in the eighth. Johnson singled and Foxx was credited with a hit Boken should have grabbed. Higgins fanned and Miller walked. After Warstler had popped out a triple steal was pulled to score Johnson. The two others scored on a single by Berry. The Athletics' final run was Johnson's homer No. 27.

In the ninth Simmons doubled and a series of three passes forced him in.

SECOND GAME

BRUINS DROP TO 2 GAMES BACK OF CHAMPIONS

Malone Gives Way to Tinning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—The Cubs had it all figured out how they were going to go into a tie for first place with the Giants this afternoon. But some things happened, mostly well timed enemy base hits and fine pitching by Hal Schumacher and finer relief pitching by Carl Hubbell, and the Cubs ended the day's sweltering endeavor before 24,000 on the short end of a 5 to 3 score. Instead of being in first place, the Chicagoans now are in second place by a margin of two games.

Schumacher was the winning pitcher, although he went away in favor of Hubbell in the midst of a Chicago rally with one out in the seventh. It was Hal's eighth straight victory and his 13th in 17 starts. Schumacher might have gone the route, but he was so busy running bases that he tired under the severe heat. The Cubs didn't get a pitcher out all afternoon. Schumacher made two hits, walked once and scored two runs. Hubbell singled his only time up.

Terry, Ott Lead Attack.

Even so, the main hit trouble didn't come from the pitchers, but from gents who have been known to make trouble before, namely, William Terry, now leading hitter in the National league, and the runner-up in the league batting averages, one Melvin Ott.

Manager Terry made a single and a pair of doubles, scoring the run which put the Giants ahead in the fifth inning. Ott, who made two doubles and two singles in yesterday's opener, was content to make just two doubles this afternoon. One of these drove in the run which put the Giants ahead in the second inning, and the other, with two out and the count three balls and two strikes, supplied the Giants' winning margin in the sixth.

Too Hot for Malone.

Pat Malone wasn't an especially bad pitcher, but didn't have the stuff with which he held Boston to three hits the other day. For one thing, it was much too hot for Pat to show his greatest skill. He was greatly vexed by the fact that the last three Giant runs were predicated on doubles by Terry and Ott which dropped near the left field foul line, whereas all the form players were expecting them to hit almost any direction except the way they did.

The Cubs still have a chance to leave this town in first place, though it is a pretty mean ticket. They will have to win Tuesday's double header and Wednesday's final.

Cubs Get One in First.

The Cubs scored a run in the first inning and had runners on third and first when the side went out. Billy Herman opened with a single over second, but was forced by English. Stainback flied to Moore, after which Babe Herman walked. Cuyler singled to left, scoring English and putting Babe Herman on third. Vergez threw out Hartnett.

For a time in the Giant third inning the New Yorkers seemed on the way to a million. Then with two runs in and the bases full and one out Malone braced and snuffed out the enterprise. Schumacher led off with a line single to left and went to third on Moore's single to right. The runners held on while Critz flied to Babe Herman. Terry bounced one to Billy Herman, whose throw to the plate was too late to prevent Schumacher from sliding in with the tying run.

Ott doubled to left center, Moore scoring and Terry stopping at third. O'Doul was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Jackson was called out on strikes for the second successive time and Vergez popped to English.

All Square in Fourth.

Here's the way the Cubs tied it up in the fourth. Cuyler led off with his second single of the game and reached third when Hartnett dropped a single in left center just out of the reach of

BATTAGLIA PUTS PHAGAN TO BIG TEST TONIGHT

Meet in Ten Rounds at Marigold Gardens.

One of the most attractive bouts arranged in Chicago this year will be presented tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, when Frank Battaglia, erstwhile Winnipeg, Man., middleweight, meets Johnny Phagan. It is scheduled for ten rounds, but many fans believe it will end before the required distance has been reached. The weight is 160 pounds.

It is Phagan's chance to earn national recognition. Since he catapulted to international prominence as an amateur boxer in 1932 when he knocked out Eric Campe in the Golden Gloves bouts with Germany, Phagan has been striving for top ranking in the professional field. He is sure to make the most of his opportunity.

Curiously enough, the right hand which stopped his German opponent has not been much in evidence against pro fighters. The power still is there, but inability to connect accurately has produced a knockout record which is almost nil. Perhaps realization of the pugilistic position in which he will find himself in case he lands his vaunted right tonight may cause Johnny to unleash it more often than in previous fights.

While Phagan will be fighting for prominence and the huge monetary rewards which go with it, Battaglia has a battle of his own. If he loses Frank's standing will take the third drop in four months, which may indicate that his days as a topnotcher are numbered. A year ago last January Battaglia was beaten by Ben Jeby for recognition as world middleweight titleholder in New York.

Eddie Stiegal, south side welterweight, has been substituted for Danny Neenan against Frank Genovese in a six round semi-final. Other contests:

Lou Vine vs. Harold Dunnington [4], 138.
Joe Serletic vs. Bob La Monte [4], 150.
Dale Haddock vs. Dick Gamon [wrestling].

Sammy Mosco, Omaha, Neb., featherweight, will meet Everett [Young] Rightmeier in an eight round bout tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Johnny Stanton, Minneapolis, Minn., junior welterweight, will give George Claussen of New Orleans, La., his first Chicago test in another. Tony Zale, Gary, faces Einar Hedquist at four rounds. Other four round scraps bring together Nestor Bruggman and Angelo Garlow, and Floyd Embrey and Jimmy Salvatore.

The Medill Tribune Post, No. 348, of the American Legion tonight will dedicate a ring donated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to Edward Hines hospital with a series of bouts for entertainment of 1,800 disabled world war veterans. Hugh Banks, past commander, is chairman of the committee arranging the affair.

Hayes Arrives to Train for Rodak Bout

Petey Hayes, stocky New York fighter, who became a leading challenger for the featherweight title by whipping Kid Chocolate last Wednesday, arrived at the Union station yesterday morning to prepare for a 10 round bout with Leo Rodak at Wrigley field Wednesday. He was accompanied by Trainer Ray Arcel and Manager Frank Jacobs.

In the afternoon Hayes journeyed to Trafton's gymnasium to do loosening up exercises. Although he didn't do any boxing Petey impressed critics with his form. He is slated to spar this afternoon.

Steve Halaiko, Buffalo, N. Y., welterweight, trained yesterday for his 10 round match with Harry Dublinsky. Halaiko, an American of Ukrainian antecedents, has not appeared here in several years. He has been a topnotcher since 1930. His most prominent accomplishments were two victories over Wesley Ramey.

Tait Littman, Cudahy, Wis., 165 pounder, took a layoff but will resume drills today for his 10 round bout against Teddy Yarosz of Pittsburgh, Pa. Vince Dundee, middleweight champion, has been ordered by the New York athletic commission to sign within 30 days for the defense of his title against Yarosz. Littman, with recent victories over Frank Battaglia and Kid Leonard, may knock Yarosz' plans awry. He has a straight left to the head which is expected to cause Teddy considerable trouble.

Cavalcade to Skip Handicap, Rivals Hope

BY FRENCH LANE.

Owners of the older handicap stars now racing at Arlington Park were doing their best yesterday to discover if Cavalcade will step out of the 3 year old division next Saturday afternoon and run in the $10,000 added Arlington Handicap.

They all hope that he doesn't, for they want no more of Cavalcade's game than it is necessary for them to accept. Their hopes in this instance probably will continue, for Trainer Bob Smith indicated yesterday that Cavalcade's next appearance under silks likely will be at Saratoga next month.

May Not Leave His Division.

He wasn't ready to say when Cavalcade will go against older horses. He might not step out of his division this season if the proposed match race between Cavalcade and Windsor Lad, the English Derby winner, should be arranged. It hardly seems likely this match will be made, although a representative of a California track is now in Europe endeavoring to sign Windsor Lad up for the race.

Cavalcade was in fine shape yesterday after his brilliant triumph in the Arlington Classic. He will be allowed to take things easy for a couple of weeks before Trainer Smith begins pointing him for the race at Saratoga.

As for Discovery, he must have heaved a sigh of relief yesterday when his trainer, Bud Stotler, thumbed through the Saratoga entries and found out that the Vanderbilt colt is not eligible for the Travers Stakes. So Discovery won't have to trail Cavalcade home for the seventh time this year in that event.

Discovery is not eligible for the Arlington Handicap on Saturday, either. He will be on his way to Saratoga within a few days. The Brookmeade stable, however, has numerous eligibles for Saturday's race, and also for the $50,000 Arlington Futurity to be run on the final day of the meeting, July 28; so Cavalcade will take his little vacation at Arlington secure in the knowledge that his stablemates are carrying on for Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane.

Ladysman Is O. K.

There was considerable concern in the W. R. Coe stable yesterday about a limp which Ladysman, the handicap star of that outfit, developed after a workout during the early training hours. Trainer Hugh Fontaine last night, however, found the ailment had disappeared.

Trainer Fontaine is confident Ladysman will turn the tables on Indian Runner and win the Arlington Handicap. Inlander, last year's Classic winner, likely will be the Brookmeade stable hope in the Arlington Handicap. He is in splendid condition and in the event of a muddy track no doubt will be the horse to beat in the race for the $10,000 prize.

The Lincolnshire Polo club yesterday defeated the 124th Field Artillery team at Lincolnshire, 10 goals to 3. The game was featured by the passing of Lieuts. Don Rice and Chris Schuh, who scored four and three goals, respectively, for the victors. A crowd of 2,500 saw the game.

Neo Wins First Race of White Series for Stars

The Star boat Neo captured the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's first race of the white series yesterday afternoon. Sailing Neo in a steady northeasterly, Tom Waage and Fred Price led nine other Stars around the course. Neo covered the five nautical miles in 53 minutes 35 seconds.

The second place boat, Silver Spray, finished one minute after the winner. Mr. and Mrs. William Kendig piloted the Silver Spray. Twenty-five seconds astern of Silver Spray was Gemini, new Sheridan Shore champion. Besides Skipper Sam Pirie Jr., on the Gemini were Mrs. Pirie and Mrs. Tom Waage.

The last boat to finish was Aquila, a new Star boat brought from Detroit, Mich., last week. The Bergman-Jenkins syndicate sloop Blue Mist was disabled just before the start when its main halyard parted.

Roy Coombs of the Lincoln Park Canoe club yesterday won the final races for the Gardner Trophy held off Sheridan beach with 23 points. Hank Worthman, national champion, was defending the trophy, which he has won for three successive years.

John Bergeson of the South Shore Canoe club was runner-up with 21 points. Art Prager, representing the Columbia Canoe club, placed fourth, having 19 and a fraction points. Ted Druding, another Columbia canoeist, gathered 19 points, but lost out during the third race to windward. Worthman fouled a mark in the last race and finished the series with only 16 points.

Golf Students Get Ready for Form Contest

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

With the eighteen hole medal play tournament, first portion of the graduating exercises of THE TRIBUNE's second annual free golf school, concluded, the 114 prize pupils who represent the 19 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association yesterday prepared for the second and final test, a form contest, to be held at Mid-City, Grace street and Western avenue, Thursday night.

All of the pupils who competed in the medal play tournament at Mission Hills Saturday will be eligible for prizes in the form competition. If your score was too high to win one of the awards in the actual tournament, it will not prevent you from carrying away one of the prizes at Mid-City, where swinging form will be the sole basis of competition. Good scorers in golf do not necessarily always boast the best swing, a fact which will receive great consideration from the six leading professionals who will decide the winners Thursday night.

Rate High as Teachers.

This jury of six is composed of players who have not only established themselves as among the ablest competitors in the game, but also are listed high on the roll of instructors. To obtain such a sextet is unusual, for your star tournament player is not generally one of the better teachers and the names of the best instructors are generally found missing from the scoreboards of the big events.

The six who combine these talents of player and teacher alike are Horton Smith of Oak Park, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Tommy Armour of Medinah, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Jock Hutchison of Glen View, and Dick Metz of Mill Road Farm course.

Big Gallery Expected.

No large gallery appeared during the medal play tournament at Mission Hills, a condition which was anticipated in view of its location, but one of the largest crowds ever to attend a golfing event of this type is expected to see the form final. They will come not only to watch exhibitions of shots by the professionals, but also to examine the swings of the pupils who won their way to the finals.

The true, dyed-in-the-wool golfer who is constantly seeking to improve his game, if only it be by changing his stance an inch or two forward or back, will be given a real treat during the course of the show by Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley and his brother Packy, who will present their slow motion demonstration of the swing. The two have performed this novelty so often at smaller gatherings, with Packy doing the swing in perfect time with Tom's explanation of it, that they now have it down to a point where every stage in the swing is quite clear to the spectator.

Must Report Early.

Each pupil must appear at Mid-City between 6:30 and 7 p. m. to obtain one of the numbered arm bands which will serve as their identification during the contest. None of the judges Thursday will have seen any of the pupils before the contest and will know them only by their number, as far as final form is concerned. Each student will be allowed four swings on a platform which will be erected between the judging station and the spectators. Each judge will score his judgment of each pupil on the basis of 100 points, so that every student will be working for 600 points as a perfect record.

After the totaling of the entire class' scores the prizes won in both finals, at Mission Hills and Mid-City, will be presented.

Play Off Two Ties.

Prior to the form contest, two ties resulting at Mission Hills will be played off on a sudden death arrangement. Mrs. Mildred Simmons of Hickory Hills and Evelyn Jacobs of Mid-City will play for first place in the individual women's class, while Herbert Molzhan of Indian Head and Harry Allsbrow Jr. of Vernon will battle for third place in the boys' class. They will report at 5:30 p. m.

FIFTH ANNUAL TRIBUNE SWIM

NORTH SIDERS WIN PLACES IN TRIBUNE SWIM

Elwell Has Best Time in California Park Races.

Entries Close Today

TODAY is the last opportunity to enter The Tribune swimming meets. One-half of the field of qualifiers for the ten championships at Lincoln park July 29 has ben chosen. Entries close at midnight tonight for the preliminaries at Cermak pool Saturday and at Whealan pool next Sunday afternoon.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The north side swimmers in THE TRIBUNE's fifth annual 100 yard races yesterday afternoon completed the second of the qualifying trials at California park and this morning 41 boys and girls have been named for the ten title events at Lincoln park on July 29. The remaining 40 qualifiers will be chosen this week end at Cermak pool, Lyons, Ill., and at Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avenues.

Twenty-nine races were held yesterday at California park. Slightly cooler weather than Saturday, when the south side trials were held at Sherman park, was appreciated by the spectators who lined the fence to see the contests for the right to compete in the gold medal championship races at Lincoln park. These ten races—five for boys and five for girls—will be held on the afternoon of July 29 in connection with a regatta of crew races, canoe races and exhibitions of diving.

Elwell's Time Best.

James Elwell of the Lake Shore Athletic club, competing in class E, for boys 19 years of age and over, swam 100 yards in 59 6-10 seconds, the best mark so far. Elwell thus is a prominent contender for the Chicagoland championship. Lake Shore, California park, and swimmers from the Jewish People's institute accounted for half of the qualifying positions, but unattached contestants made a splendid showing.

Two sisters, Happy and Ethel Hurtiene, of the Lake Shore A. C., qualified in classes B and C, respectively. Kathleen Fabish of California park turned in one of the fastest races of the trials when she qualified in class D.

Entries Close Tonight.

Entries close tonight at midnight for the remaining two sections. Admittance cards, notification of racing numbers, and other information will be mailed Wednesday to all those eligible for the trials at Cermak pool and Whealan pool. No post entries will be accepted.

Two Changes in Chicago District Golf Schedule

Two changes in the Chicago District Golf association's tournament schedule for this week were announced yesterday by Joseph G. Davis, secretary of the association. The annual junior medal play event, scheduled for today at Edgewater, has been postponed because the latter club will hold its annual invitational, the Hy-Jinx, tomorrow. The association's seventh one day handicap event, originally scheduled for Thursday at the Evanston Golf club, will be held Friday instead.

American Giants Beat Bacharach, 6-5 and 14-4

American Giants beat the Bacharach Giants of Atlantic City in a double header yesterday at Cole's park, 6 to 5 and 14 to 4. The same teams will play today.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR Wake: Readers of these Earlier Chicago incidents would, I think, be interested in excerpts from a lecture delivered at Joliet, Ill., Dec. 17, 1872, by George H. Woodruff:

To relieve the tedium of the winter of 1834 I made my first visit to Chicago in January. . . . The last nine miles of the road were splendid. In those days the prairie from the Chicago river out to the Des Plaines was covered with water, which, freezing, made a fine roadway in winter.

We stopped at the Sauganash, the crack hotel of those days. It was part frame and part logs, standing at the forks of the river where the Wigwam, in which Lincoln was nominated, afterward was built.

Upon the west side close to the river were two or three buildings. From the Sauganash down to the few stores and houses on Lake and Water streets was a stretch of prairie, while old Fort Dearborn, its offices and palisades brilliant in whitewash, was the most conspicuous object in that area now covered with marble palaces.

I suppose the population of Chicago was less than 2,000. I called at the office of Collins & Caton, where I found an old college friend and made the acquaintance of that law firm, so well known subsequently.

I well remember the appearance of Judge Caton, not then chief justice, but at the other end of the ladder as justice of the peace. He was a good specimen of the "style" of that day—broadcloth pants tucked into the tops of "stoga" boots, satin vest, plug hat, ruffle shirt, and over all the blanket coat so universally worn by all classes. "Stoga" boots were a necessity in those days, as in no other rig could the streets of Chicago be navigated.

Kildare.

When the Bryn Mawr addition to Edgewater was opened on the north side it included the property at the southeast corner of Clark street and Hollywood avenue, 715x1,036 feet. The conveyance was from Mary J. Higgie to James W. Hedenberg for a nominal consideration. Mr. Hedenberg gave back a trust deed for $55,000 for five years at 5 per cent.

The deal included the ground between Hollywood avenue, Clark street, Bryn Mawr, and Southport avenues. The subdivision was crossed by Olive avenue. There were 64 lots in one block, 59 in the other.

Won't Be Long Now.

A tent beside a little stream
Far from the city's busy cry,
Where amber waters softly gleam
And pine trees croon a lullaby.
A lonely trail which winds its way
Where woodland songster gaily sings
As, peacefully, the parting day
Upon the night her mantle flings.

Wood smoke drifting to the sky,
A sportsman clad in rough attire
Watching kettles hung awry,
Sorting dry wood for the fire.
Scenes like these, though ever fair,
Tantalize a hungry man . . .
Hint of Java in the air,
Trout a-curlin in the pan.

Golf Fatigue.

One of our friends, addicted to golf, had an important match to play the following day, so went to bed early but had difficulty getting to sleep. Finally falling into fitful slumber he had a dream. His dream engaged him in a driving contest. All the other contestants sent long shots shrieking down the fairways. Always the balls placed for him were larger and heavier. He became angry in his dream, tried so hard for distance, kept at it so long that upon awakening he felt completely exhausted physically. He lost his match 6 up and blames his disaster on the dream.

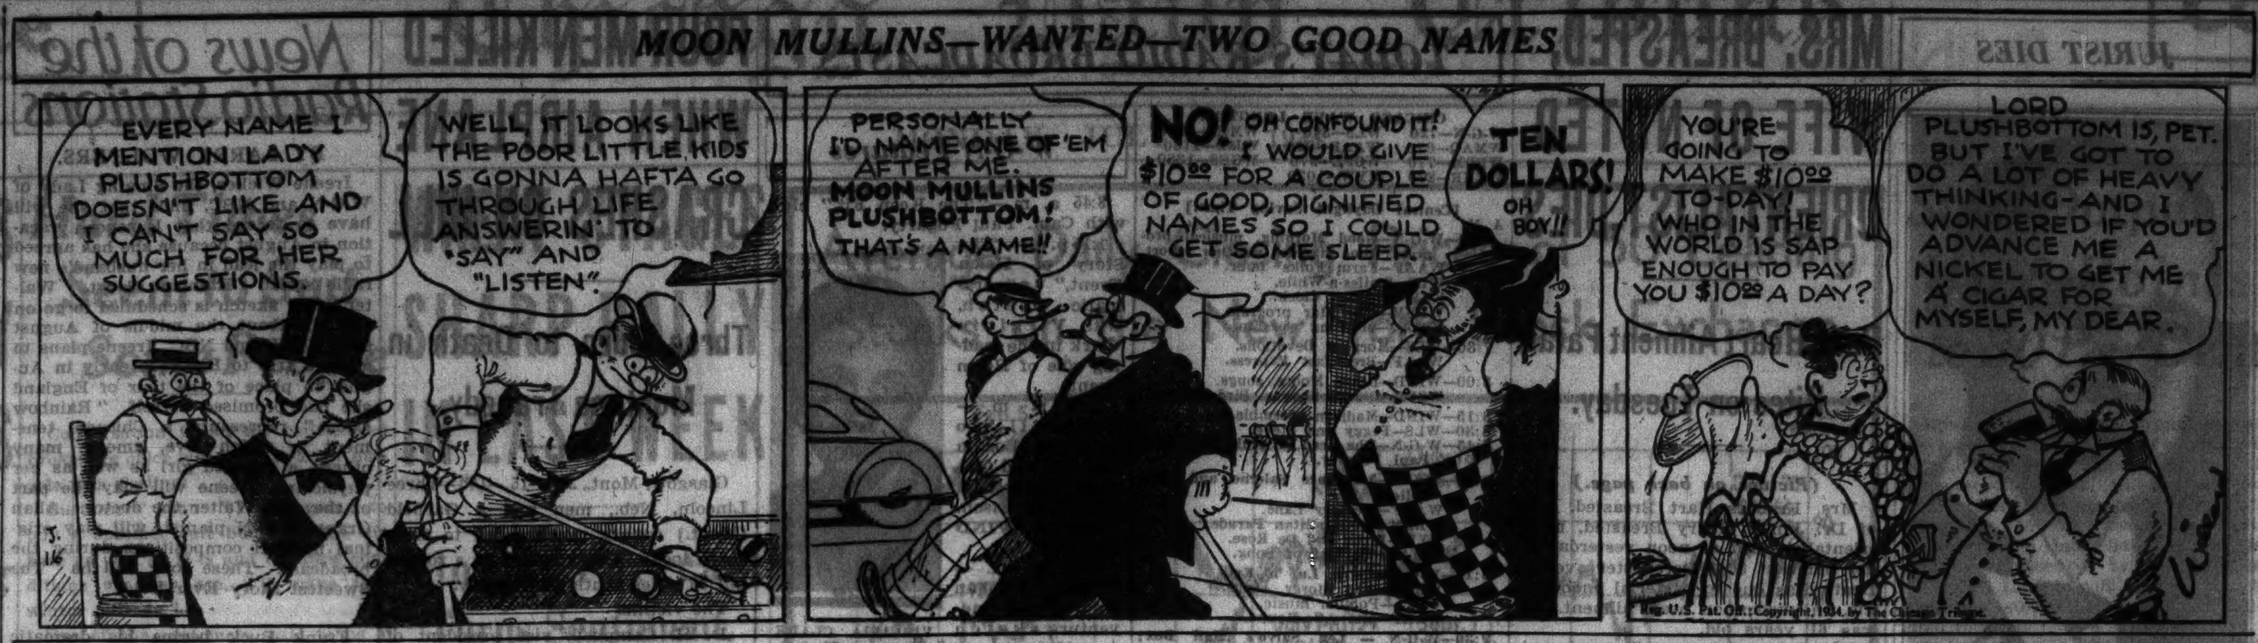
INDIANS TAKE TWO.

Cleveland, O., July 15.—(AP)—The Indians won a double header from Washington today by duplicate scores of 10 to 5, and pushed the Senators more firmly into the second division.

In both games Cleveland jumped into the lead in the opening innings and forged ahead later as fast as Washington tied the score. The Indians collected 35 hits in the two games off five of Joe Cronin's hurlers. The double victory gave Cleveland three out of four games in the series. Scores:



Dizzy Dean, Carleton Beat Dodgers Twice

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 15.—(AP)—Jerome [Dizzy] Dean and Tex Carleton, St. Louis Cardinal pitching stars, beat the Dodgers twice today, 2 to 0 and 6 to 3, condemning Brooklyn to seventh place for the first time this season.

Dean pitched the shutout, yielding the Dodgers only four hits for his 16th victory of the season. Ray Benge, pitching for Brooklyn, kept pace with Dean for a long time, giving the Cards only one run until Dean hit a home run into the lower left field seats in the eighth to clinch the victory.

The only hit made off Hoyt was a single by Thompson with one out in the third inning. Jordan, the next batter, then hit into a double play. Jordan was the only Brave to reach second base. Hoyt walked him and Lee in the first inning. Scores:

PHILLIES, 9; REDS, 1.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—The Phillies made it three straight over Cincinnati and went into sixth place today by defeating the Reds 9 to 1. Phil Collins limited the Reds to eight hits to turn in his tenth conquest of the season against eight defeats.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Cincinnati Reds, baseball's first salaried team, played without a defeat in 1869, winning 81 games. . . . Jimmy Austin, White Sox coach, was born in Swansea, Wales, in 1879. . . . Pat Horgan, the voice you have been hearing in the race track loud speakers for a number of years, has signed as assistant racing secretary to Jack Campbell for the Rhode Island meeting, which opens next month. . . . Bob McCarnes, one of Northwestern's brightest basketball stars, is a guide in the court of the Hall of States at A Century of Progress Exposition. . . . Jus Lindgren, line coach on the Illinois football staf, will begin his 31st season with his alma mater this fall. . . . He is a member of the staf of the chemistry department. . . . Bob Parke, University of Oregon athlete who won the national intercollegiate javelin throw, will play quarter back on the football team this season. . . .

Pat Malone has authorized this department to bet $50 that he can beat any Cub at golf, promising to underwrite the wager. . . . This department, however, is advised by Charley Root and Babe Herman to have the insurance in hand before placing any bets. . . . John Drebinger of the New York Times and Jimmy Powers of the New York Daily News, baseball writers, decided to drive to Boston for a recent series. . . . They were arrested in Providence, R. I., as suspicious characters going up and they got pinched again en route home. . . . Several days ago two bicycle riders, suspected of being Dillinger and Hamilton, were arrested by the alert Providence coppers and held incommunicado until it was learned they were training for a marathon. . . . Gabby Hartnett, whose home town is near Providence, was once arrested there under the anti-disguise ordinance for wearing a mask. . . .

Curley Lambeau, coach of the Green Bay Packers, believes Boston will be the team to beat in the eastern division and Detroit in the western division of the National Professional Football league next fall. . . . Detroit will have the former Portsmouth team. . . . There's an amateur pitcher at Green Bay named Jack Rowe who throws a drop that has not been touched for a hit this summer. . . . He has allowed an average of only three hits a game in nine games, his victories including four shutouts. . . . Cricket is an expensive game, the balls costing $5 and the bats $15. . . . Knee trouble that has kept Tony Lazzeri on the sidelines recently is a floating cartilage similar to Babe Ruth's old ailment. . . . Bernie Masterson of Nebraska, one of the candidates for quarter back on the college team that will play the Bears Aug. 31, played 457 minutes of the 540 Nebraska engaged in last fall. . . . Against Pittsburgh, Iowa, and Oregon State, played within 12 days, Masterson went the route in each. . . .

Seattle's new race track, Longacres, is getting away to a good start. . . . A crowd of 14,880 paid its way to see the running of the King County handicap a few days ago. . . . Coach A. A. Stagg's college of the Pacific eleven will open Southern California's football season. . . . Ellsworth Vines, tennis professional, has laid aside his racquets temporarily and is taking golf instructions from Fred Morrison at the Annandale, Cal., golf club, adjacent to his home. . . . He hopes to be ready for open golf tournaments in a year or two. . . . Last season only 29 home runs were hit in Griffith park, Washington. . . . There have been that many knocked already this year. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Yale's great eight-oared crew, representing the United States, easily won the first heat in the Olympic crew regatta. . . . Babe Ruth hit his 25th and 26th home runs against the St. Louis Browns. . . . Gertrude Ederle, Helen Wainwright, and Martha Norelius carried the United States colors to the front by qualifying for the finals in the 400 meters swim trials. . . . The New York Giants swept through a four game series with the Cubs.

Sox Lose Two, 11-7 and 10-5, to Athletics

happenings in the second inning did not come as a surprise. Three scored before Gallivan could straighten out the situation. This piece of annoyance started with Warstler's single to center. After Hayes had boosted a fly into Simmons' hands, Warstler stole second, continued to third on Madjeski's bad throw and scored on a single by Marcum. Then McNair poked the ball into the left field seats, Marcum preceding him across the plate.

The A's mixed a pair of hits with a pair of passes to produce two runs in the third. Foxx led off with one of the tickets and Higgins followed with a single to left. There was a slight pickup in business when Coleman fanned, but this was merely a flash. Gallivan walked Warstler to load the bases. Hayes slapped a single to left, sending Foxx and Higgins home. Further annoyance was avoided by converting Marcum's grounder into a double play.

Johnson Gums Up Works.

With the help of Johnson the Sox were able to break in with a pair of runs off Marcum in the fourth. Appling and Boken singled with one out. Madjeski cracked one that was a genuine extra base drive until Johnson leaped up and speared it with one hand in front of the bleacher wall. A moment later he ran in for Gallivan's fly and not only dropped it, but after recovering, threw wild to the plate. Appling and Boken scored on the two errors. Then Johnson retired on the plea that he had wrenched his side reaching for Madjeski's drive.

As a means of keeping the customers awake the A's furnished five hits, good for three runs, in the sixth. Marcum doubled, Cramer singled, and both scored on Miller's triple over Conlan's head. Miller scored on a single by Higgins. Another Athletic scored in the seventh on Marcum's second two bagger and a single by McNair.

Sox Get Two More.

The Sox also did a bit of damage in their half of the seventh. Doubles by Bonura and Simmons scored the former. The Athletics countered with one in the eighth on a pass to Higgins and a double by Warstler. The Sox picked up one in their half on Madjeski's triple and Gallivan's double. They grabbed another in the ninth on Bonura's two bagger and Appling's single.

George Earnshaw and Sam Jones will be the White Sox starting pitchers in the double header with the Red Sox at Comiskey park this afternoon. Boston probably will start Johnny Welch, ex-Cub, and Henry Johnson, ex-Yankee.

Jack Hayes, the White Sox regular second baseman who has a fractured thumb, has gone to his home in Clanton, Ala. He will rejoin the Sox when they make their eastern trip next month.

Giants Win, 5-3; Hubbell Stops Cubs

Moore, who failed in an attempted diving catch. Hurst flied to Ott and Ki came home with the tying run. Hack flied to O'Doul and Malone popped to Jackson.

Terry evened up for Hartnett's fourth inning Texas leaguer when he led off the home fifth. He dropped a high blooper just inside the left foul line for a double. He went to third while Billy Herman was throwing out Ott and trotted home on O'Doul's single to center. Determined not to strike out three times in a row, Jackson bunted and was thrown out by Malone on a nice play. Vergez walked after a count of three balls and two strikes, but was forced by Mancuso.

Schumacher Gets On Again.

Schumacher reached first for the third straight time when he walked on five pitches to start the Giants' sixth. Moore flied to Babe Herman, but Critz singled to center, Schumacher stopping at second. Terry fanned. Ott ran the count to three and two, and then doubled along the left foul line, scoring Schumacher and Critz. Tinning relieved Malone and gave an intentional pass to O'Doul. Jackson forced O'Doul.

The Cubs did not get a runner on base and only one ball was hit to the outfield in the fifth and sixth innings. In the seventh they broke up this monotonous routine to the extent of knocking out Schumacher, a success which brought Chicago little cheer, for it brought in Hubbell.

To start the seventh Hurst sent Moore legging it into deep left center for his drive. Then Hack caromed a single off Schumacher's glove. Klein batted for Tinning and singled to right, Hack going to third. Warneke ran for Klein. Billy Herman bounced a single off Critz's shine, Hack scoring. Then in came Hubbell. English tapped to Terry, Warneke and Billy Herman advancing. A single by Stainback would have tied the score. But Hubbell made George pop to Critz.

Hubbell fanned Babe Herman and Cuyler to get the eighth started. Hartnett lined a hit to right center and went to second on a wild pitch. The inning ended on Hurst's grounder to Terry.

With one down in the eighth Terry nicked Root for a double. Ott flied to Stainback and O'Doul was given his third intential pass of the game, his fourth walk in all. Jackson again justified the strategy. This time he fouled to Hartnett.

Eaton Beats Goldman in Western Golf

the 21st, his third shot landing in a rocky ravine into an unplayable lie. He conceded Goldman a birdie 3. A fine pitch from the tee on the short 22d resulted in an easy par for Eaton while Goldman was in the traps, and Eaton was 2 up again.

Eaton increased his lead on the 23d, dropped the next, won the 25th when Goldman got into the traps again and after halving the 26th lost the final on the outward journey to Goldman's par four. On this hole Eaton found a trap with his tee shot and hit the trees getting out, taking a 5.

Eaton Comes from Behind.

Playing the morning eighteen in 71, one stroke over par, Eaton held a two hole lead at the halfway mark. Goldman took the first hole with a 15 foot putt for a birdie three. Both had par fives on the second, but when Goldman found a trap on the third hole and took five strokes he lost it to Eaton's par four.

After another half in par 3's at the fourth, both got birdies on the 510 yard, par 5 fifth, Goldman with another 15 foot putt and Eaton with a 10 footer following an explosion shot out of a trap.

Goldman scored his third birdie of the outward nine at the sixth, when Eaton's iron shot went over the green into the rough. Goldman's second was well on and Eaton conceded it after a poor recovery. Goldman lost the next two holes, going one stroke over par on each. At the seventh he missed a five foot putt for a half in 3's and found the traps again at the eighth, taking a five.

They halved the ninth in regulation figures and Eaton held a one up lead at the turn. Both had 35's, even par, for the distance.

Jack Quinn day was observed at Shewbridge field yesterday, but the veteran star suffered his first defeat in six semi-pro starts when the Duffy Florals lost the second game of a double header, 5 to 3, to Flint, Mich. The Florals won the first game, 10 to 0.

Quinn was presented with a silver cocktail set by south side fans, but the Flint nine, with Florence Dingman, a girl southpaw, pitching the first inning, had no respect for the occasion. Quinn retired after the sixth inning. Flint already had scored all its runs.

Replaceable Cylinders

● See how the separate cylinders are lifted out. The engine stays right in the truck. International has made nearly a million engines with replaceable cylinders.

IN all heavy-duty 6-cylinder International Trucks from 1½-ton to 7½-ton the cylinders are individually removable and replaceable. When the old cylinders are worn, brand-new cylinders and pistons, duplicates of the originals, are put in. The most vital part of the engine is made exactly as good as new. This feature outmodes reboring. Replacement—of one, or two, or all cylinders—can be speedily, easily, and economically made in an International while the engine stays in the truck.

We know the lasting value in this feature. In the past twenty years International Harvester has placed in users' hands nearly a million engines with cylinders removable. That means a world of experience, a world of opportunity for knowing.

Replaceable cylinders add to the cost of manufacture, but they lower the cost of hauling. Veteran International owners whose trucks take everlasting punishment know this feature for "a swell idea." They say that it "adds $500 to the value of a truck"—"adds tremendous mileage to its life." Ask some of them!

May we demonstrate an International to you—the right model for the job? Sizes range from ½-ton to 7½-ton. Phone one of our branches.

● Above: HARDENED EXHAUST-VALVE SEAT INSERTS. This feature was long ago made standard International practice. These inserts retard valve seat burning, engine efficiency is retained, and the valves seldom need grinding.

JUDGE M'INTYRE DEAD; JURISTS PRAISE HIS WORK

Death Follows Operation; Funeral Wednesday.

Funeral services for Municipal Judge George V. McIntyre, who died early yesterday after a lingering illness, will be held Wednesday from the family home at 4247 Hazel avenue to St. Mary's of the Lake church, 4200 Sheridan road, where high mass will be celebrated. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery. The time of the services has been tentatively set by the family at 10 a. m.

Judge McIntyre died at the John B. Murphy hospital where he was taken a month ago for a major abdominal operation. His condition seemed to improve afterward, but a few days ago a turn for the worse was noted. When he experienced a sinking spell early yesterday the family was notified and his wife, Mrs. Winifred Grady McIntyre, and his two daughters, Mrs. Glen Davis and Evelyn McIntyre, were at the bedside.

Came to Chicago in 1895.

Judge McIntyre was born in Jersey City in 1877, the son of a live stock commission merchant. In 1895 the family moved to Chicago, and the education begun in the parochial schools of Jersey City was completed at Lake Forest college. Later, he studied law in the office of James Hamilton Lewis, now United States senator from Illinois. Judge McIntyre began the practice of law 35 years ago, and at the same time devoted himself to politics. He served as an assistant attorney general under Patrick J. Lucey, and as a master in chancery under Judge George W. Gridley. In 1930 he was elected to the Municipal court bench. Former Judge Charles F. McKinley contested his election and the contest is still pending in the County court.

Taught Law at Loyola.

From 1912 to 1922, he taught evidence and jurisprudence at Loyola university, and later received the degree of doctor of laws.

He was one of the first of the judges to voluntarily take a salary cut when the city council requested it in 1931.

"He was known among his fellow judges as a great humanitarian," said Municipal Judge M[illegible]thew D. Hartigan. "He was outstandingly kind, and anxious to follow the right path in his decisions. He tried especially to aid young boys and girls who were brought before him."

JURIST SETTLES ROW IN COURT OVER MILLIONS

Upholds Trustees of Smathers Estate.

White Plains, N. Y., July 15.—(AP)—The accounting and acts of the executors of the 16 million dollar estate of Elmer E. Smathers of Purchase, N. Y., oil man and real estate operator, have been approved in a decree signed and entered by Surrogate Slater.

The beneficiaries who had objected to the accounting withdrew their objections, which accordingly were dismissed by the surrogate in his decree.

The executors are Ray L. Erb of New York City, Samuel W. Gregg and Earl G. Crain of Bradford, Pa. The decree was entered on motion of their attorneys, Blake & Voorhees of New York City and Robert P. Smith of White Plains.

Various tax proceedings remain to be disposed of and large claims against the estate still are in litigation.

More than 30 nephews and nieces are receiving incomes from a trust. There are more than 100 relatives of Smathers, living in widely scattered parts of the country, who are or expect to become recipients of income under his will.

Under the will the executors received no commissions except legacies of $100,000 to Erb and $50,000 to each of the others. The three executors had been in Smathers' employ for many years and two were his nephews.

EXPLORER HEDIN'S WIRE TO AID ENDS KIDNAPING FEARS

PEIPING, July 15.—(AP)—Anxiety for the safety of Dr. Sven Anders Hedin, Swedish explorer, reported kidnaped last week, was allayed today with the receipt of a telegram from him, timed 3 p. m. yesterday [4:30 a. m. Chicago time], at Urumchi, eastern Turkestan.

The telegram, received by his representative, Erik Norin, made no reference to the reports that the noted explorer and geographer and 12 companions had fallen into the hands of brigands. This led to the belief that the report was the outgrowth of rumors arising partly from the fact that Hedin was held captive for three weeks a year ago.

The services will be conducted at McKinley Park.

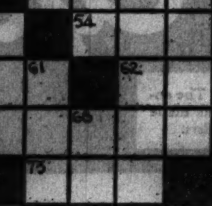
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



MRS. BREASTED, WIFE OF NOTED ORIENTALIST, DIES

Rare Heart Ailment Fatal; Rites on Tuesday.

Mrs. Frances Hart Breasted, wife of Dr. James Henry Breasted, noted orientalist, died at noon yesterday in her home at 5648 Dorchester avenue. Death was due to bacterial endocarditis, an uncommon heart ailment. She was 61 years old.

Mrs. Breasted became ill a year ago upon her return from a tour of University of Chicago archeological expeditions in the near east with her husband. Her condition became steadily worse until two weeks ago physicians gave up all hope.

Husband, Children at Side.

At her bedside were her husband and her children. The latter are Charles Breasted, executive secretary of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago; James Henry Jr., who is preparing to enter Oxford university in England, and Astrid, a junior at Vassar college.

Mrs. Breasted was born Dec. 22, 1872 in San Francisco. Her mother was a member of the Pitney family of New Jersey. Mrs. Breasted was a cousin of the late Justice Mahlon Pitney of the United States Supreme court. Her father's family were among the first settlers of colonial Virginia. Her grandfather was once mayor of Lynchburg, Va.

She met her husband in Berlin in 1892 where she was studying music and languages and he was completing studies in Egyptology. They were married in the English chapel of Empress Frederick in Berlin on Oct. 22, 1894.

Accompanied All Expeditions.

The young orientalist and his bride spent their honeymoon in Egypt. She began housekeeping on a "dahabeah," a native houseboat on the Nile. Mrs. Breasted has accompanied her husband on all his archeological expeditions, except for a particularly hazardous expedition into Egypt and Western Asia just after the war.

She was a member of the party which almost lost their lives in the Kagbar rapids in northern Sudan in 1906. Dr. Breasted in that year headed the first archeological expedition to "shoot" the four southern cataracts of the Nile. Her last trip, a year ago, was in the near east including a tour of the findings at Persopolis in Persia.

Funeral services will be held in Bond chapel at the University of Chicago tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The services will be followed by cremation.

DR. RENKIN, ONCE BELGIAN PRIME MINISTER, IS DEAD

BRUSSELS, July 15.—(AP)—Dr. Jules Renkin, who was premier of Belgian from June, 1931, until October, 1932, died today at 71 years of age. Dr. Renkin was the immediate predecessor of Count Charles de Broqueville, now premier.

He was born in Ixelles, near Brussels, Dec. 3, 1862. His first cabinet post was that of minister of justice, to which he was appointed in 1907. A year later, as a consequence of the annexation of the Congo, King Leopold II. created the post of minister of colonies and appointed Dr. Renkin to this office. He held the post until after the armistice—a long term for a European cabinet minister—and on Nov. 21, 1918, became minister of posts, telegraphs and telephones in the first Delacroix cabinet.

When Henri Jaspar was permanently forced out as premier in July, 1931, Renkin was called to the post, uniting the Liberal and Christian Democrats with his Catholic party to form a government.

DWIGHT K. EMIGH, AURORA LAWYER, IS DEAD AT HOME

He served overseas with the 23d engineers, and after the war did special work for the government in England and Scotland. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Izana Inglish Emigh. Funeral services will be held at the Healy chapel, Aurora, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A man about 60 years old, who registered at the Hotel Sherman, last Thursday as F. Mottenshek of Winifred, near Lewistown, Mont., was found unconscious in his room yesterday morning and died several hours later at the county hospital. An empty package, which had contained a sleeping potion, found in the room led the police to believe that his death was due to an overdose of the drug. The central police are making efforts to locate relatives.

The Nebraskans were on a vacation trip and planned to visit Erickson and spend some time on a homestead belonging to Andrews. The plane fell on the latter's land.

Two Die in St. Louis.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady of W-G-N and NBC, finds that she will have to forego that European vacation in August because she has agreed to play the lead in her husband's new radio serial, "Rainbow Court." Walter's new sketch is scheduled to go on the air about the middle of August over WLW and NBC. Ireene plans to make a trip to Bermuda early in August in place of the tour of England she had promised herself. "Rainbow Court" represents a Chicago tenement in which live, among many others, a crippled girl as well as her physician. Ireene will play the part of the girl; Walter the doctor. Allan Grant, W-G-N pianist, will play original musical compositions during the broadcast. These song will be "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

Frank Buck begins his dramatic parade of the jungle at 6:45 this evening over WENR-NBC. To the throbbing beat of tom toms and the calls of tropical birds, Buck will dramatize adventures having to do with all manner of savage creatures—tigers, leopards, water buffalo, tapirs, rhino, giant apes, pythons, and cobras. The part of Ali, his No. 1 man, will be played by Butler Mandeville; Bill Baar will be the stowaway; others in the cast are Philip Lord and Robert Fisk.

Alice Joy, radio's Dream Girl, left Chicago by motor Saturday for Tulsa, Okla., where she will play a six weeks' radio and stage engagement. Alice stopped in Streator to visit her two children, Bruce, 6, and Lois, 5, vacationing with an aunt there.

Leaving the moon on the other side of the mountain, Kate Smith is scheduled to return to the air after an absence of a year at 7 o'clock this evening over CBS with a new signature song. Kate's first number will be "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

While CBS is concentrating on long distance broadcasts—the last one involving a link from Alaska to Byrd's base in the Antarctic—NBC is paying especial attention to height shots. A stratosphere broadcast is impending and a broadcast from "the roof of Europe" is contemplated. Mountain climbers are now engaged in dragging radio equipment to the crest of the Jungfrau in the Alps. From this pinnacle, 13,669 feet above sea level, sunset will be described and re-broadcast for the American listeners on Aug. 12.

Ben Hecht and Charlie McArthur have promised to broadcast their version of a conference of big shots in a Hollywood studio over NBC on Aug. 3. . . . Babe Ruth is reported signed for a new radio series, with an oil company paying the bills. . . . Unlike many jazz orchestra leaders who boast of their prowess at golf or tennis, Reggie Childs claims the distinction of being a bee fancier. As soon as his broadcasts are over he heads for the hives and is soon busy with the buzzing swarms.

WEEK RECORDS SLIGHT RALLY IN BUSINESS

Durable Lines Cling to Seasonal Lull.

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Industrial activity recovered slightly last week from the depressing combination of holiday and excessive heat earlier in the month.

The usual midsummer lull remained in evidence in some durable lines, but other divisions of manufacturing held up surprisingly well. Retail trade, too, continued at satisfactory levels, aided to some extent by the heaviest summer travel in several years.

Wholesale buyers were said to have a generally cheerful attitude about fall distribution prospects. On the other hand, they were believed to be guaging their orders strictly on a weekly sales basis. This contrasts with conditions a year ago when excessive and speculative stocking of inventories severely handicapped autumn production and led to a sharp curtailment of industrial activity.

Manufacturing Increases.

Manufacturing operations as a whole proceeded at a more rapid pace than in the preceding week. Steel, motors, rubber goods, shoes, electrical appliances and equipment, business machines, and various household goods made headway.

Automobile sales continued to show unusual resistance to the normal summer recession. July production schedules were said to have been restored practically to the June level, with recent price cuts broadening sales. Manufacturers of electrical goods, such as refrigerators and home appliances, were reported to be enjoying the best season in recent years.

Steel output advanced to about 27 per cent of capacity from the preceding week's 21 per cent, and industrial observers predict a somewhat higher rate for the coming week. Public works projects and the automotive trade were the chief props, with some better demand from the railroads.

Retail Buying Higher.

Retail buying registered gains of 5 to 15 per cent over the previous week, according to Dun & Bradstreet, with reports from the east showing a wider distribution for the first time in a month. The south Atlantic, southeastern, and middle western states also reported a pickup.

The strike of Pacific coast longshoremen and sympathetic workers completely disrupted trade movements in that area. The seriousness of the drought in some parts of the deep south resulted in declining retail sales there. Hot weather demand for men's and women's clothing has served to retard the usual summer drop in department and chain store sales.

Late statistics for the week ended July 7, revealed the extent of the business recession in the period containing the July 4 holiday. Car loadings dropped abruptly, surpassing the expected seasonal recession and dipping below the corresponding period a year ago for the first time in 1934.

Loadings Decline.

The total of 519,807 cars was 124,765 below the preceding week, when the year's peak was touched, and 19,416 below the 1933 week. The railroads were understood to be preparing to ask the interstate commerce commission for a 10 per cent freight rate increase.

Electric power production declined from the preceding week by more than the seasonal average, after reaching a new high at the end of June. The total kept 1.1 per cent ahead of last year.

BIG SALES DRIVE OF FRIGIDAIRE TO START TODAY

The most ambitious summer advertising and selling program ever conducted by Frigidaire, General Motors subsidiary, will be launched locally today at a meeting of 600 supervisors and salesmen at the Knickerbocker hotel. L. F. Skutt, regional manager, will be assisted at the promotion gathering by W. I. Buchanan, metropolitan wholesale sales manager.

The campaign is intended to continue the marked gain in sales during the first six months of the year. Mr. Skutt said yesterday there are 1,250,000 more Frigidaires in use than the next most popular make, and attributed this to maintaining quality and advertising consistently. Hundreds of newspapers as well as 18,000 salesmen and 12,000 factory workers will be used in the hot weather effort to ward off any summer buying slump.

Detroit Edison Reports Increase in Net Income

Net income of the Detroit Edison company and subsidiaries for the 12 months ended June 30 totaled $7,382,837 compared with $5,573,947 in the preceding 12 months. Gross income amounted to $14,050,269 compared with $12,195,970.

Hard Times Seem to Suit Some People

Conversation in an air conditioned brokerage office when the weather outside was sizzling:

Customers' man: "I was going to buy a summer suit but with the air here as cool as it is and business conditions as they are, I'll make this winter suit do."

One of the customers, said to be a former banker, to the customers' man: "How do you like my summer suit? Well, I found it. It's this way. I bought the suit in 1910 and shortly afterwards I picked up so much weight I couldn't wear it. So I hung it up in a closet. Last spring I happened to run across it.

"The last few years of the depression hit me pretty hard and I lost a lot of weight. I had shrunk down to the suit again. I had some minor alterations on it and here's the suit."

The federal trade commission has been especially active in preventing cigar manufacturers from depreciating their products. One of its recent press releases says:

"The company also agrees to cease employing the word 'seconds' so as to deceive buyers into believing that its cigars are second to the best in quality, grade and workmanship, when this is not true."

A statement from the federal trade commission that the company's cigars are equal to the best ought to make splendid advertising copy.

A plausible explanation of why annuity policies have not been the source of profits that life insurance companies expected them to be, apart from the declining return on invested capital due to cheap money, was advanced by an executive of a large insurance company the other day.

"I think," he said, "that in the past the main purchasers of annuities have been those that felt their longevity was pretty well assured."

The mortality tables applicable to life insurance have been misleading the companies, because only the "preferred risks" have been taking out annuities.

The advance in the value of live stock on farms by many millions of dollars over the low period of the depression has put thousands of farms on a paying basis which were steadily losing money some months ago, according to live stock producers coming into the Chicago stockyards with stock.

The man who has his farm paid for can show a profit at current prices, said one veteran farmer, and he is a great deal better off than the city man who has his home paid for and is out of a job. The owner of a paid-up farm is never out of a job.

A man riding down in an elevator in a La Salle street office building was telling a companion about how his office had been ransacked the preceding evening.

"I don't know what the thief expected to find," he remarked. "We keep no cash and since the repeal of prohibition we haven't had a drop of liquor in our office."

LETTERS

Letters addressed to the financial editor of not more than 200 words will be printed in this column from time to time.

Water Experiment Successful.

Madison, Wis., July 10.—You recently carried a paragraph regarding transportation of water by this company's subsidiary, Gulf Coast Water company, via river over a distance of nearly 500 miles. The amount of water actually put into the river approximated eleven billion gallons, more than 60 per cent of which reached the vicinity of Bay City, Tex., less than ten days later, assuring farmers in the area sufficient water to complete their crop regardless of rainfall.

CONTINENTAL PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY.

You're Welcome.

Decorah, Ia., July 5.—Please accept my thanks for your courtesy in answering questions. I have consulted your Investors' Guide department only three times, but have followed it with interest as long as I have read THE TRIBUNE. I have read it with profit if the fact that it has helped to keep both feet on the ground when risking my savings is taken into account in the profit and loss column. D. T. N.

Bank's Deposits Increasing.

Chicago Heights, Ill., July 10.—You are giving considerable publicity to the remarkable growth of certain Chicago banks. Permit us to show you this growth is not confined to Chicago. Inclosed is a statement of condition of the Citizens' National bank of this city. You will see we have eliminated $129,000 in sub-standard assets. The extent which the new management has regained the confidence and good will of the people in this community is evidenced by our growth in deposits. WHEAT STAGES SHARP RALLY IN LAST WEEK

Gloomy Forecast Turns Sentiment.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The sagging grain market last week executed a quick turnabout, and for five days wheat prices gave the most impressive display of strength that has been witnessed for several weeks. The gradual recession in values which began about the 1st of June and continued while the big southwestern wheat harvest progressed was brought to an end—temporarily, at least.

Closing quotations on wheat futures showed gains of approximately 10 cents a bushel over the preceding week's final prices. The event of the week was the publication of the government crop forecast giving probable yields on all the principal grains. Other factors played an important part in the impressive price advance, but it was the government's gloomy picture of the crop situation that brought out the big demand for grains.

Effect Immediate.

The effect of the government's report on the market was electric. All grains responded, but wheat was the big speculative favorite. Wheat closed higher the day the report was issued, and each succeeding day of the week added to its gains. Other grains, including corn, displayed an irregular trend, but when the week closed all were selling above the preceding week's prices.

The forecast of a total wheat crop of 484 million bushels caught the grain trade by surprise. Estimates of the private forecasters prepared the trade for a yield at least 30 million bushels above the government's figure. The same applied to corn. The government's estimate of 2,113 million bushels was 221 million bushels under the forecast of the private authorities.

The government's wheat forecast was accepted as more conclusive than the corn estimate, although even the wheat figure may be revised. The corn crop, however, is now in the middle of the crucial season, and the present estimate on the yield may be materially revised.

Reports Not Favorable.

Recent reports on the condition of corn, however, are not too favorable. In Kansas and Nebraska heat is playing havoc with the crop, but in the leading producing states, Illinois and Iowa, the outlook is generally favorable. Iowa, however, will show a substantial reduction from its 1933 crop.

Indications are that the reduction will amount to 126,000,000 bushels, largely as a result of the acreage reduction program to which 176,000 farmers subscribed.

Improved flour sales by millers were important factors in the change of trend in the wheat market last week. Millers were said to have been good buyers.

Gain Nearly 10 Cents.

The final price of the week on September wheat was 99⅝ cents a bushel, compared with the week ago price of 89¼ cents. December wheat closed slightly above the dollar mark at $1.00¼, against 90½ cents on the preceding Saturday. September corn finished the week 2⅝ cents a bushel higher at 61¼ cents, and September oats gained 2 cents a bushel to close at 45⅛ cents. A 5 cent advance in September rye brought the closing price to 70⅝ cents. September barley rose 7½ cents to close the week at 59½ cents.

	July.	September.	December.

Heavy receipts of wheat and corn are expected in Chicago this week as a result of large purchases made during the last few days.

START PAYMENT OF 30 MILLIONS ON WHEAT PLAN

Washington, D. C., July 15.—(AP)—Payment of an additional $30,000,000 to wheat farmers of the nation began today with the mailing of checks totaling $1,258. This outlay, the first instalment of which went to 58 producers in Ralls county, Mo., consists of second benefit payments of 9 cents a bushel on each farmer's domestic allotment. It will bring the total of 1934 wheat expenditures to about $97,000,000. Farmers previously had received $67,073,788 in first benefits of 20 cents a bushel.

When payments are completed 577,000 growers who agreed to retire 7,500,000 acres of wheat land from production, will have received benefits varying from $50 to $500.

George E. Farrell, chief of the wheat section, in discussing the wheat situation, declared the curtailment program, plus drouth damage, had reduced the domestic carryover "from its former staggering size of 389,000,000 bushels to about 260,000,000 bushels."

CHICAGO BUSINESS STEADY; WHOLESALE VOLUME MOVES LOWER

Wholesale and retail activities in Chicago last week varied little from the corresponding period of last year, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The expected seasonal recession in wholesale circles occurred. It is the belief among distributors and incoming merchants that there will be a pronounced buying boom in mid-August, with fall, winter, and holiday wares in heavy demand. Purchases of woolens are said to be well ahead of expectancy, with no sign of a let-up.

Retailers attribute some of the recent easing in current demands to the weather. They declare that the early hot period this year forced the buying of cotton and other summer commodities almost a month ahead of time. Seasonal purchasing, therefore, is already out of the way.

MEAT CANNING TO BE FINANCED BY FUNDS OF U. S.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—(AP)—The federal government was disclosed today to be planning to take a direct hand in the meat canning business as a relief measure. The plan contemplates a wide use of federal funds to assist states and counties in setting up meat canning plants over the country—with suggestions also for plants to can vegetables, fruit and fish on a sizable scale.

Lawrence Westbrook, assistant federal relief administrator, has drafted the program into a sizable mimeographed booklet. Its distribution to state emergency relief administrators already has begun.

Word of the new relief plan closely followed a report that a corporation empowered to establish factories for the relief of the unemployed was to be formed for the district of Columbia. The relief administration has had under consideration for months the leasing of idle factories to produce or process both goods and food for distribution to the needy.

Some private business interests have manifested concern, objecting to government entry into such fields. The reply has been that none of the products would go into commercial channels; that any such arrangements were of an emergency character and were temporary; that government buying from private sources for relief needs would not be materially curtailed, but that many on relief rolls would be furnished employment and thereby would aid in their own rehabilitation.

A. T. & T. Dips Into Surplus to Pay Dividends

The American Telephone and Telegraph company was forced to dip into surplus to the extent of $17,756,103 in the first six months of 1934 to maintain its dividend rate, the semi-annual earnings statement issued yesterday reveals.

Net income for the period after all charges and taxes amounted to $66,224,134, equivalent to $3.55 a share on capital stock. This compares with net of $61,999,195, or $3.32 a share, in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Dividends $83,980,238.

Against this, however, dividends of $83,980,238 were paid, which necessitated the inroad on surplus. Total earnings were $116,192,637, compared with $112,167,104, and expenses, including taxes, $37,493,369, compared with $37,965,538.

The largest item of income was $62,390,979 in dividends received from associated companies, which, the statement said, were not earned by about $1,000,000 this year and $12,000,000 last.

The Bell system reported a gain for the period of 190,000 telephones, exceeding any corresponding period since 1929. It compares with a net loss of 612,000 stations in the first six months of 1933.

Number of toll and long distance calls was 7 per cent greater than last year, but 10 per cent less than in the corresponding 1932 period.

Treating the system as a whole, and including the Western Electric company, preliminary data indicate earnings of about $3 a share for the six month period, against $2.40 a share for last year, the report declared.

Walter S. Gifford, president of A. T. & T., said the net of $66,224,134 does not reflect the current deficit of Western Electric, and about 5 cents per share of earnings for 1934 and 65 cents for 1933 were not earned, but drawn from surplus of associated companies.

Estimate Iowa Corn Crop 126 Million Bu. Under 1933

Des Moines, Ia., July 15.—Iowa's corn crop will be 126 million bushels short of last year, the July crop report, issued by Leslie M. Carl, chief of the federal department of agriculture, has indicated. The report showed 9 million acres of corn in Iowa, which are expected to yield 324 million bushels. This compares with an acreage of 11¼ million acres last year and a total yield of 450 million bushels. Biggest reason for the drastic reduction, said Carl, is the government's reduction program, in which 176,000 Iowa farmers participated.

CHANCES FOR NATION TO BALANCE BUDGET SOON SEEN UNLIKELY

Washington, D. C., July 15.—(AP)—The nation's business men were told today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that, despite expressed presidential hopes, any balancing of the budget before 1937 appeared "doubtful."

A statement to this effect, hinting also at a possibility of higher taxes, was published in the chamber's fortnightly review of Washington affairs as part of an analysis of the federal fiscal position. It represented a partial reversal of the chamber's stand as given at the time Mr. Roosevelt's budget message was presented to congress.

The President did not actually predict a balanced budget in 1936, but stated that the government "should plan" such a balance. Although making no direct reference to this statement, the chamber said:

"In view of the large amounts made available for emergency expenditures, which it is unlikely can be suddenly terminated, a balanced budget in 1936 now appears doubtful. Continued borrowings will call for heavier taxes if a debt of unmanageable proportions is to be avoided.

"Up to the present, however, there are no indications of a tapering off of emergency expenditures. The PWA continues to make allotments. Relief expenditures continue heavy and give promise of being made at an accelerated rate. Additional expenditures will be called for to meet the requirements of various new agencies, such as the federal housing administration.

"The national debt now exceeds 27 billion dollars. Current receipts are expected to cover ordinary expenses only and expenditures for emergency purposes will presumably have to be met by borrowing."

Half Year's Steel Trade Record for Many Firms

The high pace set by steel makers during the first half of 1934 has broken the comparative monthly records of production and shipments of many leading companies as far back as 1930, Dun & Bradstreet says. In some districts output in May was 150 per cent larger than in the same month last year, the agency says, while the number of active blast furnaces was five times larger.

Steel Output Up 8 Points to 30 Per Cent

Steel output for the country last week rose to 30 per cent of productive capacity from the 22 per cent level of the preceding week. Chicago production gained 3 points to 31 per cent, according to the magazine Steel. However, the immediate outlook is said to be obscured by uncertainties as to the time it will take to absorb abnormal stocks consumers accumulated in June.

One weakening influence was said to be the President's order permitting a reduction of as much as 15 per cent below code prices on government work. In some steel specialties bids last week were 5 to 10 per cent under open market prices.

Hope for Better Auto Demand.

Steel producers are looking principally to the automobile manufacturers for stepping up the present low demand. It is expected that July and August automobile production will be seasonably strong. In these months the producers plan to make practically all the cars that will be needed for the remainder of the year. Production last week increased to 65,000 cars, more than twice the amount of the preceding week.

Awards are near for many large construction projects that are sponsored with federal funds. The steel industry believes the government will soon put more money into the capital goods industries and that railroads, aided by earnings improvement, would increase their purchases.

Seaboard Air Line is inquiring for 100 all-steel 70 ton phosphate cars, and the Mexican Railway company for 50 all-steel freight cars. The Baltimore and Ohio has purchased air conditioning equipment for 31 coaches.

Plan New Oil Machinery.

Orders for oil refinery equipment are expected soon. Rapid technical progress in the oil industry is making much of the equipment now used obsolete.

Structural shape awards last week rebounded to 33,135 tons, due principally to work on government projects. Piling amounting to 15,000 tons was used in the Fort Peck, Mont., dam and 3,900 tons were used for a bridge at Bettendorf, Ia. The Ford Motor company placed orders for 3,900 tons for two mill buildings at Dearborn, Mich.

Complete tabulations on shipments of pig iron from lake merchant furnaces for the first half of the year show an increase of nearly 300 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. Orders for the third quarter are low, though. Three southern stacks have been blown out.

Iron ore receipts at lower lake ports during the first six months were 6,418,945 tons, the largest for the period in four years. However, five ore carriers have been laid up.

All Points Show Gains.

Operations at Detroit last week increased 47 points to 93 per cent of productive capacity. In New England there was an increase of 6 points to 61 per cent. Eastern Pennsylvania production rose 4 points to 22½ per cent. At Pittsburgh there was a gain of 6 points to 21 per cent. Birmingham reported a gain of 2½ points to 20 per cent. At Buffalo there was an increase of from zero to 21 per cent. Cleveland showed an improvement of 15 points to 41 per cent. Wheeling production gained 6 points to 30 per cent. At Youngstown the gain was 15 points to 30 per cent.

The steel iron and steel scrap composite price fell 8 cents to $10.29. The iron and steel price composite remains at $34.23 and the finished steel composite at $54.10.

Retail Prices Reported Slightly Lower in June

Retail prices declined again in June, according to the Fairchild retail price index, standing at 88.2 on July 1, compared with 88.6 on June 1.

WALL ST. MOVES IN DOLDRUMS ALMOST A YEAR

Half Million Share Days Now Rule.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—Midsummer finds the stock market ambling along the same narrow, uneventful course it has been following with little deviation for almost a year.

Price movement limits for the twelve months were pretty well defined during the week which began July 17, 1933, when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S average of fifty representative issues dropped from 98.05 to 76.53. With the exception of the last two weeks of October, 1933, when the average dipped to 71.91 for a brief interval, the market has held steadfastly within the range defined by the chart lines of that midsummer week of last July.

Other Days Recalled.

The extreme dullness of the year stands out strikingly in comparison with years immediately preceding the advent of the New Deal order of economics, when sweeping price movements were often of such violence as to half or double values at short notice, and when a prosperous and heavily populated Wall street community was accustomed to daily turnovers running well into the millions, against the puny half million and less days of the current season.

To some brokers it is beginning to appear as though the era of so-called relative stabilization under federal control had been anticipated by the market many months before the enactment of the securities exchange regulation act by the last congress.

Pattern for Whole Year.

The last week was of a pattern with the year as a whole. The averages closed last night at 86.25, which was less than a point above their final Saturday a week ago. On no day of the week did the change amount to as much as a point—even when wheat was rising—and yesterday the spread was infinitesimal, aggregating only .04 points.

The utter lack of interest reflected in such a record has caused no little agitation among the commission house fraternity for a five day week—omission of the Saturday two hour session. In view of the fact, however, that brokers already have cut their stafs to an irreducible minimum the Saturday closing would save them little in the way of expense and would deprive them of whatever business

DISCUSS HOUSING PROBLEM AT FAIR PARLEY TODAY

Meeting Part of Women's Club Drive.

BY AL CHASE.

All phases of national, state, and city plans for a housing program will be discussed at "A Century of Progress Housing Forum" to be held today in the Lumber Industries' model home at the World's Fair. This attempt to keep America home minded is sponsored by 500 leading women's organizations and other agencies of national, state, and city wide scope.

According to Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, general chairman of the forum, the program is being outlined to give the public a better understanding of housing problems. Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive director of the Metropolitan Housing council, is program chairman.

It is planned to have Mayor Kelly and President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair, welcome the delegates. A. H. Pilcher, director of the home planning area, will explain its purpose and invite the delegates to make a tour of the other homes following the forum.

Illinois Chief to Speak.

One of the headliners in the long program of speakers will be Coleman Woodbury, secretary of the Illinois state housing commission. The subject of his speech will be "Why Low Cost Housing?"

Jacob L. Crane, consultant of the Illinois State Planning board and internationally known city planner, will give a talk on "Chicago's Plan for Living" at the morning session of the forum.

"Who Does What, for Housing" will be the subject of a talk by Arthur C. Bohnen, a director of the Metropolitan Housing council. Charles Pynchon, of the Homestead Subsistence division, Federal Housing administration, will outline plans for homestead subsistence farms.

The individual home owner and his problems will be discussed by George W. Dulany Jr., vice president of the National Association for Better Housing.

Discuss Women's Activities.

Miss Kathleen McLaughlin, woman's editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak on potential activities by women's groups.

John Reed Fugard, former president of the Illinois Society of Architects and chairman of the Metropolitan Housing council, will tell of the demolition work now being accomplished through efforts of that organization in Chicago's slum districts.

Better housing for Chicago's poor will be discussed by Joel D. Hunter.

Provident Mutual Life.

Investors' Guide: Will you be kind enough to give me detailed information concerning Provident Mutual Life Insurance company of Philadelphia? Is it one of the 20 largest insurance companies?—G. E. W.

Answer: Provident Mutual Life Insurance company, Philadelphia, is the seventeenth largest life insurance company in the United States from point of insurance in force, and sixteenth in rank from point of admitted assets. The company was established 68 years ago as a stock company, but was mutualized in 1922.

Admitted assets in 1933 increased about $7,000,000 to $268,225,000. Real estate, which included a $3,600,000 home office building, was $13,278,000, 5 per cent of assets; mortgage loans, 32 per cent of assets, were $85,352,000; policy loans, 21 per cent, $55,811,000; bonds [amortized values], 36 per cent, $95,971,000, and cash, 2 per cent, $5,118,000.

Bond and stock investments have held up well. Interest and dividends on them in 1933 totaled 97.37 per cent of the stipulated amount. Excluding United States government securities, market value of securities was only 3 per cent below book values. This compares with 12½ per cent at the close of 1932.

The company earned 4.2 per cent on its assets in 1933, against 4.8 per cent in 1932 and in 1931.

Income in 1933 was $51,827,000 and disbursements were $44,905,000. The ratio of actual to expected mortality was 55.6 per cent, against 55.1 per cent in 1932 and 54.5 per cent in 1931. Insurance in force at the close of the year was $954,411,000, down only 4.4 per cent from the year before. On Dec. 31, 1931, the figure was 1,030 million dollars.

The company does not set up any surplus account as such. Surplus assets are accounted for in special reserves. The mortality fluctuation fund on Dec. 31, 1933, was $9,488,000; asset depreciation fund, $8,231,000, and disability fluctuation fund, $639,000. Contingency reserves totaled more than $1,500,000.

All-American Truck.

Investors' Guide: I am holding a receipt for 10 shares of class A common capital stock of All-American Truck company, for which $150 was paid April 19, 1919. I have been unable to get any information on the present status of the company.—S. R.

Answer: The life of All-American Truck company was short. On Jan. 23, 1924, its Delaware charter was repealed because taxes had been unpaid for two years, thus revoking its corporate existence.

We find nothing to indicate that the stock has any value.

WALL ST. MOVES IN DOLDRUMS ALMOST A YEAR

Half Million Share Days or Less Now Rule.

they normally receive on that day. For that reason it is believed no change in the schedule will be made.

Silver Shares Active.

Speculation at the moment—what of it there is—converges largely in the silver and other so-called inflation stocks, the rails and an assortment of specialties more or less in the limelight for special reasons. Buying of some of the white metal shares has been fairly heavy during the week, U. S. Smelting having risen 12¾ points. Wall street's belief that the government is going to try to give business another shot in the arm via the white metal prescription, possibly before the fall elections, is responsible, of course, for the revived enthusiasm in this quarter of the market field.

Another number to rise sharply during the week was National Lead, which improved its rating by 9½ points. The activity of the rails has been mainly on the downside. This group's trouble bases on such late news items as the new pension bill and higher wages for railway labor and on the dent which the crop damage threatens to make in forthcoming carloading figures.

Motion picture stocks are suffering some embarrassment on account of the "indecent film" boycott movement and merchandise issues have lost favor to some extent on the evident collapse of the New Deal price fixing arrangements. Sugar stocks were conspicuously strong toward the last of the week.

New High for Year.

Among the individual performers to attract notice were Coca Cola, which belied predictions of repeal adversity by soaring to a new high for the year, and National Distillers, Columbia Gas and Electric and Southern Railway, which sold off to new lows.

A long list of preferred stocks has continued to rise, reflecting investment of floating surplus funds. In spite of the general lagging tendency of the market some of these issues have managed to make new highs almost every day. Brokers report that preferred stocks are increasingly hard to buy. The tape reader finds that a surprisingly large number of transactions recorded by the ticker are in senior stock issues.

Market letters reflect a general disposition among brokers to anticipate that much of the restraint under which traders are now operating will be removed when the new securities and exchange commission removes existing uncertainties as to its policies. That, it is expected, will be not later than Sept. 1.

Meanwhile, the talk of the day continues to picture the market as in a waiting attitude—awaiting some stimulus for that long anticipated and long deferred major move to the fore. Whether by fall business improvement or by government "stimulation," most commentators seem to think an advance of proportions is on the cards and that the only question tenable has to do with the time of its probable start.

Demand Deposits Decline, Time Funds Higher in N.Y.

New York, July 15.—The weekly statement of the New York clearing house shows total net demand deposits [average] declined $11,430,000, while time deposits [average] increased $7,290,000. Clearings last week totaled $3,231,413,645 against $3,079,431,565 for five days of the preceding week.

DISCLOSES POOL PROFITS MADE BY J. P. KENNEDY

Senate Group Raps Stock Mart Manipulation.

Washington, July 15.—(AP)—A pool participated in by Joseph P. Kennedy, now chairman of the stock exchange control commission, was cited today by the senate stock market investigation committee in a report severely condemning such activities.

The pool in question was conducted in shares of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company. Kennedy and his colleagues, evidence before the committee revealed, profited to the extent of $395,000. Pools now are forbidden by the stock exchange control law.

It was because of Kennedy's connection with this operation that Ferdinand Pecora, senate banking committee counsel, who conducted the investigation, objected to his election as chairman of the commission and was reluctant to serve under him.

Peace Now Resigns.

Commission members are united in saying, however, that the disagreement now has been eliminated; that Pecora and Kennedy are on the best of terms, and that the agency is functioning in perfect harmony. Kennedy would make no comment on the report, and Pecora was at his home in New York.

The report pointed out that the glass company pool "was materially aided by a popular delusion that the company was engaged in manufacturing glass bottles and was therefore to be classified as a repeal stock, whereas in fact it made no bottles and its business was in no way enhanced by the repeal of prohibition."

Raps Pool Operations.

The report, a first section of the final report by the banking committee on its long and sensational probe into Wall street activities, had this to say of pools in general:

"The testimony before the subcommittee again and again demonstrated that the activity fomented by a pool creates a false and deceptive appearance of genuine demand for the security on the part of the purchasing public and attracts persons relying upon this misleading appearance to make purchases which relieve the pool of its holdings in the end.

"Attempts have been made to differentiate between 'beneficent' pools and 'nefarious' pools. Pools operated for the purpose of stabilizing the market prices during periods of secondary distribution or while liquidating blocks of stock held by estates or creditors have been placed in the category of 'beneficent' pools; whereas pools operated merely for the purpose of raising the price of securities so that the participants might unload their holdings at increased prices have been characterized as 'nefarious' pools.

Result Is Same.

"From the viewpoint of the purchaser outside of the pool circle, there is no substantial or ethical difference in these two types of pools. Although the purpose may be different, the means employed are identical.

"In all cases fictitious activity is intentionally created and the purchaser is deceived by an appearance of genuine demand for the security. Motive furnishes no justification for the employment of manipulative devices."

The report released tonight covered all phases of stock exchange activity and is the first of six sections in which the various phases of the investigation are to be treated.

The succeeding sections are to be devoted to investment-banking practices, commercial-banking practices, investment trusts and holding companies, income tax avoidances, and a summary of the legislation thus far enacted in connection with the subjects involved.

Report Costs $250,000.

The report set the cost of the senate committee investigation at $250,000, and added:

"The expenditures, however, have been justified many fold by the incalculable benefits flowing to the American people from the hearings in the form of enlightenment as to practices which have cost them so dearly in the past and in the form of remedial measures designed to prevent such practices for all time in the future.

"The federal government has been or will be reimbursed many times over by the receipt of additional income taxes or penalties imposed on the basis of testimony developed at the hearings. To date assessments for deficiencies and penalties have been levied by the bureau of internal revenue in a sum exceeding $2,000,000 as a direct result of the revelations before the subcommittee.

"No estimates are available on the extent to which the treasury has been or will be enriched as an indirect result of those revelations, but it is certain that a great many returns have been voluntarily amended and additional payments made since the public hearings were held."

FEDERAL BONDS LEAD ADVANCE IN PRIME LIENS

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Prime investment issues climbed slowly but confidently last week and many members of the "gilt edge" families bettered their best prices for several years or since their issuance.

United States government securities led the steady upturn with several selling at record low yields. The lengthy advance of this list, however, invited some profit taking in the latter part of the week and an irregularly lower trend developed. At the same time the majority of the declines were extremely small.

High levels of the most selective corporate bonds were well maintained throughout. Offerings of this type of security were limited from day to day and it required but little demand to increase prices.

In the secondary group mixed trends were in evidence most of the time. Some of the lower priced rail liens were under pressure occasionally. The carrier group was not especially benefited by a more than seasonal decline in freight car loadings for the previous week. A movement for higher freight rates, started at the Atlantic City meeting of rail executives, also called attention to the higher costs which must be met by transportation systems.

FEW BANK LOANS TO BE AFFECTED BY MARGIN LIMIT

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The provisions of the securities exchange act of 1934 with respect to margin requirements on collateral put up to secure loans will bear lightly on Chicago banks, in the opinion of a number of Chicago bankers. There are comparatively few loans outstanding secured by stock collateral to finance activities in the stock market, it was stated, and even in such cases those who have made the loans have ample time to clear them up.

The margin requirement does not apply to John Smith, who wants to put up, say 100 shares of steel stock with a bank to finance a purchase or to meet an obligation. As a matter of fact, it was stated, the bankers themselves will be much more strict in measuring the value of such collateral than the margin requirements of the exchange act.

Commercial Loans Exempt.

The federal reserve board has stated specifically that the authority of the security exchange commission does not apply to loans made solely for industrial, commercial or agricultural purposes.

"Of course, it is not always possible for us to know with complete assurance what use a man will make of money we lend him on equity collateral," a banker said. "In view of this it is not unlikely that the federal reserve board may require us to have a customer sign a statement that he is not using money we lend him for stock market activities.

"The margin requirements do not apply to bonds, except such bonds as have provisions for conversion into stock or equities. A man may do what he pleases with money we lend him with qualified bonds as collateral."

Margin Rules Explained.

The margin requirements of the exchange act provide that loans on stock collateral are to be based on 55 per cent of their present market value, or 100 per cent of the lowest market price of the security during the preceding twelve calendar months, but not more than 75 per cent of the current price in such a case. The "36 preceding months," according to the act, are to be considered as the lowest price reached since July 1, 1933.

Persons having loans secured by stock collateral made prior to June 6, 1934, have until July 1, 1937, to clear them up. According to one banker, the bank examiner would probably demand that a loan made prior to June 6 be cleared up long before the limitation placed in the exchange act. In any event, the margin requirements do not go into effect until Oct. 1, 1934.

Sees Few Loans Affected.

Continuing his discussion of the situation, the banker asserted that so far as his house is concerned there are few banks that have equity collateral up as security for loans. Only a few companies, he said, which for various reasons do not wish to present a financial statement, have put up such collateral.

Discussing what the requirements means, he cited the case of an Iowa bank which asked him about stocks held for collateral with a market value of $1,600. Under the 55 per cent requirement, he said, the Iowa bank could lend $850 and under the requirement regarding 75 per cent of the low point it could lend $1,200. Actually, he said, his bank would not lend as much as either amount.

New Zealand Protests British Auto Tarif Plan

WELINGTON, N. Z., July 15.—The British Society of Motor Manufacturers yesterday cabled the New Zealand government protesting against the dominion's new tarif proposals which they claim fail to give the industry in the United Kingdom adequate protection against Canadian competition. Representatives of British automotive firms here maintain the new duties will fail to protect their firms against competition by Canadian cars which, they hold, are really United States products exported through Canada.
